It is not a prior period adjustment if the liability was accrued with a CAFR JV in the previous fiscal year. Also, it is not a prior period adjustment if the refund is a result of a current year change in eligibility (i.e. the eligibility requirements are no longer met or current year failure to comply with purpose restrictions within the specified time limit.) If the prior year refund is netted against a drawdown in the current year and it is a result of a current year change in eligibility, then a CAFR JV is needed to debit 1600 06 (account type 24) and credit revenue.
