93.748 PPHF COOPERATIVE AGREEMENTS FOR PRESCRIPTION DRUG MONITORING PROGRAM ELECTRONIC HEALTH RECORD (EHR) INTEGRATION AND INTEROPERABILITY EXPANSION

PPHF-2012: PDMP EHR Integration and Interoperability (TI-12-011)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

PDMP EHR Integration and Interoperability cooperative agreements are authorized under Section 509 of the Public Health Service Act, as amended, and are financed by 2012 Prevention and Public Health Funds (PPHF-2012). This announcement addresses Healthy People 2020 Substance Abuse Topic Area HP 2020-SA.

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of this program is to: 1) improve real-time access to PDMP data by integrating PDMPs into existing technologies like EHRs, in order to improve the ability of State PDMPs to reduce the nature, scope, and extent of prescription drug abuse; and 2) strengthen State PDMPs that are currently operational by providing resources to make the changes necessary to increase interoperability of State PDMPs.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Applicants that have not yet established interoperability or integration of PDMP into EHR systems must propose implementation of both systems to improve the States ability to reduce prescription drug abuse. Applicants must have an existing PDMP or have an operational PDMP by September 30, 2012, in order to receive an award under this program. An operational PDMP is one that is collecting data and responding to authorized requests for reports. If you do not currently have an operational PDMP, you must submit an assurance in Attachment 2 of your application that you will have one by September 30, 2012. Applicants that do not have an operational PDMP by September 30, 2012, will not be considered for an award. Applicants that have already established interoperability with at least one State or have integrated their PDMP into an EHR system must propose expanding interoperability to multiple State PDMPs and improving real-time access to PDMP data by integrating PDMPs into existing technologies. No more than 10% of the grant award may be used for data collection, performance measurement, and performance assessment expenses.

Applicant Eligibility:

Grant funds will enable States to integrate their PDMPs into EHR and other health information technology systems to expand utilization by increasing the production and distribution of unsolicited reports and alerts to prescribers and dispensers of prescription data. Grant funds will also be used by States to allow for modification of their systems to expand interoperability.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Eligible applicants are the immediate office of the Chief Executive (e.g., Governor) in the 49 States and 1 U.S. territory (i.e., Guam) that have enacted legislation or regulations that permit the following: implementation of a State PDMP; imposition of appropriate penalties for the unauthorized use and disclosure of information maintained in the program; and ability to share PDMP data (de-identified or anonymized) with CDC for research purposes. Eligibility is limited to States/Territory with enacted PDMP legislation because only these States/Territory have the capability to collect the required information and make that information available to prescribers, dispensers, and under controls, other States. PDMPs that are not actively collecting information cannot link their systems to EHRs or share information with other State PDMPs. Due to State laws establishing PDMPs, privacy, confidentiality, security, and other limitations on PDMPs, PDMP EHR Integration and Interoperability grants are limited to State and applicable territorial government entities.

Credentials/Documentation:

The Supporting Documentation you provide in Sections F-I and Attachments 1 and 2 will be considered by reviewers in assessing your response, along with the material in the Project Narrative.

The number of points after each heading is the maximum number of points a review committee may assign to that section of your Project Narrative.

Although scoring weights are not assigned to individual bullets, each bullet is assessed in deriving the overall Section score.

Indicate if your State has established interoperability or integration of your PDMP into EHR systems.

If it has not, discuss the need to implement either system to improve your States ability to reduce prescription drug use. Explain why interoperability is needed and how use and effectiveness will be improved by linking to EHR systems.

Describe the service gaps, barriers, and other problems related to the need for enhanced interoperability and EHR integration.

Section B: Proposed Approach (30 points)

Include a description of the manner in which the State PDMP will achieve interoperability with other State PDMPs. If you plan on enhancing your systems to provide real-time access or other system upgrades, please specify in your proposal.

Describe how you will integrate PDMPs into emergency department EHRs, primary care EHRs and pharmacy dispensing systems with appropriate privacy protections.

Describe how data will be used to manage the project and assure continuous quality improvement. Describe how information related to process and outcomes will be routinely communicated to program staff.

Describe your plan for conducting the performance assessment as specified in Section I-2.5 of this RFA and document your ability to conduct the assessment. NOTE: Although the budget for the proposed project is not a scored review criterion, the Review Group will be asked to comment on the appropriateness of the budget after the merits of the application have been considered.

Be sure to show that no more than 10% of the total grant award will be used for data collection, performance measurement, and performance assessment. Specifically identify the items associated with these costs in your budget. An illustration of a budget and narrative justification is included in Appendix E of this document.

93.750 PPHF COOPERATIVE AGREEMENT TO SUPPORT NAVIGATORS IN FEDERALLY-FACILITATED AND STATE PARTNERSHIP EXCHANGES

Navigator Grants

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act 1311(i); 45 C.F.R. 155.210 and title IV Section 4002 of the Affordable Care Act establishing the Prevention and Public Health Fund (PPHF).

OBJECTIVES:

Section 1311(i) of the Affordable Care Act authorizes Exchange Navigators in States with a Federally-facilitated Exchange (FFE). Exchanges are required to develop and implement Navigator grant programs. Navigators will serve consumers in States with an FFE, including State Partnership Exchanges. As health reform implementation continues, consumers will benefit from understanding new programs, taking advantage of new protections, and navigating the system to find the most affordable coverage that meets their needs. Exchange Navigators are intended to assist consumers in those areas in the following ways:

Maintain expertise in eligibility, enrollment, and program specifications and conduct public education activities to raise awareness about the Exchange;
Provide information and services in a fair, accurate, and impartial manner. Such information must acknowledge other health programs (e.g., Medicaid, Childrens Health Insurance Program (CHIP));
Facilitate selection of a QHP;
Provide referrals to any applicable office of health insurance consumer assistance or health insurance ombudsman established under Section 2793 of the Public Health Service (PHS) Act, or any other appropriate State agency or agencies, for any enrollee with a grievance, complaint, or question regarding their health plan, coverage, or a determination under such plan or coverage; and Provide information in a manner that is culturally and linguistically appropriate to the needs of the population being served by the Exchange, including individuals with limited English proficiency, and ensure accessibility and usability of Navigator tools, such as fact sheets, and functions for individuals with disabilities in accordance with the Americans with Disabilities Act and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Provide information in a manner that is culturally and linguistically appropriate to the needs of the population being served by the Exchange, including individuals with limited English proficiency, and ensure accessibility and usability of Navigator tools, such as fact sheets, and functions for individuals with disabilities in accordance with the Americans with Disabilities Act and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act. Funds are restricted from being used:

1. To cover the costs to provide direct health care services to individuals.
2. To match any other Federal funds.
3. To provide services, equipment, or support that are the legal responsibility of another party under Federal or State law (e.g., vocational rehabilitation or education services) or under any civil rights laws. Such legal responsibilities include, but are not limited to, modifications of a workplace or other reasonable accommodations that are a specific obligation of the employer or other party.
4. To supplant existing State, local, or private funding of infrastructure or services such as staff salaries, etc.
5. To cover any pre-award costs.

program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards applies to this program. 1. All applicants under this announcement must have an Employer Identification Number/Taxpayer Identification Number (EIN/TIN) to apply. Please note, the time needed to complete the EIN/TIN registration process is substantial, and applicants should therefore begin the process of obtaining an EIN/TIN immediately upon posting of this FOA to ensure this information is received in advance of application deadlines.

2. All applicants, as well as sub-recipients must have a Dun and Bradstreet (D&B) Data Universal Numbering System (DUNS) number at the time of application in order to be considered for a grant or cooperative agreement. A DUNS number is required whether an applicant is submitting a paper application (only applicable if a waiver is granted) or using the Government-wide electronic portal, <http://www.grants.gov>. The DUNS number is a nine-digit identification number that uniquely identifies business entities. Obtaining a DUNS number is easy and free. To obtain a DUNS number, access the following website: www.dunandbradstreet.com or call 1-866-705-5711. This number should be entered in the block with the applicant's name and address on the cover page of the application (Item 8c on the Form SF-424, Application for Federal Assistance). The name and address in the application should be exactly as given for the DUNS number. Applicants should obtain this DUNS number as soon as possible after the announcement is posted to ensure all registration steps are completed in time.

3. The applicant must also register in the System for Award Management (SAM) database in order to be able to submit the application. Applicants are encouraged to register early, and must have their DUNS and EIN/TIN numbers in order to do so. Information about SAM is available at <https://www.sam.gov/portal/public/SAM/>. The SAM registration process is a separate process from submitting an application. You should allow a minimum of five business days to complete SAM registration; however, in some cases, the registration process can take approximately two weeks or longer to be completed. Therefore, applicants should begin the SAM registration process as soon as possible after the announcement is posted to ensure that it does not impair your ability to meet required submission deadlines.

4. Authorized Organizational Representative: The Authorized Organizational Representative (AOR) who will officially submit an application on behalf of the organization must register with grants.gov for a username and password. AORs must complete a profile with Grants.gov using their organizations DUNS Number to obtain their username and password at http://grants.gov/applicants/get_registered.jsp. AORs must wait one business day after successful registration in SAM before entering their profiles in Grants.gov. Applicants should complete this process as soon as possible after successful registration in SAM to ensure this step is completed in time to apply before application deadlines.

5. When an AOR registers with Grants.gov to submit applications on behalf of an organization, that organizations E-Biz POC will receive an email notification. The email address provided in the profile will be the email used to send the notification from Grants.gov to the E-Biz POC with the AOR copied on the correspondence.

6. The E-Biz POC must then login to Grants.gov (using the organizations DUNS number for the username and the special password called M-PIN) and approve the AOR, thereby providing permission to submit applications.

7. Any files uploaded or attached to the Grants.gov application must be PDF file format and must contain a valid file format extension in the filename. Even though Grants.gov allows applicants to attach any file formats as part of their application, CMS restricts this practice and only accepts PDF file formats. Any file submitted as part of the Grants.gov application that is not in a PDF file format, or contains password protection, will not be accepted for processing and will be excluded from the application during the review process. In addition, the use of compressed file formats such as ZIP, RAR, or Adobe Portfolio will not be accepted. The application must be submitted in a file format that can easily be copied and read by reviewers. It is recommended that scanned copies not be submitted through Grants.gov unless the applicant confirms the clarity of the documents. Pages cannot be reduced in size, resulting in multiple pages on a single sheet, to avoid exceeding the page limitation. All documents that do not conform to the above specifications will be excluded from the application materials during the review process.

8. After you electronically submit your application, you will receive an acknowledgement from <http://www.grants.gov> that contains a Grants.gov tracking number. HHS will retrieve your application package from Grants.gov. Please note, applicants may incur a time delay before they receive acknowledgement that the application has been accepted by the Grants.gov system. Applicants should not wait until the application deadline to apply because notification by Grants.gov that the application is incomplete may not be received until close to or after the application deadline, eliminating the opportunity to correct errors and resubmit the application. Applications submitted after the deadline, as a result of errors on the part of the applicant, will not be accepted and/or granted a waiver.

9. After HHS retrieves your application package from Grants.gov, a return receipt will be emailed to the applicant contact. This will be in addition to the validation number provided by Grants.gov.

10. All grant applications must be submitted electronically and be received through <http://www.grants.gov> by 1:00 pm Eastern Daylight Time on the applicable due date.

11. All applications will receive an automatic time stamp upon submission and applicants will receive an email reply acknowledging the applications receipt.

Award Procedure:

Applications will be screened to determine eligibility for further review using the criteria detailed in Section III, Eligibility Information, of this solicitation.

An evaluation rubric will be developed by HHS, which will consist of critical elements identified in Section V, Application Review Information, of this solicitation. This evaluation rubric will be used by qualified, unbiased experts in their review of all applications. An applicant may receive a score of up to 100 points.

The results of the objective review of applications by qualified experts will be used to advise the approving HHS official. Final award decisions will be made by a HHS program official. In making these decisions, the HHS program official will take into consideration: the regulatory requirement that there be at least two types of Navigators in each Exchange and that one of these Navigators be a community and consumer focused nonprofit group; span or scope of populations proposed to be served; recommendations of the review panel; reviews for programmatic and grants management compliance; the reasonableness of the estimated cost to the government and anticipated results; and the likelihood the proposed cost will result in the benefits expected. HHS reserves the right to conduct pre-award Budget Negotiations with potential awardees.

Successful applicants can receive one cooperative agreement award based on this solicitation.

Evaluations will be made available for review upon request, excluding scores.

Successful applicants will receive a Notice of Award (NoA) signed and dated by the HHS Grants Management Officer. The NoA is the document authorizing the grant award and will be sent by electronic mail to the awardee as listed on its SF-424. Any communication between HHS and applicants prior to issuance of the NoA is not an authorization to begin performance of a project.

Unsuccessful applicants will be notified by letter, sent electronically or through the U.S. Postal Service to the applicant organization as listed on its SF-424, within 30 days of the award date.

93.751 PPHF: CONSORTIUM FOR TOBACCO USE CESSATION TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE FINANCED BY SOLELY BY PREVENTION AND PUBLIC HEALTH FUNDS

PPHF2013: Consortium for Tobacco Use Cessation Technical Assistance
FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Consolidation Appropriations Act, Fiscal Year 2013, Public Law 112-74, for the Department of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education and the Department of Interior and Related Agencies; and the Consolidated and Further Continuing Appropriations Act, Fiscal Year 2013, Public Law 112-55 for the United States Department of Agriculture, and Related Agencies. Title IV section 4002 Prevention and Public Health Fund.

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of this program is to develop a consortium for tobacco use cessation technical assistance. The aim of the cessation consortium is to provide technical assistance to state tobacco control programs and other partners by translating the science of tobacco control cessation into public health action to further increase the rate of cessation among tobacco users in the United States. The funded organizations will accomplish this by providing technical assistance to state tobacco control programs and other partners to (1) promote comprehensive cessation strategies for state tobacco control programs, (2) enhance state quitline capacity, (3) promote comprehensive cessation coverage, and (4) promote health systems change. Tobacco use remains the leading preventable cause of disease and death in the United States. More than half of smokers attempt to quit each year, but only 4-7% succeed. Evidence-based cessation treatments, including individual, group, and telephone counseling and seven FDA-approved cessation medications, exist, but are underutilized. This program is intended to increase the number of quit attempts and successful quit attempts, thereby increasing cessation and reducing tobacco use.

Project funds may be used for costs associated with planning, organizing, conducting, and supporting tobacco cessation technical assistance strategies. CDC will have substantial involvement with the award recipient during performance of the funded activity. Applicants must adhere to all CDC guidelines regarding allowable and unallowable expenses.

REGULATIONS, GUIDELINES, AND LITERATURE:

Effective tobacco cessation treatments are available, including group, individual, and telephone counseling and FDA-approved cessation medications.

However, less than one third of cigarette smokers use these treatments when trying to quit. Physician cessation interventions increase patient quit rates, but many physicians do not routinely intervene with their patients who use tobacco products. Population-based strategies that increase cessation include, but are not limited to, reducing out-of-pocket costs for evidence-based tobacco cessation treatments (i.e., ensuring that health insurance plans cover these treatments), provider reminder systems in health care settings (including reminders embedded in electronic health records) that prompt health care providers to screen for tobacco use and provide cessation advice, telephone quitlines, and mobile-phone based cessation texting interventions.

CDC recommends that state tobacco control programs implement these effective population-based strategies for increasing cessation and put in place a comprehensive plan to address cessation. The Office on Smoking and Health has worked with several national organizations in providing information to state tobacco control programs and national and state partners on OSH's three major cessation priorities: enhancing state quitline capacity and sustainability, promoting comprehensive coverage of evidence-based tobacco cessation treatments in health insurance plans, and promoting health systems changes that improve the rates of tobacco use screening and cessation intervention in health care settings.

CDC recommendations regarding cessation activities to be implemented by state tobacco control programs are described in greater depth in CDC's Best Practices for Comprehensive Tobacco Control Programs 2014 (see http://www.cdc.gov/tobacco/stateandcommunity/best_practices/pdfs/2014/sectonA-III.pdf).

OBJECTIVES:

This five-year funding opportunity offers support to prevent heart disease, diabetes and associated risk factors in American Indian and Alaska Native (AI/AN) communities through a holistic approach to population health and wellness. There will be two components to this funding opportunity announcement.

Component One will fund 12 AI/AN tribes, one within each of the 12 Indian Health Service (IHS) areas, who will use a combination of community chosen and culturally adapted policies, systems, and environmental changes to increase access to fresh, healthy traditional foods, and offer alternatives to less healthy packaged and processed foods high in sodium and fat. Component One will also strive to promote programs to increase physical activity, health education, and team based strategies to strengthen community-clinical linkages promoting lifelong health and preventing chronic diseases such as diabetes, heart disease, and stroke. 93.767 CHILDREN'S HEALTH INSURANCE PROGRAM

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Title XXI of the Social Security Act as amended by the Children's Health Insurance Program Reauthorization Act of 2009 (CHIPRA; Public Law 111-003), the Affordable Care Act (ACA; Public Law 111-148 taken together with Public Law 111-152) and the Medicare Access and CHIP Reauthorization Act (MACRA) (Public Law 114-10).

OBJECTIVES:

To provide funds to States to enable them to maintain and expand child health assistance to uninsured, low income children, and at a state option, low-income pregnant women and legal immigrants, primarily by three methods: (1) obtain health insurance coverage that meets the requirements in Section 2103 relating to the amount, duration, and scope of benefits; (2) expand eligibility for children under the State's Medicaid program; and (3) reduce the number of children eligible for Medicaid, CHIP and insurance affordability programs under the ACA, who are not enrolled and improve retention of those who are already enrolled..

This solicitation addresses the third objective and seeks applications for the Connecting Kids to Coverage Outreach and Enrollment Grants Focused on Increasing Enrollment of eligible children, as provided under the Section 2113 of the Social Security Act, amended by section 303of the MACRA. A total of $29,800,000 million is available for grants to eligible entities, including states, local governments, schools, health care providers, community-based, non-profit organizations and Indian tribes or tribal consortiums, tribal organizations, urban Indian organizations receiving funds under title V of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act (25 U.S.C. 1651 et seq.), Indian Health Service providers; to the extent that a cooperative agreement awarded to such an entity is consistent with the requirements of Section 1955 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 300x-65) relating to a grant award to nongovernmental entities; and/or elementary or secondary schools. These grants will support outreach strategies aimed at increasing enrollment of eligible children in Medicaid and the Childrens Health Insurance Program (CHIP), emphasizing activities tailored to communities where eligible children and families reside and enlisting community leaders and programs that serve eligible children and families. They also will fund activities designed to help families understand new application procedures and health coverage opportunities, including Medicaid, CHIP and insurance affordability programs under the ACA. Refer to the funding opportunity announcement (Agency Funding Opportunity Number: CMS-XXX-XX-XXX, Competition ID Number: CMS-XXX-XX-XXX-XXXXXX) for additional information. In addition the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) will also be announcing a separate FOA exclusively for Indian health care providers and tribal entities under which $3.7 million will be made available for outreach and enrollment cooperative agreements. Indian health care providers and tribal entities are permitted to apply for either or both funding opportunities as long as the work described is different in each proposal.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

FORMULA GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

No State is eligible for payments for child health assistance for coverage provided prior to October 1, 1997. Standards used to determine eligibility may include those related to geographic areas to be served by the plan. Age, income and resources, residency, disability status (as long as the standard does not restrict eligibility), access to or coverage under other health coverage, and duration of eligibility are factors. Standards may not discriminate on the basis of diagnosis. Eligibility standards must not cover higher-income children without covering lower-income children, and must not deny eligibility based on a child having a pre-existing medical condition. The State must ensure that only targeted low-income children are furnished child health assistance under the plan. Children found through screening to be eligible for Medicaid are to be enrolled in Medicaid. The insurance provided using Federal funds under the State plan does may not substitute for coverage under group health plans. Coordination with other public and private programs providing creditable coverage for low-income children should occur. Child Health Assistance (other than Medicaid), must consist of any of the following: Benchmark coverage; benchmark equivalent coverage (which can be FEHBP-equivalent coverage); State employee coverage or coverage offered through the HMO with the largest insured commercial non-Medicaid enrollment in the State; existing comprehensive State-based coverage; or Secretary-approved coverage. A State child health plan must include a description of the amount (if any) of cost-sharing and must be in accordance with a public schedule. Cost-sharing may be varied in a way that does not favor higher-income children over lower-income children. No cost-sharing is permitted for well-baby and well-child care, including age-appropriate immunizations. Cost-sharing for children at 150 percent of poverty must be consistent with Medicaid; Cost-sharing for children at 150 percent of poverty and above must be based on an income-related sliding scale. The aggregate cost sharing for all children in a family cannot exceed 5 percent of the family's income. The State child health plan may not impose pre-existing condition exclusions for covered benefits. Funds provided to a State under this Title may only be used to carry out the purposes of this Title. Health insurance coverage provided may include coverage of abortion only if necessary to save the life of the mother or if the pregnancy is the result of an act of rape or incest. States may spend up to 10 percent of their total CHIP expenditures (Federal and State) on non-benefit activities, including: outreach conducted to identify and enroll eligible children in CHIP; administration costs; health services initiatives; and other child health assistance. These expenditures are matched at the enhanced CHIP matching rate and counted against both the 10 percent limit and the allotment. Monetary amounts provided by the Federal government or services assisted or subsidized to any extent by the Federal government, may not be included in determining the amount of nonfederal contributions required for State matching purposes.

93.779 CENTERS FOR MEDICARE AND MEDICAID SERVICES (CMS) RESEARCH, DEMONSTRATIONS AND EVALUATIONS (CMS Research)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Social Security Act, Title XI, Sections 1110 and 1115; 42 U.S.C. 1310 and 1315(a); Title XVIII, Section 1875; 42 U.S.C. 1395 and 42 U.S.C. 1881 (f); Section 402, Public Law 90-248, as amended; Section 222, Public Law 92-603.

OBJECTIVES:

The Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) conducts research, demonstrations, and evaluations in support of CMS' key role as a beneficiary-centered purchaser of high-quality health care at a reasonable cost. These grants are awarded in the form of research grants and cooperative agreements; Hispanic health services grants; historically black colleges and university grants. For fiscal years 2010 and 2011, CMS research, demonstrations and evaluations will focus on expanding agency efforts to improve the efficiency of payment, delivery, access and quality of our health care programs that serve millions of beneficiaries.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Under all authorizations, all applications must meet standards of excellence in research or evaluation design. Funds may not be used for construction or renovation of buildings. Funds authorized by Section 1115 of the Social Security Act are limited to State agencies administering the Medicaid program.

The research issues and/or hypotheses identified by a project should be clearly stated and realistic and should reflect the issues of interest to CMS and, where appropriate, HHS, Federal Government, and the broader health services research community.

The research design should clearly identify the measures that will be collected and analyzed to address the issues and/or hypotheses. These proposed measures should reflect concepts and variables that are consistent with the stated issues and hypotheses.

The research design should also address the reliability of measures i.e., a measurement should not change when the concept being measured remains constant in value. A common reliability concern is the level of inter-rater reliability of an instrument, determined by the extent to which two or more persons measuring the same characteristic would assign the same score.

The research design should address the validity of proposed measures i.e., the extent to which differences in scores on variable or the measuring instrument represent true differences in the characteristic we are trying to measure, rather than constant or random errors or the influence of other factors.

Applicant Eligibility:

Grants or cooperative agreements may be made to private, or public agencies or organizations, including State agencies that administer the Medicaid program. Private profit organizations may apply.

Any funds remaining at the end of each fiscal year carry over to the next fiscal year, and can be used to make grant awards to current grantees until FY 2016. Any unused grant funds in 2016 can be used until 2020. No additional funding will be available after the final 2016-2020 awards are made; however, grantees will submit documentation to identify projected costs and justify expenditures on an annual basis. Grantees can request to continue transitioning MFP participants until December 31, 2018 with services being provided and eligible for enhanced match through December 31, 2019. All claiming of services must be finalized by September 30, 2020. The MFP Demonstration supports State efforts to rebalance their long-term support system so that individuals have a choice of where they live and receive services. MFP program goals are (1) increase the use of home and community-based services (HCBS) and reduce the use of institutionally-based services; (2) eliminate barriers in State law, State Medicaid plans, and State budgets that restrict the use of Medicaid funds to let people get long-term care in the settings of their choice (3) strengthen the ability of Medicaid programs to provide HCBS to people who choose to transition out of institutions, and (4) put procedures in place to provide quality assurance and improvement of HCBS. The demonstration provides for enhanced Federal Medical Assistance Percentage (FMAP) for 12 months for qualified home and community-based services for each person transitioned from an institution to the community during the demonstration period. Eligibility for transition is dependent upon residence in a qualified institution for more than 90 consecutive days. However, days that an individual was residing in the institution for the sole purpose of receiving short-term rehabilitation services that are reimbursed under Medicare are excluded and will not be counted toward the 90-day requirement. The State must continue to provide community-based services after the 12-month period for as long as the person needs community services and is Medicaid eligible. Under the demonstration, the State must propose a system of Medicaid home and community-based care that will be sustained after the demonstration period and is deemed qualified by the Secretary. Specifically, the program must be conducted in conjunction with a "qualified HCBS program" which is a program that is in operation (or approved) in the State for such individuals in a manner that assures continuity of Medicaid coverage of services in the qualified HCBS program for eligible individuals. States may also propose to enhance the services they will provide during the demonstration period to achieve greater success with transition. States will be required to participate in a national qualitative and quantitative evaluation conducted by CMS. Data collected on a national level will help evaluate the core objectives of the statute.

Component 1 is to implement or strengthen policy, system, and environmental (PSE) strategies to: increase environments that promote, support, or reinforce physical activity and healthy foods and beverages, particularly those with low or no sodium; and to increase tobacco- and smoke-free environments.

Component 2 is to implement or strengthen health systems strategies and community-clinical linkage strategies

-- In their proposed budget, Mississippi Department of Health / Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative must allocate more funding (i.e., at least 60% of their proposed budget) towards Component 2 (health systems strategies and community-clinical linkage strategies) than Component 1 (policy, system, and environmental strategies).

-- Mississippi Department of Health / Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative must sub-award 50% of award funds to local entities to contribute to the work, must provide leadership and technical assistance to selected MS Delta communities, and must ensure overall coordination.

-- Mississippi Department of Health / Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative should allocate between 5% - 10% of their total funding award to evaluation and performance monitoring.

-- In order to maximize the reach of federal funding, Mississippi Department of Health / Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative must ensure that efforts are complementary and not duplicative of other efforts in the 18-county MS Delta Region, such as State Public Health Actions (DP13-1305), Partnerships to Improve Community Health (PICH) (DP14-1417), and Racial and Ethnic Approaches to Community Health (REACH) (DP14-1419). -- Awardee may not use funds for research.

-- Awardee may not use funds for clinical care.

-- Awardee may not use funds for construction.

-- Awardee may use funds only for reasonable program purposes, including personnel, travel, supplies, and services.

-- Generally, awardee may not use funds to purchase furniture or equipment. Any such proposed spending must be clearly identified in the budget.

-- Reimbursement of pre-award costs is not allowed.

-- Other than for normal and recognized executive-legislative relationships, no funds may be used for:

o publicity or propaganda purposes, for the preparation, distribution, or use of any material designed to support or defeat the enactment of legislation before any legislative body o the salary or expenses of any grant or contract recipient, or agent acting for such recipient, related to any activity designed to influence the enactment of legislation, appropriations, regulation, administrative action, or Executive order proposed or pending before any legislative body.

-- The direct and primary recipient in a cooperative agreement program must perform a substantial role in carrying out project outcomes and not merely serve as a conduit for an award to another party or provider who is ineligible.

Awardee may not use funds for construction.

Applicant Eligibility:

The Mississippi Department of Health / Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative is uniquely qualified positioned to carry out the activities outlined in this FOA because:

-- To meet Congressional intent detailed in the FY 2015 Appropriations language, CDC needs to continue supporting the Mississippi Department of Health / Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative's work related to policy, systems, and environmental approaches, as well as community-clinical linkages for the prevention and control of chronic diseases, such as heart disease and stroke.

-- The Mississippi Department of Health's mission is to promote and protect the health of the citizens of Mississippi. In addition, The Mississippi Department of Health is designated as the sole and official agency to administer and supervise all health planning responsibilities for the state, as established by Section 41-7-171 et seq., of the Mississippi Code 1972. Therefore they are uniquely qualified to identify those areas of greatest need in the state; develop strategies to reduce barriers and deficiencies in the state's public health care system; and establish policies to encourage the provision of appropriate and quality care in the public and private health care system. Through its program, the Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative, reach of the Mississippi Department of Health is further extended to address health issues of rural areas of the state (i.e., the 18-county MS Delta Region). The MS Delta Region bears a disproportionate burden of heart disease and stroke, and related conditions as compared to the rest of Mississippi and to the nation.

-- Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative has provided leadership and coordination of heart disease and stroke prevention and control efforts in communities across the MS Delta Region. Also, by directly engaging, and providing funding and technical assistance to community organizations to promote coordination of public health efforts, the Mississippi Delta Health Collaborative is poised to expeditiously and successfully implement strategies related to policy, systems, and environmental approaches; health systems; and community-clinical linkages to prevent and control heart disease and stroke in the MS Delta Region.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

The ultimate benefits of this program will be received by the general and priority adult populations in a local, rural area of Mississippi (i.e., the MS Delta Region) who have high blood pressure, and experience health disparities associated with high blood pressure. Priority adult populations are those adult population subgroups in the MS Delta Region who experience racial/ethnic and socioeconomic disparities, including inadequate access to care and poor quality of care. Strategies related to the prevention and control of heart disease and stroke will be implemented and tailored to meet the unique local needs of the MS Delta Region and to achieve the greatest impact.

Successful applicants will receive a Notice of Award (NOA) from the CDC Procurement and Grants Office. The NOA shall be the only binding, authorizing document between the recipient and CDC. The NoA will be signed by an authorized Grants Management Officer and e-mailed to the program director. Title VI of Division G of the Consolidated and Continuing Appropriations Act, 2015 and Public Health Service Act, Section 311 (42 U.S.C. 243).

OBJECTIVES:

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Formula Grants (Cooperative Agreements)

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Part A - Health Care System Preparedness for Ebola
Through Part A, HHS will provide funding to all 62 Hospital Preparedness Program (HPP) awardees to support state- or jurisdiction-designated Ebola treatment centers, assessment hospitals, and health care coalitions for overall health care system preparedness. Jurisdictions may use a portion of the funding to: compensate health care facilities for Ebola preparedness activities undertaken since July 2014, build additional capabilities to ensure the nations health care system and health care workers are ready to safely and successfully identify, isolate, assess, transport, and treat patients under investigation with Ebola or confirmed to have Ebola, and be well prepared for a future Ebola-like event.

Applicants should review the individual funding opportunity announcement document for specific information about the use of funds for this program.

Part B - Development of a Regional Network for Ebola Patient Care
HHS will award funding through Part B of the FOA to up to 10 Hospital Preparedness Program (HPP) awardees (although the decision has been made for Region 4 and Region 7 facilities) to develop a regional network for Ebola patient care, including the establishment of approximately ten regional Ebola and other special pathogen treatment centers with significantly enhanced Ebola and other infectious disease capabilities that will accept a confirmed Ebola patient from their region, across the U.S., or medically evacuated from West Africa, as necessary.

All HPP jurisdictions are eligible to apply for Part B funding. HPP will award a maximum of 10 awards through Part B (two sole source awards for [1] the Georgia Department of Public Health to support the Emory University Hospital, Atlanta, GA to serve as the Region 4 regional Ebola and other special pathogen treatment center and [2] the Nebraska State Department of Health and Human Services to support the Nebraska Medicine - Nebraska Medical Center, Omaha, NE to serve as the Region 7 regional Ebola and other special pathogen treatment center) and up to eight additional competitive awards for the remaining HHS regions. IHCOP strives to improve retention, matriculation and graduation rates by implementing tailored enrichment programs designed to address the academic and social needs of trainees from disadvantaged backgrounds. It also provides opportunities for community-based health professions training, emphasizing experiences in underserved communities. HCOP focuses on three key milestones of education: (1) graduation from high school; (2) retention and graduation from college; and (3) acceptance, retention, and completion of a health careers degree program.

93.827 EDUCATING STATE-LEVEL STAKEHOLDERS ON STRATEGIES TO ADDRESS WINNABLE BATTLES IN PUBLIC HEALTH

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Sections 311 and 317(k)(2) of the Public Health Service Act, [42 U.S.C. Sections 243 and 247b(k)(2)].

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of this project is to reduce the burden of leading causes of death and disability by providing capacity building assistance to states to address priority health issues. Using CDC's Winnable Battle Initiative as a framework, the project is intended to help increase the uptake of interventions known to successfully address high burden health issues by helping decision makers prioritize issues to address, and educating them on the interventions with the best evidence to support them. The activities to be implemented through this project will contribute to the ultimate reduction of health, financial and social costs of these health challenges across the nation.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

In 2010, CDC launched the Winnable Battles (WB) Initiative to focus attention both on a set of public health challenges with large scale impact on death and disability, and on an approach to prioritizing and addressing high-impact health problems. The focus areas of the Winnable Battles were determined based on the magnitude of the health problems, and that each has evidence-based interventions or best practices which, if implemented, could result in measurable impact in a relatively short time. By identifying priority strategies and clear targets and working closely with states and other partners, CDC has focused on making significant progress in these health areas.

The Winnable Battles identified by CDC are:

Tobacco- Tobacco use is the leading preventable cause of disease, disability, and death in the U.S.

Nutrition, Physical Activity, and Obesity- More than 72 million adults and 12 million youth in the U.S. are obese

Food Safety- Foodborne diseases sicken 1 out of 6 Americans each year

Healthcare- Associated Infections (HAIs)- 1 out of 20 hospitalized patients contracts an HAI

Motor Vehicle Safety- Motor vehicle crashes are a leading cause of death among Americans ages 1 to 54

Teen Pregnancy- The U.S. has one of the highest rates of teen pregnancy of any developed nation in the world

HIV- More than 1 million people in the U.S. are living with HIV

Progress in reducing the burden of these health challenges is dependent upon implementation of strategies that are known to positively impact each Winnable Battle focus area, yet many of these known interventions are underutilized.

Oftentimes, those in the position to adopt and implement policies and practices that can make a difference are unfamiliar with the interventions, and are unclear about their potential effectiveness and the value they may yield in terms of return on investment.

This project is intended to help increase the uptake of interventions known to successfully address health issues with high burdens, by helping policy makers prioritize the issues to address, and educating them on the interventions with the best evidence to support them. The activities to be implemented through this project will contribute to the ultimate reduction of health, financial and social costs of these health challenges across the nation.

OBJECTIVES:

To foster heart and vascular research in the basic, translational, clinical and population sciences, and to foster training to build talented young investigators in these areas. Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program: To stimulate technological innovation; use small business to meet Federal research and development needs; foster and encourage participation in innovation and entrepreneurship by socially and economically disadvantaged persons; and increase private-sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development funding. Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) program: To stimulate technological innovation; foster technology transfer through cooperative R&D between small businesses and research institutions, and increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from federal R&D.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Grants may support stipends, research expenses, supplies, travel, and research training tuition as required to perform the research effort. Restrictions or limitations are imposed against the use of funds for entertainment, foreign travel, general-purpose equipment, alterations and renovations, and other items not regularly required for the performance of research. Individual predoctoral and postdoctoral national research service awards (NRSAs) are made directly to individuals through their universities for research training in heart and vascular diseases. NRSA awards may be made to eligible institutions to enable them to appoint individuals selected by the institution selected by the institution for research training. Certain service and payback provisions may apply to postdoctoral individuals upon termination of the award or termination of the appointment. SBIR Phase I awards (of approximately 6-months' duration) are to establish the scientific and technical merit of the proposed research effort, and feasibility of ideas that appear to have commercial potential. Phase II awards are for the continuation of research initiated in Phase I that meets particular program needs and exhibits potential for commercial application. STTR Phase I awards (normally of 1-year duration) are to establish the scientific and technical merit of the proposed cooperative research effort between a small business and non-profit research institution, and feasibility of ideas that appear to have commercial potential. Phase II awards are for the continuation of research initiated in Phase I that meets particular program needs and exhibits potential for commercial application. Fast-Track is an option whereby Phase I and Phase II SBIR or STTR projects are submitted and reviewed concurrently with the aim of reducing or eliminating the funding gap between Phase I and Phase II. While the intent of the SBIR/STTR programs is commercialization (Phase III), no SBIR/STTR funds are allowed for commercialization activities such as patents; market and sales; market research; business development/product development/market plans; legal fees, travel and other costs including labor relating to license agreements and partnerships.

Applicant Eligibility:

Any nonprofit organization engaged in biomedical research and institutions or companies organized for profit may apply for almost any kind of grant. Only domestic, non-profit, private or public institutions may apply for NRSA Institutional Research Training Grants. An individual may apply for an NRSA or, in some cases, for a research grant if adequate facilities to perform the research are available. SBIR grants can be awarded only to United States small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, or owned by another small business that itself is independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed, and have no more than 500 employees including affiliates). Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. or its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council. SBIR projects must be performed at least 67% by the applicant small business in Phase I and at least 50% of the Project in Phase II. STTR grants can be awarded only to United States small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit and have no more than 500 employees) that formally collaborate with a university or other non-profit research institution in cooperative research and development. The principal investigator of an STTR award may be employed with either the small business concern or collaborating non-profit research institution as long as s/he has a formal appointment with or commitment to the applicant small business concern. At least 40% of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30% by the non-profit research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Any nonprofit or for-profit organization, company or institution engaged in biomedical research. Only domestic for-profit small business firms may apply for SBIR and STTR programs.

Credentials/Documentation:

Individual NRSA awardees and Institutional NRSA trainees must be citizens or noncitizen nationals of the United States, or have been admitted for permanent residency. Two levels of training are available: graduate level predoctoral training and postdoctoral training. All potential trainees must possess a desire for training in one of the health or health-related areas specified by the National Institutes of Health. Each applicant must be sponsored by an accredited public or private nonprofit institution engaged in such training. Costs will be determined in accordance with OMB Circular No. A-87 for State and local governments. For-profit organization costs are determined in accordance with Subpart 31.2 of the Federal Acquisition Regulations. For other grantees, costs will be determined in accordance with DHHS Regulations 45 CFR, Part 74, Subpart Q. For SBIR and STTR grants, the applicant organization (small business concern) must present a research plan that has potential for commercialization and furnish evidence that scientific competence, experimental methods, facilities, equipment, and funds requested are appropriate to carry out the plan. SBIR and STTR applicants must use the SF424 Research and Related (R&R) application for electronic submission through grants.gov. 93.838 LUNG DISEASES RESEARCH

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institutes of Health, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Section 301, 422 and 487, as amended, Public Laws 78-410 and 99-158, 42 U.S.C. 241, 42 U.S.C. 285, and 42 U.S.C. 288, as amended; Small Business Research and Development Enhancement Act of 1992, Public Law 102-564.

OBJECTIVES:

The Division of Lung Diseases supports research and research training on the causes, diagnosis, prevention, and treatment of lung diseases and sleep disorders. Research is funded through investigator-initiated and Institute-initiated grant programs and through contract programs in areas including asthma, bronchopulmonary dysplasia, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, cystic fibrosis, respiratory neurobiology, sleep-disordered breathing, critical care and acute lung injury, developmental biology and pediatric pulmonary diseases, immunologic and fibrotic pulmonary disease, rare lung disorders, pulmonary vascular disease, and pulmonary complications of AIDS and tuberculosis. The Division is responsible for monitoring the latest research developments in the extramural scientific community as well as identifying research gaps and needs, obtaining advice from experts in the field, and implementing programs to address new opportunities. Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program: To stimulate technological innovation; use small business to meet Federal research and development needs; foster and encourage participation in innovation and entrepreneurship by socially and economically disadvantaged persons; and increase private-sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development funding. Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) program: To stimulate technological innovation; foster technology transfer through cooperative R&D between small businesses and research institutions, and increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from federal R&D.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Grants may support stipends, research expenses, supplies, travel, and research training tuition as required to perform the research effort. Restrictions or limitations are imposed against the use of funds for entertainment, foreign travel, general-purpose equipment, alterations and renovations, and other items not regularly required for the performance of research. Individual Predoctoral and Postdoctoral National Research Service Awards (NRSA) are made directly to individuals for research training in specified biomedical shortage areas. Institutional NRSA awards may be made to eligible institutions to enable them to appoint individuals selected by the institution for research training. Certain service and payback provisions may apply to postdoctoral individuals upon termination of the award or termination of the appointment. SBIR Phase I awards (of approximately 6-months' duration) are to establish the scientific and technical merit of the proposed research effort, and feasibility of ideas that appear to have commercial potential. Phase II awards are for the continuation of research initiated in Phase I that meets particular program needs and exhibits potential for commercial application. STTR Phase I awards (normally of 1-year duration) are to establish the scientific and technical merit of the proposed cooperative research effort between a small business and non-profit research institution, and feasibility of ideas that appear to have commercial potential. Phase II awards are for the continuation of research initiated in Phase I that meets particular program needs and exhibits potential for commercial application. Fast-Track is an option whereby Phase I and Phase II SBIR or STTR projects are submitted and reviewed concurrently with the aim of reducing or eliminating the funding gap between Phase I and Phase II. While the intent of the SBIR/STTR programs is commercialization (Phase III), SBIR/STTR funds are generally not allowed for commercialization activities such as patent fees; market and sales; market research; business development/product development/market plans; legal fees, travel and other costs including labor relating to license agreements and partnerships.

Applicant Eligibility:

Any nonprofit organization engaged in biomedical research and institutions or companies organized for profit may apply for almost any kind of grant. Only domestic, non-profit, private or public institutions may apply for NRSA Institutional Research Training Grants. An individual may apply for an NRSA or, in some cases, for a research grant if adequate facilities to perform the research are available. SBIR grants can be awarded only to United States small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, or owned by another small business that itself is independently owned and operated for profit and have no more than 500 employees including affiliates). Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. or its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council. SBIR projects are generally performed at least 67% by the applicant small business in Phase I and at least 50% of the Project in Phase II. STTR grants can be awarded only to United States small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit and have no more than 500 employees) that formally collaborate with a university or other non-profit research institution in cooperative research and development. The principal investigator of an STTR award may be employed with either the small business concern or collaborating non-profit research institution as long as s/he has a formal appointment with or commitment to the applicant small business concern. At least 40% of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30% by the non-profit research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Any nonprofit or for-profit organization, company or institution engaged in biomedical research. Only domestic for-profit small business firms may apply for SBIR and STTR programs.

Credentials/Documentation:

Individual NRSA awardees and Institutional NRSA trainees must be citizens or noncitizen nationals of the United States, or have been admitted for permanent residency. Two levels of training are available: graduate level predoctoral training and postdoctoral training. All potential trainees must possess a desire for training in one of the health or health-related areas specified by the National Institutes of Health. Each applicant must be sponsored by an accredited public or private nonprofit institution engaged in such training. Costs will be determined in accordance with OMB Circular No. A-87 for State and local governments. For-profit organization costs are determined in accordance with Subpart 31.2 of the Federal Acquisition Regulations. For other grantees, costs will be determined in accordance with DHHS Regulations 45 CFR, Part 74, Subpart Q. For SBIR and STTR grants, the applicant organization (small business concern) must present a research plan that has potential for commercialization and furnish evidence that scientific competence, experimental methods, facilities, equipment, and funds requested are appropriate to carry out the plan. SBIR and STTR applicants must use the SF424 Research and Related (R&R) application for electronic submission through grants.gov. Electronic submission of NIH Research Performance Progress Reports (RPPR) apply for non-competing continuations (e.g., second year of Phase II). 93.840 TRANSLATION AND IMPLEMENTATION SCIENCE RESEARCH FOR HEART, LUNG, BLOOD DISEASES, AND SLEEP DISORDERS

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institutes of Health, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Section 301, 422 and 487, as amended, Public Laws 78-410 and 99-158, 42 U.S.C. 241, 42 U.S.C. 285, and 42 U.S.C. 288, as amended; Small Business Reauthorization Act of 2000, Public Law 106-554.

OBJECTIVES:

To foster late stage translation phase 4 (T4) research and facilitate the understanding of multi-level processes and factors associated with successful and sustainable integration of evidence-based interventions within specific clinical and public health settings related to heart, lung, and blood diseases and sleep disorders and disorders for diverse populations across the lifespan, including those that reduce health inequities within the U.S. and globally. Programs support the biomedical research workforce and career development and research dissemination including training of early-stage scientists and established investigators to conduct late-stage translation phase (T4) and implementation science research in heart, lung, and blood diseases and sleep disorders and research education. Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program: To stimulate technological innovation; use small business to meet Federal research and development needs; foster and encourage participation in innovation and entrepreneurship by socially and economically disadvantaged persons; and increase private-sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development funding related to late-stage translation phase (T4), including implementation science, research education, and research dissemination products, for both domestic and global health. Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) program: To stimulate technological innovation; foster technology transfer through cooperative R&D between small businesses and research institutions, and increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from federal R&D to late-stage translation phase (T4) research including implementation science, research education, and research dissemination products for both domestic and global health.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Grants may support stipends, research expenses, supplies, travel, and research training tuition as required to perform the research effort. Restrictions or limitations are imposed against the use of funds for entertainment, foreign travel, general-purpose equipment, alterations and renovations, and other items not regularly required for the performance of research. Individual Predoctoral and Postdoctoral National Research Service Awards (NRSAs) are made directly to individuals for research training in specified biomedical shortage areas. Institutional NRSA awards may be made to eligible institutions to enable them to appoint individuals selected by the institution for research training. Certain service and payback provisions may apply to postdoctoral individuals upon termination of the award or termination of the appointment. SBIR Phase I awards (of approximately 6-months' duration) are to establish the scientific and technical merit of the proposed research effort, and feasibility of ideas that appear to have commercial potential. Phase II awards are for the continuation of research initiated in Phase I that meets particular program needs and exhibits potential for commercial application. STTR Phase I awards (normally of 1-year duration) are to establish the scientific and technical merit of the proposed cooperative research effort between a small business and non-profit research institution, and feasibility of ideas that appear to have commercial potential. Phase II awards are for the continuation of research initiated in Phase I that meets particular program needs and exhibits potential for commercial application. Fast-Track is an option whereby Phase I and Phase II SBIR or STTR projects are submitted and reviewed concurrently with the aim of reducing or eliminating the funding gap between Phase I and Phase II. While the intent of the SBIR/STTR programs is commercialization (Phase III), SBIR/STTR funds are generally not allowed for commercialization activities such as patent fees; market and sales; market research; business development/product development/market plans; legal fees, travel and other costs including labor relating to license agreements and partnerships.

Applicant Eligibility:

Any nonprofit organization engaged in biomedical research and institutions or companies organized for profit may apply for almost any kind of grant. Only domestic, non-profit, private or public institutions may apply for NRSA Institutional Research Training Grants. An individual may apply for an NRSA or, in some cases, for a research grant if adequate facilities to perform the research are available. SBIR grants can be awarded only to United States small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, or owned by another small business that itself is independently owned and operated for profit and have no more than 500 employees including affiliates). Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. or its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council. SBIR projects are generally performed at least 67% by the applicant small business in Phase I and at least 50% of the Project in Phase II. STTR grants can be awarded only to United States small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit and have no more than 500 employees) that formally collaborate with a university or other non-profit research institution in cooperative research and development. The principal investigator of an STTR award may be employed by either the small business concern or collaborating non-profit research institution as long as s/he has a formal appointment with or commitment to the applicant small business concern. At least 40% of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30% by the non-profit research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Any nonprofit or for-profit organization, company or institution engaged in biomedical research. Only domestic for-profit small business firms may apply for SBIR and STTR programs.

Credentials/Documentation:

Individual NRSA awardees and Institutional NRSA trainees must be citizens or noncitizen nationals of the United States, or have been admitted for permanent residency. Two levels of training are available: graduate level predoctoral training and postdoctoral training. All potential trainees must possess a desire for training in one of the health or health-related areas specified by the National Institutes of Health. Each applicant must be sponsored by an accredited public or private nonprofit institution engaged in such training. For-profit organization costs are determined in accordance with Subpart 31.2 of the Federal Acquisition Regulations. For SBIR and STTR grants, the applicant organization (small business concern) must present a research plan that has potential for commercialization and furnish evidence that scientific competence, experimental methods, facilities, equipment, and funds requested are appropriate to carry out the plan. SBIR and STTR applicants must use the SF424 Research and Related (R&R) application for electronic submission through grants.gov. Electronic submission of NIH Research Performance Progress Reports (RPPR) apply for non-competing continuations (e.g., second year of Phase II). OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program. 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

93.846 ARTHRITIS, MUSCULOSKELETAL AND SKIN DISEASES RESEARCHFEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institutes of Health, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Section 301, 437, 487, Public Law 78-410, 42 U.S.C 241.

OBJECTIVES:

To support research relevant to arthritis, musculoskeletal and skin diseases, the National Institute of Arthritis and Musculoskeletal and Skin Diseases (NIAMS) supports research training and basic and clinical investigations including epidemiology and clinical trials in the areas of skin and rheumatic diseases and musculoskeletal diseases. The Division of Skin and Rheumatic Diseases promotes and supports basic, epidemiological, and clinical studies of skin and rheumatic and related diseases. Studies range from determining the underlying basis and mechanisms of disease (including large genetic studies), to translational and clinical research aimed at the diagnosis, treatment, prediction, and/or prevention of disease. The skin program supports research in normal and diseased skin including keratinocyte biology and wound healing, and disorders such as psoriasis, atopic dermatitis and other chronic inflammatory skin disorders; the vesiculobullous diseases such as pemphigus, bullous pemphigoid, and epidermolysis bullosa; acne, alopecia areata, vitiligo, and skin neoplasia. The rheumatic disease program supports research in the systemic autoimmune diseases and arthritides, including systemic lupus erythematosus (SLE), systemic sclerosis, autoimmune myositis, rheumatoid arthritis, juvenile idiopathic arthritis, spondyloarthropathies, vasculitis, gout, Sjogren's syndrome, and fibromyalgia syndrome. In addition, the Division supports studies on the extracellular matrix, including research on Marfan syndrome, keloid formation, and pseudoxanthoma elasticum. The Division also supports biopsychosocial research related to rheumatic, musculoskeletal, or skin diseases. Topics include behavioral interventions, pain mechanisms, neuroendocrine and neuroimmune mechanisms, behavioral and social research, and epidemiology. The Division of Musculoskeletal Diseases supports studies of the skeleton and associated connective tissues. Broad areas of interest include skeletal development, metabolism, mechanical properties, and responses to injury. Among these diseases and skeletal disorders are osteoporosis; osteogenesis imperfecta; Paget's disease of bone; vitamin D refractory diseases; and rickets and osteochondrodysplasias. Other areas of interest include treatment of acute and chronic injuries, including carpal tunnel syndrome, repetitive stress injury, low back pain and clinical and epidemiological studies of osteoarthritis. The Division supports development of new technologies with the potential to improve treatment of skeletal disorders and facilitate the repair of trauma in the normal skeleton. These include drugs and nutritional interventions, joint replacement, bone and cartilage transplantation, biomarkers and gene therapy. In addition, bioengineering, sports medicine and musculoskeletal fitness are areas of special research emphasis. This Division also encourages and supports research on skeletal muscle, its diseases and disorders, and its central role in human physiology and exercise. Topics include the molecular structure of muscle and the molecular mechanisms that produce force and motion. Muscle biophysics, cell biology, muscle biology, muscle disorders and therapies, musculoskeletal development, tissue reengineering, and regenerative medicine are encompassed in this area as well. The Division also supports research into the biology of cartilage, tendons, ligaments, menisci, and intervertebral discs, including pre-clinical studies on injury and disease conditions affecting these tissues. NIAMS participates in the Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) and Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) programs. The SBIR program is intended to increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; to increase small business participation in Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation. The STTR program is intended to stimulate and foster scientific and technological innovation through cooperative research and development carried out between small business concerns and research institutions; to foster technology transfer between small business concerns and research institutions; to increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:PROJECT GRANTS*USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Research Grants provide funds for salaries, equipment, supplies, travel, and other expenses associated with scientific investigation relevant to program objectives. Individual National Research Service Awards (NRSAs) are made to individuals for research training in specified biomedical shortage areas. In addition, grants may be made to institutions to enable them to make NRSAs to individuals selected by them. Each individual who receives a NRSA is obligated upon termination of the award to comply with certain service and payback provisions. Small Business Innovation Research Phase I grants (of approximately 6-months' duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I that are likely to result in commercial products or processes. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to receive Phase II support. STTR Phase I grants (normally of 1-year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential on Phase II application.

Applicant Eligibility:

Research Grants: Individuals and public and private institutions, both nonprofit and for-profit, who propose to establish, expand, and improve research activities in health sciences and related fields. National Research Service Awards: Individuals must be nominated and sponsored by a public or private, for-profit or nonprofit institution having staff and facilities appropriate to the proposed research training program. All awardees must be citizens or have been admitted to the United States for permanent residence. To be eligible, predoctoral awardees must have completed the baccalaureate degree and postdoctoral awardees must have a professional or scientific degree (M.D., Ph.D., D.D.S., D.O., D.V.M., Sc.D., D. Eng., or equivalent domestic or foreign degree). Nonprofit domestic organizations may apply for the Institutional National Research Service grant. Small Business Innovation Research grants can be awarded only to domestic small businesses (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed, and have no more than 500 employees). Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. or its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council. STTR grants can be awarded only to domestic small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed and have no more than 500 employees) which partner with a research institution in cooperative research and development. At least 40 percent of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30 percent by the research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Research Grants: Although no degree of education is either specified or required, nearly all successful applicants have doctoral degrees in one of the sciences or professions. National Research Service Awards: Predoctoral awardees must have completed the baccalaureate degree and postdoctoral awardees must have a professional or scientific degree.

Credentials/Documentation:

The cost principles for awards under this program are set forth in HHS regulations at 45 CFR 75, Subpart E and Appendix IX (hospitals) to Part 75. In accordance with 45 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 75, the HHS Inspector General, the U.S. Comptroller General, or any of their duly authorized representatives have the right of timely and unrestricted access to any books, documents, papers, or other records of recipients that are pertinent to awards in order to make audits, examinations, excerpts, transcripts, and copies of such documents. This right also includes timely and reasonable access to a recipients personnel records for the purpose of interview and discussion related to such documents. The rights of access are not limited to the required retention period, but shall last as long as records are retained.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Project Grants provide funds for salaries, equipment, supplies, travel, and other expenses associated with scientific investigation relevant to program objectives. NRSA's are made directly to individuals for research training in specified biomedical shortage areas, or, to institutions to enable them to make NRSA's to individuals selected by them. Each individual who receives a NRSA is obligated upon termination of the award to comply with certain service and payback provisions. SBIR Phase I grants (of approximately 6-months duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I and that are likely to result in commercial products or processes. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to receive Phase II support. STTR Phase I grants (normally of 1-year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the Phase II application.

Applicant Eligibility:

Project Grants: Universities, colleges, medical, dental and nursing schools, schools of public health, laboratories, hospitals, State and local health departments, other public or private institutions, both non-profit and for-profit, and individuals who propose to establish, expand, and improve research activities in health sciences and related fields. NRSA's: Support is provided for academic and research training only, in health and health-related areas that are periodically specified by the National Institutes of Health. To be eligible, predoctoral awardees must have completed the baccalaureate degree and postdoctoral awardees must have a professional or scientific degree (M.D., Ph.D., D.D.S., D.O., D.V.M., Sc.D., D.Eng., or equivalent domestic or foreign degree). Individuals must be nominated and sponsored by a public or non-profit private institution having staff and facilities appropriate to the proposed research training program. All awardees must be citizens or have been admitted to the United States for permanent residence. Nonprofit domestic organizations may apply for the Institutional NRSA. SBIR and STTR grants can be awarded only to domestic small businesses that meet the following criteria: 1) Is independently owned and operated, is not dominant in the field of operation in which it is proposing, has a place of business in the United States and operates primarily within the United States or makes a significant contribution to the US economy, and is organized for profit; 2) Is (a) at least 51% owned and controlled by one or more individuals who are citizens of, or permanent resident aliens in, the United States, or (b) for SBIR only, it must be a for-profit business concern that is at least 51% owned and controlled by another for-profit business concern that is at least 51% owned and controlled by one or more individuals who are citizens of, or permanent resident aliens in, the United States. 3) Has, including its affiliates, an average number of employees for the preceding 12 months not exceeding 500, and meets the other regulatory requirements found in 13 C.F.R. Part 121. Business concerns are generally considered to be affiliates of one another when either directly or indirectly, (a) one concern controls or has the power to control the other; or (b) a third-party/parties controls or has the power to control both. STTR grants which "partner" with a research institution in cooperative research and development. At least 40 percent of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30 percent by the research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council.

Those grantees must retain the records pertinent to the entire competitive segment for 3 years from the date the FSR is submitted to NIH. Foreign organizations and Federal institutions must retain records for 3 years from the date of submission of the annual FSR to NIH. See 45 CFR 75.53 and 92.42 for exceptions and qualifications to the 3-year retention requirement (e.g., if any litigation, claim, financial management review, or audit is started before the expiration of the 3-year period, the records must be retained until all litigation, claims, or audit findings involving the records have been resolved and final action taken). Those sections also specify the retention period for other types of grant-related records, including F&A cost proposals and property records. This right also includes timely and reasonable access to a recipients personnel records for the purpose of interview and discussion related to such documents. The rights of access are not limited to the required retention period, but shall last as long as records are retained.

AND
Diabetes Control and Complications Trial (DCCT)/Epidemiology of Diabetes Interventions and Complications (EDIC) Study Research Group. Mortality in Type 1 Diabetes in the DCCT/EDIC Versus the General Population. Diabetes Care 39: 1378-1383, 2016.

Intensive Blood Glucose Management for Those with Type 1 Diabetes Preserves Heart Health and Reduces Risk of Early Mortality: A long-term NIDDK study reports that keeping blood glucose (sugar) as close to normal as possible for an average of 6.5 years early in the course of type 1 diabetes reduces cardiovascular (heart and blood vessel) disease and can reduce mortality to rates close to those seen in people of similar age in the general population. The landmark Diabetes Control and Complications Trial (DCCT) began in 1983. The DCCT randomly assigned half its participants to an intensive blood glucose management regimen designed to keep blood glucose levels as close to normal as safely possible, and half to the less intensive conventional treatment at the time. When DCCT ended in 1993, it was clear that intensive management had significantly reduced eye, nerve, and kidney complications, but at that time the participants were too young to determine their rates of cardiovascular disease. All DCCT participants were taught the intensive management regimen and invited to join the Epidemiology of Diabetes Interventions and Complications (EDIC) study. EDIC continued to monitor participants health, and overall blood glucose management has since been similar in both DCCT treatment groups. To study the long-term effects of the different treatments tested in the DCCT, researchers examined differences in cardiovascular problems, which can take many years to develop, between the former intensive and conventional treatment groups. After an impressive average 30-year follow-up, DCCT/EDIC researchers found that those who practiced intensive blood glucose management during the DCCT still had significantly reduced cardiovascular disease compared to those who did not, despite having similar blood glucose management for 20 years after the DCCT ended. Compared to the former conventional treatment group, the former intensive management group had a 30-percent reduced incidence of cardiovascular disease and 32 percent fewer major cardiovascular events (such as non-fatal heart attack, stroke, or death from cardiovascular disease) after 30 years of follow-up. These results were similar for both men and women who participated in the studies. However, the beneficial effects of intensively managing blood glucose during the DCCT appeared to be wearing off over time. For example, after 20 years of follow-up, DCCT/EDIC researchers reported that the former intensive treatment group had a 42-percent reduced risk of cardiovascular disease compared to the former conventional treatment group. After 30 years of follow-up, that number had fallen to 30 percent. Even with this reduction in protection, these new data show that a finite period of near-normal blood glucose management early in the course of type 1 diabetes can have beneficial effects on cardiovascular health for up to 30 years. Historically, those with type 1 diabetes have had a higher mortality rate than the general population. Previous DCCT/EDIC analyses compared intensive versus conventional blood glucose management and showed that those in the former intensive treatment group had reduced mortality compared with that of the former conventional treatment group. Now, mortality in the DCCT/EDIC study from its inception through 2014 was compared to 2013 national mortality data. Researchers found that overall mortality when both DCCT/EDIC treatment groups were combined was no greater than what would be expected in the general U.S. population. However, they found that the mortality rate in the former conventional treatment group was 31 percent higher than that seen in the general population. While the former intensive treatment groups mortality rate was below that in the general population, the difference was not statistically significant. Researchers also found participants long-term blood glucose control affected mortality rates, and those who had worse control had correspondingly worse mortality rates. This effect of blood glucose control on lifespan was more pronounced among women than among men. In general, these results suggest that the increased mortality historically seen in those with type 1 diabetes can be reduced or eliminated through careful management of blood glucose. Overall, these findings add to DCCT/EDICs decades of evidence demonstrating how people with type 1 diabetes can dramatically increase their chances of living long, healthy lives by practicing early, intensive blood glucose management.

Zhou K, Yee SW, Seiser EL, Pearson ER. Variation in the glucose transporter gene SLC2A2 is associated with glycemic response to metformin. Nat Genet 48: 1055-1059, 2016.

Variation in a Glucose Transporter Affects Response to the Type 2 Diabetes Drug, Metformin: New research indicates that a common variation in the gene encoding a protein that allows glucose (sugar) to move in and out of cells has a surprising impact on the effectiveness of the first-line anti-diabetes medication metformin. Metformin is a very widely used, safe, and helpful treatment for type 2 diabetes, but it is more effective in some people than in others, and scientists are trying to understand why. An international consortium of investigators looked at genomic variation in over 13,000 volunteers of varying ancestry who were taking metformin. They found that a common variation in the gene for a glucose transporter protein, GLUT2, had a significant impact on metformin effectiveness. (The gene encoding GLUT2 is known as SLC2A2.) Before treatment, people with two copies of a version of the gene (designated C) typically had somewhat worse blood glucose control, as detected by higher levels of HbA1c, a marker for glucose levels. Yet, these individuals had slightly better (lower) HbA1c when taking a standard dose of metformin than did people with two copies of the other version (T) of the GLUT2-encoding gene. This effect was most pronounced in people who were obese, but was also seen in those who were not. People with one copy of each version had an intermediate response to metformin. GLUT2 allows glucose to move passively in and out of cells in the liver, an organ with a critical role in regulating blood glucose levels. The GLUT2 that is produced by the C and T versions of the gene is the same, equally capable of allowing glucose movement. However, the researchers found that liver cells with the C version make less GLUT2 than liver cells with the T version. This suggests that in the absence of metformin, individuals with type 2 diabetes and the C version are at a disadvantage compared to those with the T version when it comes to regulating blood glucose levels, but that metformin treatment overcomes and even slightly reverses this effect. Metformin still works in people with two copies of the T version of the gene, but more of the drug or an additional medication would be needed to achieve the same degree of HbA1c reduction. This discovery has broad applicability, because the C and T versions of the gene are both common in a wide variety of racial/ethnic groups, albeit to differing degrees. For example, about 70 percent of African Americans have at least one copy of C, while 24 percent of Latinos do. With further research, tests to reveal a patient's GLUT2 gene version could one day help further precision medicine by allowing health care providers to tailor metformin dosage for that individual, so that he or she takes neither more nor less of the medication than needed.

Inge TH, Courcoulas AP, Jenkins TM, Buncher CR; for the Teen-LABS Consortium. Weight Loss and Health Status 3 Years after Bariatric Surgery in Adolescents. N Engl J Med 374:113-123, 2016.

Weight Loss and Health Benefits from Bariatric Surgery in Teens with Severe Obesity: In a study of teens with severe obesity, bariatric surgery resulted in substantial weight loss and improvements in health and quality of life 3 years after the surgeries were performed; the study also identified risks associated with the surgeries. These findings are from the Teen Longitudinal Assessment of Bariatric Surgery, or Teen-LABS, study. Obesity increases risk for type 2 diabetes, cardiovascular disease, and many other serious conditions. Previous research has shown that adults with severe obesity (also known as extreme obesity) can experience dramatic health benefits from bariatric surgery. However, very little has been known about the effects of this surgery in adolescents, particularly over the long-term even though it is used in clinical practice for this age group. Thus, researchers designed Teen-LABS, an observational study that enrolled adolescents who were already planning to have bariatric surgery. Their goal was to collect outcome data on health risks and benefits that could help with treatment decisions. Conducted at five U.S. clinical centers, Teen-LABS enrolled 242 people ages 13-19. Prior to surgery, all were obese, and nearly all had severe obesity, based on body mass index (BMI), a measure of weight relative to height. The majority of the participants in the study were Caucasian females, a demographic representative of patients who seek bariatric surgery at these clinical centers. The study focused on those who underwent either of two bariatric surgical procedures: gastric bypass (used for a majority of the teens), or sleeve gastrectomy. Before surgery, the participants average weight was 328 pounds. Three years after surgery, their weight decreased by an average of 90 pounds, or 27 percent. Some of the participants had type 2 diabetes, some had kidney disease, and many had high blood pressure or abnormal levels of blood lipids (cholesterol or triglycerides) prior to surgery. The study found that 95 percent of the teens who had type 2 diabetes had reversal of their disease, 86 percent of those with kidney damage experienced improvements in kidney function, and most of the teens with high blood pressure or lipid abnormalities saw improvements in these conditions 3 years after surgery. Additionally, 26 percent of the teens were no longer obese 3 years after surgery. Although a majority still had some level of obesity, not as many had severe obesity. The study also identified risks. During the study period, 13 percent of participants needed additional abdominal surgery, most commonly gallbladder removal. The study also found that although fewer than 5 percent of the teens were iron-deficient before surgery, more than half had low iron stores 3 years later. These results contribute important knowledge about the benefits and risks of bariatric surgery in adolescents. However, further research will be critical to determine the longer-term effects of bariatric surgery on health and well-being, including whether health improvements are sustained and whether additional risks emerge. This information will help teens, their parents, and their health care providers make more informed treatment decisions, so that young people with obesity can have improved health during adolescence and as they become adults.

Exploring the Genes That Keep the Guts Immune System in Check: Recent research into the genetics of inflammatory bowel disease (IBD) has pointed to abnormal interactions between the gut and the bacteria that inhabit it, implicating genetic defects in a process that cells use to break down microbial material. IBD is a painful and debilitating collection of diseases, including Crohns disease and ulcerative colitis, that are marked by inflammation and damage in the gut. The causes of IBD are unclear; however, the inflammation is believed to be caused by complicated interactions between genetic and environmental factors. In particular, research has pointed to an improper immune response to bacteria in the gut reaction that can be affected by human genetics. Variations in many areas of the genome have been associated with IBD, including some involved in immunity, but it has been difficult to determine how these variants might be contributing to the disease. Recently, two groups of researchers have identified how certain IBD genetic risk variants may affect the way gut cells respond to bacteria. Both groups focused on a process called autophagy, whereby damaged or unnecessary materials in cells including bacteria and bacterial components are packaged and broken down. One of the research groups concentrated on the genes ATG16L1 and NOD2, both of which code for proteins that are known to play important roles in autophagy and have variants that are implicated in IBD. The scientists found that immune cells from mice lacking the ATG16L1 protein were unable to suppress inflammation when exposed to a friendly type of bacteria called Bacteroides fragilis (B. fragilis) that normally resides in the human gut. B. fragilis helps keep the gut's immune system in check by delivering certain bacterial molecules to intestinal immune cells. They deliver the molecules in small spheres, called outer membrane vesicles, that bud from the bacterial cells outer coating. These vesicles are engulfed, packaged, and broken down by immune cells in the gut, where their components suppress an immune reaction. However, the researchers found that mouse immune cells lacking functional ATG16L1 protein were unable to respond to these vesicles, thus potentially failing to prevent an improper inflammatory reaction to B. fragilis and other friendly gut bacteria. Testing this idea in a mouse model of colitis, the scientists found that mice lacking functional ATG16L1 were not protected from colitis when they were given outer membrane vesicles from B. fragilis, but mice with ATG16L1 were. Mice and cells lacking functional NOD2 also had defective responses to these B. fragilis vesicles, supporting the idea that NOD2 could cooperate with ATG16L1 in suppressing inflammation. Importantly, mice or cells from male and female IBD patients with a human genetic variant of ATG16L1 that is implicated in IBD also did not respond to these vesicles, suggesting that a failure of ATG16L1-mediated autophagy could be contributing to disease in some people with IBD. Another team of scientists investigated the role of autophagy as a cellular defense mechanism against potentially harmful bacteria. Some types of bacteria can invade cells, causing disease, and cells typically use autophagy to package and degrade the invading microbes. Armed with this knowledge, the researchers performed genetic screening in a human cell line to identify genes implicated in IBD that are involved in both autophagy and cellular defense against bacteria. Among the genes they identified was GPR65, which has variants associated with IBD. GPR65 encodes a protein that is important for the proper function of lysosomes, which are acid-rich globules in cells that break down material packaged for autophagy. The researchers found that male and female mice without functional GPR65 protein were more prone to a disease resembling human IBD when given a type of bacteria that causes intestinal inflammation in mice. This effect was seen when GPR65 was absent from either the cells lining the gut or the immune cells within the gut. The lysosomes of intestinal and immune cells lacking GPR65 were unable to properly degrade invading bacteria. This could be explained by the observation that the lysosomes were not positioned properly in the cell and were not as acidic as normal lysosomes. Importantly, the researchers also tested a human cell line engineered to have a genetic variant found in male and female IBD patients, and immune cells from IBD patients who have this variant, and they found that these cells were also defective in destroying invading bacteria. These results suggest that this genetic variant of GPR65 could promote IBD by crippling autophagy and cellular defense against disease-causing bacteria. By showing that certain genetic variants identified in IBD patients can cause defects in the way cells relate to, or defend themselves from, bacteria in the gut, these results provide possible links between the genetics and the biological processes of IBD. They also open the door to future treatments that could help restore proper relationships between bacteria and the gut immune system in people with IBD.

Harper JD, Cunitz BW, Dunmire B, Bailey MR. First in Human Clinical Trial of Ultrasonic Propulsion of Kidney Stones. J Urol 195: 956-964, 2016. Moving Stones with Sound New Ultrasound Technology Repositions Kidney Stones in People: Researchers have developed new ultrasonic propulsion technology that can reposition kidney stones and facilitate stone fragment passage in people. Kidney stones are one of the most common disorders of the urinary tract. Smaller stones may pass with little or no pain, while larger stones may get stuck along the lower urinary tract and block the flow of urine, causing severe pain and/or bleeding. Current treatments for kidney stones, such as lithotripsy, may leave behind residual stone fragments. Most fragments will pass on their own, but others may grow larger, cause pain, and lead to the need for additional treatment. Toward the goals of finding safe ways to reposition kidney stones and encouraging the passage of stone fragments, scientists developed ultrasonic propulsion technology. The technology uses a handheld device to generate a real-time ultrasound image to visualize the kidney stone, and directs controlled, short bursts of ultrasound waves toward the stone to try to make it move. In the first human clinical trial testing this technology, scientists found that it could reposition kidney stones in 14 of 15 men and women studied, and cause some degree of movement of both large and small stones. In fact, one person experienced pain relief after a large, obstructing stone was moved. These findings suggest that the procedure could successfully reposition kidney stones in some people. The scientists then examined six study participants who had residual stone fragments after previously undergoing a lithotripsy procedure to treat their kidney stones. Four of them passed more than 30 fragments within days after undergoing the ultrasonic propulsion procedure, demonstrating that the technology could facilitate the passage of stone fragments. An unexpected finding was that the technology may also be useful for diagnosis in four people, what was thought to be one large stone was actually found to be a cluster of small, passable stones after they were moved. Stone size is an important factor that doctors consider when making treatment decisions, so having this diagnostic information could aid them in making those decisions. Importantly, the technology was found to be safe and did not cause pain. It is also noninvasive and could be performed in a clinic setting while people are awake without the need for sedation. Ultrasonic propulsion technology is still being refined and tested in people, but with further research, it may eventually be possible to use this new technology after procedures that leave residual stone fragments to facilitate their passage and potentially reduce the need for future intervention. The technology may also be useful for moving large, obstructing stones; repositioning stones before surgery; and serving as a diagnostic tool.

Orandi BJ, Luo X, Massie AB, Segev DL. Survival Benefit with Kidney Transplants from HLA-Incompatible Live Donors. N Engl J Med 374: 940-950, 2016.

Promising Result Reported from Multi-center Kidney Transplantation Study: Researchers have reported a survival benefit for people who received kidney transplants from HLA-incompatible live donors compared with either those remaining on the kidney transplant waiting list or those who received kidney transplants from immune system-compatible deceased donors. Human leukocyte antigen (HLA) is a protein on the surfaces of human cells that identifies the cells as self or foreign, and performs essential roles in immune responses. There are multiple forms of HLAs, which vary among individuals and are analyzed in laboratory tests to determine whether one person's organs and tissues are compatible with another person's, and could be used in a transplant. The more closely the HLAs match between a donor and recipient, the less likely a transplant will be rejected by the recipient's immune system. To overcome HLA-incompatible transplants, organ transplant recipients undergo desensitization protocols to remove antibodies in the blood that can harm the donated organ. Previous research from a single center indicated a survival benefit with kidney transplants from HLA-incompatible live donors as compared with those waiting for a compatible organ. To assess whether the survival benefit seen in the single-center study is generalizable on a national scale, a 22-center study was designed and conducted. The researchers assessed the survival of people who received kidney transplants from HLA-incompatible live donors, at multiple time points up to 8 years after transplantation. They compared these outcomes with the survival of two control groupsthose who remained on the waiting list or received a transplant from a deceased donor, and those who remained on the waiting list but did not receive a transplant. The multicenter study reported that a kidney transplant from an HLA-incompatible live donor was associated with a significant survival benefit compared to the two control groups. As a compatible live kidney donor is rarely available, these results suggest that patients now could consider the option to undergo incompatible transplantation. CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

The AHA has an ongoing data collection effort in place designed to capture information on the adoption and use of electronic health records, as well as users attitudes towards them in U.S. hospitals. Since 2008, ONC has supported the data collection and acquired the resulting data through a single-source cooperative agreement.

The AHA Annual Survey of Hospitals collects data from more than 6,300 hospitals through the U.S. This data is a primary resource for government agencies and has been used by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the U.S. Census Bureau, and CMS. The IT Supplement currently reaches more than 3,500 hospitals in the U.S. The IT Supplement is a separate collection effort from the AHAs general census tracking survey project that has been conducted continuously since 1946. Over this time span, the general census tracking survey has enjoyed an average response rate in excess of 75 percent. Such a high level of response is exceptional for a voluntary survey that includes both member and non-member hospitals. Building on the success of the general survey, the response rates for the IT Supplement have exceeded 60 percent each year since its inception, an exemplary response rate for a comparatively newer data collection effort.

As the leading acute care hospital membership organization (approximately 80 percent of non-federal acute care hospitals are members), the AHA is uniquely suited to build on the response rate successes of prior years. Its credibility and reputation as a hospital advocacy and research center are unmatched by any other organization. In addition, the AHA has more than 60 years of experience in survey development and design and effective data collection through mail-based, and now Internet-based, efforts.

In an effort to measure key components of interoperability, ONC has made it a priority to measure health care providers ability to electronically send, receive, find, and integrate information received from outside sources. Without funding to supplement the cost of data collection, the AHA would not conduct an IT survey of this scope. ONCs input on the survey instrument also allows the agency to track key performance measures regarding the interoperable exchange of health information by hospitals. The AHAs IT Supplement is the only known source that tracks key performance measures regarding the interoperable exchange of health information by hospitals. Our national progress on interoperability also has direct implications on the success of federal initiatives such as delivery system reform and achieving widespread interoperability as outlined in MACRA.

Tracking and reporting on progress allows us to know where we are collectively starting from, how much progress we have made over time, and whether we have met important milestones. In addition, the AHAs IT Supplement has the capability to track specific functionalities included or under consideration for future inclusion in federal programs (such as meaningful use). ONCs ability to provide input on the content of the IT Supplement to measure interoperability and EHR functionalities is critical to informing and evaluating federal health IT policies and programs.

This survey has served the public good in that it has been the foundation of important public research on EHR adoption, as well as examining the impact EHR use has on the quality and efficiency of care in inpatient settings. Examples of such studies include Holmgren et al. 2016, Lammers et al. 2016, Walker et al. 2016, and McLaughlin et al. 2015.

The purpose of this new FOA is to fund an organization to support the development, implementation, promotion, and ongoing maintenance of the NSSP Community of Practice (NSSP CoP). The purpose of the NSSP CoP is to promote the use and practice of syndromic surveillance among a broad range of public health practitioners and stakeholders interested in sharing knowledge to advance and improve syndromic surveillance use and practices. The NSSP CoP will focus on providing a peer-to-peer collaborative environment to foster and facilitate knowledge sharing and collaboration. Working together through the NSSP CoP will allow CDC to leverage the talents of a broad range of public health practitioners and stakeholders to enhance the nations electronic surveillance capacity.

Extramural research is also supported by the Office of Training and Workforce Development, the Office of Programs to Enhance Neuroscience Workforce Development, the Office of International Activities, the Division of Extramural Activities, the Division of Translational Research, the Division of Clinical Research. (2) To expand and improve the Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program; to increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; to increase small business participation in Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation. (3) To utilize the Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) program; to stimulate and foster scientific and technological innovation through cooperative research and development carried out between small business concerns and research institutions; to foster technology transfer between small business concerns and research institutions; to increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation. The NINDS also participates in the Academic Research Enhancement Award (AREA) Program, which is intended to provide research support to institutions currently having little support from the National Institutes of Health (NIH) support.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Research grants may be used to provide salaries, equipment, supplies, travel and other expenses for research. The grantee institution is obliged to expend grant funds prudently for the purposes stated in the application and award document. National Research Service Awards (NRSAs) are made directly to individuals for research training in specified biomedical shortage areas, or to institutions, to enable them to make NRSAs to individuals selected by them. Each individual who receives a NRSA may be obligated upon termination of the award to comply with service and payback provisions. Career Development Awards such as the Independent Scientist Awards (K02) provide support for newly independent scientists with health-related degrees who can demonstrate the need for a period of intensive research focus as a means of enhancing their research careers and facilitating their ability to obtain major NIH research awards. Mentored Clinical Research Scientist Development Awards (K08) provide support for clinically trained health professionals who need an additional period of sponsored research experience as a way to gain expertise in a research area new to the candidate or in an area that would demonstrably enhance the candidate's scientific career. The K01 and K22 Mentored Research Scientist Development Awards are used to promote diversity in neuroscience research and support an intensive supervised research career development experience for underrepresented, disabled or disadvantaged career neuroscientists. The Mentored Patient-Oriented Research Career Development Award (K23) provide support for a period of supervised study and research for clinically trained professionals who have the potential to develop into productive clinical investigators. SBIR and STTR Phase I grants (of approximately 6-months to 2 years in duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants (of approximately 1 to 3 years in duration) are for the continuation of the research efforts initiated in Phase I that are likely to result in commercial products or processes. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I, scientific and technical merit, and commercial potential of Phase II application. Grant funds may be expended only for the purpose stated in the application and award document. The NINDS participates in the NIH SBIR/STTR "fast track" and Phase IIB initiatives.

Applicant Eligibility:

Research Grants: Any public, private, nonprofit, or for-profit institution is eligible to apply. For-profit institutions are not eligible for Institutional National Research Service Awards but are eligible for Individual NRSAs. All proposals are reviewed for scientific merit, for evaluation of the qualifications of the investigators, for adequacy of the research environment, and for significance of the problem. Approved proposals compete for available funds. All Career Development Program awardees, with the exception of awardees of the Pathway to Independence Award (K99/R00), must be citizens or have been admitted to the United States for permanent residence. Candidates must be nominated for the program by a nonfederal public or private nonprofit institution located in the United States, its possessions or territories. To be eligible, postdoctoral NRSA trainees or fellows must have a professional or scientific degree (M.D., Ph.D., D.D.S., D.O., D.V.M., Sc.D., D. Eng., or equivalent domestic or foreign degree). SBIR grants can be awarded only to domestic small businesses (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed, and have no more than 500 employees). Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. In both Phase I and Phase II, the entire research must be performed in the United States. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council. STTR grants can be awarded only to domestic small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed and have no more than 500 employees) which "partner" with a research institution in cooperative research and development. At least 40 percent of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30 percent by the research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Health professionals, graduate students, health professional students, scientists, and researchers.

Credentials/Documentation:

Research grants are awarded to an institution in the name of an individual investigator. Persons qualified to carry out research related to the extramural programs described above may apply for funds to support their investigations. Mentored Career Development Program training must be conducted under the direction of a competent sponsor. National Research Service Awards: individual NRSA Fellowships for postdoctoral training: the candidate's academic record, research experience, citizenship, institutional sponsorship, and the proposed area and plan of training must be included in the application. Institutional Training Grants for predoctoral and postdoctoral training: the applicant institution must show the objectives, methodology and resources for the research training program; the qualifications and experience of directing staff; the criteria to be used in selecting individuals for stipend support; and a detailed budget and justification for the amount of grant funds requested. For-profit organizations' costs are determined in accordance with Subpart 31.2 of the Federal Acquisition Regulations. For other grantees, costs will be determined in accordance with HHS Regulations 45 CFR 75. For SBIR and STTR grants, the applicant organization (small business concern) must present in a research plan an idea that has potential for commercialization and furnish evidence that scientific competence, experimental methods, facilities, equipment, and funds requested are appropriate to carry out the plan. 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Research grant applications that request $500,000 or more in direct costs in any yearly budget period will not be accepted unless the NINDS has agreed to accept the application prior to submission (see <http://grants.nih.gov/grants/guide/notice-files/NOT-OD-02-004.html>). Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards applies to this program. 45 CFR 75 applies to this program. NIH has transitioned to the SF424 family of forms and electronic submission through Grants.gov for most research programs and funding mechanisms. All applications must be submitted in response to a specific funding opportunity announcement (FOA). The FOA will specify which forms should be used for submission.

Award Procedure:

Research Grant and Training Program applications are reviewed initially by technical panels, composed of scientific authorities, and by the National Advisory Neurological Disorders and Stroke Council composed of 18 leaders in medical science, education, and public affairs. Approved applications will compete on a merit basis for available funds. Formal award notices are transmitted to the grantee or awardee. All accepted SBIR/STTR applications are evaluated for scientific and technical merit by an appropriate scientific peer review panel and by a national advisory council or board. All applications receiving a priority score compete for available SBIR/STTR set-aside funds on the basis of scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the proposed research, program relevance, and program balance among the areas of research.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

Research grants: Approximately 6 to 9 months. Career program: From 7 to 8 months. SBIR/STTR applications: Approximately 6 to 9 months. Institutional Training Grants: From 6 to 12 months.

Appeals:

A principal investigator (P.I.) may question the substantive or procedural aspects of the review of his/her application by communicating with the staff of the Institute, and subsequently, the P.I. and applicant institution may appeal to the NINDS appeals officer. A description of the NIH Peer Review Appeal procedures is available on the NIH home page <http://grants.nih.gov/grants/guide/notice-files/NOT-OD-11-064.html>.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of 2 CFR 200, Subpart F - Audit Requirements, non-Federal entities that expend financial assistance of $750,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Non-Federal entities that expend less than $750,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in 2 CFR 200.503. In accordance with the provisions of 45 CFR 75 nonfederal entities that expend financial assistance of $750,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Nonfederal entities that expend less than $750,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in 45 CFR 75. Records must be available for review or audit by appropriate officials of the Federal agency, pass-through entity, and Government Accountability Office (GAO). In accordance with 45 CFR 75, for-profit (commercial) organizations are subject to audit requirements for a non-Federal audit if, during its fiscal year, it expended $750,000 or more under HHS awards and at least one award is a HHS grant or subgrant. The regulation incorporates the thresholds and deadlines of 45 CFR 75, but provides for profit organizations with two options for the type of audit that will satisfy the audit requirement:

1. a financial related audit of the HHS awards in accordance with Government Auditing Standards, or

2. an audit that meets the requirements of 45 CFR 75 .

In accordance with NIH Grants Policy Statement, Foreign grantees are subject to the same audit requirements as for-profit (commercial) organizations.

Records:

Grantees generally must retain financial and programmatic records, supporting documents, statistical records, and all other records that are required by the terms of a grant, or may reasonably be considered pertinent to a grant, for a period of 3 years from the date the annual FSR is submitted. For awards under SNAP (other than those to foreign organizations and Federal institutions), the 3-year retention period will be calculated from the date the FSR for the entire competitive segment is submitted. Those grantees must retain the records pertinent to the entire competitive segment for 3 years from the date the FSR is submitted to NIH. Foreign organizations and Federal institutions must retain records for 3 years from the date of submission of the annual FSR to NIH. See 45 CFR 75 for exceptions and qualifications to the 3-year retention requirement (e.g., if any litigation, claim, financial management review, or audit is started before the expiration of the 3-year period, the records must be retained until all litigation, claims, or audit findings involving the records have been resolved and final action taken). Those sections also specify the retention period for other types of grant-related records, including F&A cost proposals and property records. See 45 CFR 75 for record retention and access requirements for contracts under grants. In accordance with 45 CFR 75 of Federal Regulations, the HHS Inspector General, the U.S. Comptroller General, or any of their duly authorized representatives have the right of timely and unrestricted access to any books, documents, papers, or other records of recipients that are pertinent to awards in order to make audits, examinations, excerpts, transcripts, and copies of such documents. This right also includes timely and reasonable access to a recipients personnel records for the purpose of interview and discussion related to such documents. The rights of access are not limited to the required retention period, but shall last as long as records are retained.

93.855 ALLERGY AND INFECTIOUS DISEASES RESEARCH

Allergy and Infectious Diseases Research

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institutes of Health, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Small Business Research and Development Enhancement Act of 1992, 42 U.S.C 241; Public Health Service Act, Title IV, Section 301.

OBJECTIVES:

To assist public and private nonprofit institutions and individuals to establish, expand and improve biomedical research and research training in infectious diseases and related areas; to conduct developmental research, to produce and test research materials. To assist public, private and commercial institutions to conduct developmental research, to produce and test research materials, to provide research services as required by the agency for programs in infectious diseases, and controlling disease caused by infectious or parasitic agents, allergic and immunologic diseases and related areas. Projects range from studies of microbial physiology and antigenic structure to collaborative trials of experimental drugs and vaccines, mechanisms of resistance to antibiotics as well as research dealing with epidemiological observations in hospitalized patients or community populations and progress in allergic and immunologic diseases. Because of this dual focus, the program encompasses both basic research and clinical research. Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program expands and improves private sector participation in biomedical research. The SBIR Program intends to increase and facilitate private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; to increase small business participation in Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation. The Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) program stimulates and fosters scientific and technological innovation through cooperative research and development carried out between small business concerns and research institutions; to foster technology transfer between small business concerns and research institutions; to increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation. Research Career Development Awards support the development of scientists during the formative stages of their careers. Individual National Research Service Awards (NRSAs) are made directly to approve applicants for research training in specified biomedical shortage areas. In addition, Institutional National Research Service Awards are made to enable institutions to select and make awards to individuals to receive training under the aegis of their institutional program.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:PROJECT GRANTS*USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Beginning with fiscal year 1998, the direct costs awarded in the first year to a research project grant resulting from a competing renewal application will be limited to no more than a 20 percent increase over the direct costs awarded in the last non-competing year of that grant. Research grants provide funds for salaries, equipment, supplies, and travel. They also afford the collateral benefits of enriching the training experience of research workers. Grantees are expected to be judicious in using these funds. The application for a research grant sets forth specific terms and conditions and requires the signatures of the principal investigator and an official authorized to sign for the institution. Scientists and institutions are under an obligation to expend grant funds prudently for the purposes stated in the application and award document. For Research Career Development Awards (RCDAs) the scientists must demonstrate an outstanding research potential for independent research in the sciences related to transplantation, immunology, allergies, and immunological diseases. For National Research Service Awards (NRSAs), each individual who receives NRSA support is obligated upon termination of the award to comply with certain service and payback provisions. SBIR Phase I grants (of approximately 6-months' duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I and which are likely to result in commercial products or processes. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to receive Phase II support. STTR Phase I grants (normally of 1-year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the Phase II application.

Applicant Eligibility:

Universities, colleges, hospitals, laboratories, and other public or private nonprofit domestic institutions, including State and local units of government, and individuals are eligible to make application for grant support of research by a named principal investigator or a research career development candidate. For-profit organizations are also eligible, with the exception of NRSA. Individual NRSA awardees must be nominated and sponsored by a public or nonprofit private institution having staff and facilities appropriate to the proposed research training program. All NRSA awardees must be citizens or have been admitted to the United States for permanent residence. To be eligible, predoctoral candidates must have completed the baccalaureate degree, and postdoctoral awardees must have a professional or scientific degree (M.D., Ph.D., D.D.S., D.O., D.V.M., Sc.D., D.Eng., or equivalent domestic or foreign degree). The National Partnership for Women & Families (National Partnership or NPWF) and the Office of the National Coordinator of Health IT (ONC) will work collaboratively to develop and incorporate questions into the National Cancer Institutes Health Information National Trends Survey (HINTs) and once the results of the NCI survey results are available, the National Partnership will review the results, and assist ONC with the reporting and dissemination of the results. The National Partnerships involvement will enable ONC to collect, analyze and report on information that will help us better understand individuals access to their electronic health information and the use of their health information including tools that enable them to collect, share and use their health information to monitor and manage health care needs for themselves and their loved ones.

This cooperative agreement involves supporting ONCs efforts to measure and report on individuals access and use of their electronic health information. Working with ONC, the National Partnership will identify survey items, from its and ONCs past surveys, and help develop new survey items for inclusion in the HINTS survey. NCI will then conduct the HINTS survey including the added survey items. Once the HINTS survey results are available, the National Partnership will review and help interpret the survey results and assist ONC in the development of written data products, such as data briefs. Finally, the National Partnership will help disseminate the results through its various channels, including via webinars, blog posts and social media.

93.860 EMERGING INFECTIONS SENTINEL NETWORKS

NA

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act Sections 301(a)[42 U.S.C.241(a)], 317(k)(1)[42 U.S.C.247b(k)(1)], and 317(k)(2)[42 U.S.C.247b(k)(2)], as amended.

OBJECTIVES:

In its 1994 monograph, Addressing Emerging Infectious Disease Threats A Prevention Strategy for the United States, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) called for the establishment of provider-based Emerging Infections Sentinel Networks (EISNs) to monitor and evaluate conditions that are not covered by health department surveillance and that are likely to be seen by specific kinds of health providers. There are currently three provider-based networks established through CDC's EISN cooperative agreement programs: 1) Surveillance network of infectious disease specialists, 2) Global surveillance network of travel medicine clinics, and 3) Emergency department-based network of academically affiliated emergency departments for research on emerging infectious diseases. The first two networks (infectious disease specialists and travel medicine clinics) are non-research programs, and the third network (academically affiliated EDs) is a research program. These networks contribute to surveillance for emerging infectious diseases, including drug resistant, foodborne and waterborne, and vaccine-preventable or potentially vaccine-preventable diseases, and enhance information exchange leading to early identification of and response to trends and outbreaks.

Objectives for the provider-based sentinel networks include the following:

- To support linked groups of participating individuals or organizations in monitoring a variety of infectious disease problems and enhancing communication and collaboration among network members and the public health community;
- To serve as readily accessible mechanisms to address urgent public health infectious disease problems rapidly; and
- To improve understanding of specific public health issues, including, but not limited to, international travel, and enhance preparedness to meet new infectious disease threats among domestic and globally mobile populations. Additional objectives for the "research" EISN include:
 - To focus studies on the most important issues to be addressed by participating hospital EDs and CDC; and
 - To estimate the community burden of diseases.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Recipients may only expend funds for reasonable program purposes, including personnel, travel, supplies, and services, such as contractual. More detailed information regarding use of funding for specific projects/activities will be included in the published FOAs for this program. The full list of restrictions for this program are/will be included in the published Funding Opportunity Announcements for this program. General restrictions that apply are as follows:

- Recipients may only expend funds for reasonable program purposes, including personnel, travel, supplies, and services, such as contractual.
- Awardees may not generally use HHS/CDC/ATSDR funding for the purchase of furniture or equipment. Any such proposed spending must be identified in the budget.
- The direct and primary recipient in a cooperative agreement program must perform a substantial role in carrying out project objectives and not merely serve as a conduit for an award to another party or provider who is ineligible.

Applicant Eligibility:

Eligibility for this program is open, however, only institutions/organizations that meet and can demonstrate the necessary qualifications described in the published FOAs for this program should apply. Additional eligibility information is also described below:

There are both research and non-research funding opportunities under this program. For the research opportunity, only organizations currently operating a nationwide provider-based sentinel network that link academically affiliated hospital emergency departments in monitoring a variety of infectious disease problems are eligible. For the non-research opportunity, only organizations currently operating provider-based sentinel networks that link groups of participating individuals or organizations organized around either infectious disease clinicians or travel medicine in monitoring a variety of infectious disease problems are eligible. Applicants should refer to the published FOAs for more information regarding applicant eligibility.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

- Health Professionals
- Anyone/general public.

Credentials/Documentation:

Only organizations currently operating provider-based sentinel networks that link academically affiliated hospital emergency departments, or groups of participating individuals/organizations organized around either infectious disease clinicians or travel medicine, in monitoring a variety of infectious disease problems should submit an application. Applicants must provide documentation of the applicants qualifications, standing, and relationships in representing a group of academically affiliated hospital emergency departments or providers in a sentinel network. Include letters of support from network members. 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards applies to this program. Detailed instructions regarding application procedures and requirements will be included in the published Funding Opportunity Announcements for this program.

Award Procedure:

Applications that are complete and responsive will be evaluated for scientific and technical merit by an Objective Review Panel (for the non-research funding opportunity) or a Special Emphasis Panel (SEP) (for the research funding opportunity) in accordance with CDC review policies and procedures. CDC will not review incomplete and non-responsive applications. Complete and responsive applications will undergo the appropriate review process (Objective Review or SEP Review), receive a written critique and be scored according to the published review criteria. Any deviation from this process will be detailed in the published FOA for this program.

Successful applicants will receive a Notice of Award (NOA) from the CDC Procurement and Grants Office. The NOA shall be the only binding, authorizing document between the recipient and CDC. The NOA will be signed by an authorized Grants Management Officer. Initial award provides funds for the first budget period (usually 12 months) and the NOA will indicate support recommended for the remainder of the project period, allocation of Federal funds by budget categories, and special conditions, if any. Once competing applicants have been selected for the first year of funding in the project period, those selected will be eligible to submit annual non-competitive continuation applications for each successive budget period of the project period.

Awardees may utilize some of their time in academic and clinical duties if such work is closely related to their research training. Awards may be made to institutions to enable them to make NRS awards to individuals selected by them. Each individual awardee is obligated upon termination of the award to comply with certain service and payback provisions. SBIR Phase I grants (of approximately 6-months' duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I and which are likely to result in commercial products or processes. STTR Phase I grants (normally of 1- year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential on Phase II application.

Applicant Eligibility:

Universities, colleges, medical, dental and nursing schools, schools of public health, laboratories, hospitals, State and local health departments, other public or private institutions, both nonprofit and for-profit, and individuals. National Research Service Award: Support is provided for academic and research training only, in health and health-related areas that are periodically specified by the National Institutes of Health. Individuals with a professional or scientific degree are eligible (M.D., Ph.D., D.D.S., D.O., D.V.M., Sc.D., D.Eng., or equivalent domestic or foreign degree). Predoctoral research training grants to institutions are also supported. Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. or its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council. STTR grants can be awarded only to domestic small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed and have no more than 500 employees) which "partner" with a research institution in cooperative research and development. At least 40 percent of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30 percent by the research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

This program has no matching requirements.
This program does not have MOE requirements.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Awards are usually made annually with no project period to exceed 5 years in length. National Research Service Awards: From 1 to 3 years. SBIR: Phase I awards are generally for 6 months; Phase II awards normally may not exceed 2 years. STTR Phase I awards are generally for 1 year; Phase II awards normally may not exceed 2 years. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: Each year, submitted progress reports for awarded grants are reviewed, and if satisfactory progress is demonstrated, a Notice of Grant Award is issued.

Reports:

NIH requires that grantees periodically submit financial and progress reports. Other required reports may include annual invention utilization reports, lobbying disclosures, conflict of interest reports, audit reports, reports to the appropriate payment points (in accordance with instructions received from the payment office), and specialized programmatic reports. Grantees also are expected to publish the results of research in peer-reviewed journals and to provide information to the public on the objectives, methodology, and findings of their NIH-supported research activities, as specified in Administrative Requirements Availability of Research Results: Publications, Intellectual Property Rights, and Sharing Research Resources.

The GMO is the official receipt point for most required reports. However, NIH has centralized the submission of annual progress reports; details are provided below. In addition, electronic submission through the eRA Commons is required for some annual progress reports and available for all closeout documents (final grant progress reports, final invention statements and certifications, and final financial status reports). When a paper non-competing continuation progress report is submitted, only a signed original is required; no copies are required. Submission of these reports to an address other than the centralized one may result in delays in processing of the non-competing continuation award or the submission being considered delinquent. FFRs must be electronically submitted to OFM (see Financial Reports below) through the eRA Commons eFFR feature unless otherwise indicated in the awards terms and conditions.

Grantees are allowed a specified period of time to submit required financial and final progress reports (see 45 CFR parts 74.51 and 74.52, 92.40 and 92.41, and the discussion in this subsection). Failure to submit complete, accurate, and timely reports may indicate the need for closer monitoring by NIH or may result in possible award delays or enforcement actions, including withholding, removal of certain NIH Standard Terms of Award, or conversion to a reimbursement payment method (also see Administrative Requirements Enforcement Actions). The schedule for submission of the non-competing continuation progress report is discussed in the next subsection. The FFR has a dedicated section to report Federal cash receipts and disbursements. For domestic grantees this information is submitted quarterly directly to the PMS using the web-based tool. Quarterly reports are due 30 days following the end of each calendar quarter. The reporting period for this report continues to be based on the calendar quarter. Questions concerning the requirements for this quarterly financial report should be directed to the PMS.

For awards issued to foreign institutions after October 1, 2012, even though payment is now through PMS, the requirement for quarterly cash reporting does not apply. These awards are now administered in PMS using subaccounts and payments will be specific to each grant at the time the grantee draws funds. Progress reports usually are required annually as part of the non-competing continuation award process. NIH may require these reports more frequently. The Non-Competing Continuation Progress Report (PHS 2590) or equivalent documentation (e.g., Research Performance Progress Report [RPPR]) must be submitted to, and approved by, NIH to non-competitively fund each additional budget period within a previously approved project period (competitive segment). Except for awards subject to SNAP, the progress report includes an updated budget in addition to other required information.

NIH continues to transition to using the RPPR for progress reporting. The RPPR is a federal wide format for the submission of required annual or other interim performance reporting on grant and cooperative agreement awards. The transition to RPPR will be implemented in phases through a module in the eRA Commons. The RPPR is now required for all SNAP and fellowship awards. The PHS 2590 non-competing continuation progress report is currently required for all other NIH awards; however, the RPPR will eventually replace the PHS 2590 paper progress report. Reports of expenditures are required as documentation of the financial status of grants according to the official accounting records of the grantee organization. NIH requires all financial expenditure reports to be submitted using the Federal Financial Report (FFR) system located in the eRA Commons. This includes all initial FFRs being prepared for submission and any revised FSR/FFRs being submitted or re-submitted to NIH. The eRA Commons Federal Financial Report (FFR) system allows participants to view information on currently due and late expenditure reports and to submit these reports electronically to NIH. Paper expenditure reports are not accepted. Expenditure data submitted to NIH is initially reviewed and accepted by OFM. NIH IC grants management staff also review these expenditure reports.

Except for awards under SNAP and awards that require more frequent reporting, the FFR is required on an annual basis. An annual FFR is required for awards to foreign organizations made prior to October 1, 2012 and Federal institutions made prior to October 1, 2013, whether or not they are under SNAP. When required on an annual basis, the report must be submitted for each budget period no later than 90 days after the end of the calendar quarter in which the budget period ended. The reporting period for an annual FFR will be that of the budget period for the particular grant; however, the actual submission date is based on the calendar quarter. Failure to submit timely reports may affect future funding. The report also must cover any authorized extension in time of the budget period. If more frequent reporting is required, the NoA will specify both the frequency and due date.

In lieu of the annual FFR expenditure data, NIH will monitor the financial aspects of grants under SNAP by using the information submitted directly to PMS. The GMO may review the report for patterns of cash expenditures, including accelerated or delayed drawdowns, and to assess whether performance or financial management problems exist. For these SNAP awards, FFR expenditure data is required only at the end of a competitive segment. It must be submitted within 90 days after the end of the competitive segment and must report on the cumulative support awarded for the entire segment. An FFR must be submitted at this time whether or not a competing continuation award is made. If no further award is made, this report will serve as the final FFR. The grantee institution is required to submit a progress report on an annual basis for each grant award, which includes monitoring of performance.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of 2 CFR 200, Subpart F - Audit Requirements, non-Federal entities that expend financial assistance of $750,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Non-Federal entities that expend less than $750,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in 2 CFR 200.503. In addition, grants and cooperative agreements are subject to inspection and audits by DHHS and other Federal officials.

Records:

Expenditures and other financial records must be retained for 3 years from the day on which the grantee submits the last expenditure report for the report period.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2016: The Eunice Kennedy Shriver National Institute of Child Health and Human Development (NICHD) supports a broad research portfolio uniquely focused on human health and development, from before birth through adulthood. In scientific domains encompassing developmental biology, reproductive health, pediatrics, population sciences, and medical rehabilitation, NICHD supports research that helps us better understand how health and disease develop over time, to prevent, reduce and treat illness and disability in current and future generations.

The lifelong process of human development is shaped by an array of complex physiological processes that interact with behavioral, social, and environmental factors. Fundamental scientific knowledge about how these processes work may not yield commercially-viable new treatments quickly or at all. Yet fundamental research is the foundation of medical progress. Basic research helps identify crucial points in the disease process for treatment or prevention; reveals new compounds for testing as candidate therapies; pinpoints previously unsuspected risk factors for multiple conditions; and generates new approaches to prevention and cure.

NICHDS support for fundamental science emphasizes technologies and tools to understand both normal development and disease, as well as creating new ways to measure progress in improving health. NICHD actively promotes data sharing and supports publicly-available databases and biobanks to help ensure that relevant materials are available for translational research in maternal, pediatric, and reproductive health. NICHDS continuing efforts to understand the crucial role of the human placenta has already begun to provide an unprecedented wealth of information on how placental function affects maternal and fetal health. NICHD also continues to prioritize continuing investment in basic and translational research related to structural birth defects, which are a major cause of infant death in the United States.

Populations of primary interest to NICHD -- children, pregnant women, and persons with physical and intellectual disabilities have too often and for too long been prescribed drugs, devices, and other treatments that were designed for and tested in groups from which they differ physiologically. Parents, pregnant women, individuals with disabilities, and their health care providers are often put in an extremely difficult position in which they have little or no information to assess whether the treatment is more dangerous than the disease. NICHD supports clinical research that specifically focuses on these populations, in the real-world settings where they receive treatment including neonatal and pediatric intensive care units; fertility, rehabilitation, and HIV clinics; day care and schools; and physicians offices. For example, the neonatal intensive care units across the United States that form NICHDS Neonatal Research Network are currently conducting clinical trials on potential treatments for neonatal sepsis, necrotizing enterocolitis, and anemia to help the smallest and most vulnerable infants. The Zika in Infants and Pregnancy (ZIP) study intends to enroll 10,000 pregnant women in areas where Zika virus is prevalent, including Puerto Rico, Brazil, and Colombia. Continuing this line of research will allow scientists to obtain data on the developmental effects of the virus on children, including understanding the relationship between timing of exposure and development of microcephaly. This will help clinicians, parents, and educators to better support children affected by prenatal exposure to Zika.

Fundamental biomedical and behavioral science is essential to prevention and health promotion. Recent scientific findings show that pregnancy is a stress test that indicates a higher risk for more serious problems as women age. For example, NICHD-supported research has shown that women with pregnancy complications such as preeclampsia and gestational diabetes have a higher risk of developing heart disease and type 2 diabetes later in life. NICHD research has also demonstrated that lifestyle factors such as nutrition and exercise can mitigate these risks.

Physical activity is a key component to maintaining physical health and decreasing secondary health conditions throughout life. However, individuals with disability experience a number of physical, social, and environmental barriers that make it more difficult for them to participate in physical activity. NICHDS National Center for Medical Rehabilitation Research (NCMRR) studies interventions that can promote, monitor, and sustain physical activity programs for people with disabilities in real-world settings (e.g., home, community, workplace, and school). This includes the use of engineering and social-science approaches to understand the effect of environmental factors, monitor individual participation, and promote overall health and independence.

NICHD continues to prioritize funding for new and early-stage investigators, to ensure that there is a pipeline of scientists and clinicians who are focused on the health problems of the communities NICHD serves, and to make certain that scientific progress continues to the next generation. Over the past two years NICHD has convened a Training Task Force that has examined outcomes for a variety of different training pathways. NICHD will use the evidence gathered from the Task Forces analysis to preferentially fund mechanisms that require individuals, rather than institutions, to apply for training opportunities.

The broad scientific opportunities at NICHD come with the recognition that thoughtful prioritization and careful stewardship are essential. NICHD has implemented data-driven approaches to portfolio analysis, program evaluation, and performance assessment. This will help the Institute make strategic funding choices, focusing on areas that hold the most promise to improve the health of children, pregnant women, individuals with disabilities, families, and communities. Through a visioning process that has occurred over the past several years, NICHD has identified scientific research priorities that have been shared with the research community and the public. NICHD will use these priorities to identify key areas for continued support. Fiscal Year 2017: Child Health: Child health research ranges from basic scientific investigations of biological processes that control healthy and atypical development to clinical studies in pediatric pharmacology, pediatric HIV and associated infections, nutrition science, pediatric endocrinology, pediatric trauma and critical illness, and other aspects of pediatric medicine. NICHDS strong fundamental science portfolio in developmental biology has paved the way for efforts to understand and ultimately prevent structural and functional birth defects, a leading cause of death and disabilities in children. Through intramural and extramural programs, NICHD supports collaborative teams of basic and clinical scientists studying the developmental biology, epidemiology, and genetics of structural birth defects. Scientists also are utilizing and expanding the genomic sequencing data developed under the Common Funds Gabriella Miller Kids First Pediatric Research Program, with one of its two focal areas on structural birth defects.

Because children differ physiologically from adults, medications developed and tested in adults often work differently in children. In some cases, childrens bodies clear medications more quickly, which may mean that effective doses need to be higher or given more often than the doses suggested by adult health care guidelines. In other cases, a proportionally lower dose may be effective in children and reduce the potential for damaging side effects. Lacking specific information on the safety and effectiveness of drugs in children, yet needing to treat the child, physicians often prescribe medications off label that is, they prescribe medications that have been approved and labeled for use in adults but not in children. NICHD is working to expand the limited existing scientific knowledge base on the safety, efficacy, and appropriate doses of pharmaceuticals for children. For example, NICHD has launched a study to assess the risks and benefits of two drugs (risperidone and aripiprazole), which are commonly used to treat schizophrenia and bipolar disorder in children and adolescents, but are not labeled for pediatric use. Recently, researchers tested the efficacy and safety of drugs used for gastric reflux in low birth weight infants. Histamine-2 receptor blockers (brand names include Zantac and Pepcid) have been shown to be safe and effective against gastric reflux in adults and older children. Because of concerns about the adverse effects of gastric reflux, which exposes the esophagus to stomach acids, the drugs also have been commonly used in very low birth weight infants, although the drugs efficacy and safety have not been tested specifically in these most fragile babies. Many of these infants are susceptible to necrotizing enterocolitis, an infection-triggered intestinal inflammation, as well as sepsis, an overwhelming, systemic inflammatory reaction to infection. Both conditions are difficult to prevent or treat and can swiftly prove fatal. The research showed that use of the histamine-2 receptor blockers in very low birth weight infants was associated with a significantly increased risk of death, necrotizing enterocolitis, or sepsis. This finding supports efforts to minimize exposure to these drugs in low birth weight infants, thus improving their care.

Children and adolescents with HIV, or who were exposed to HIV in the womb, are surviving and living full lives in greater numbers than ever before. However, research supported by NICHD shows that both HIV and the drugs used to treat it can cause long-term health issues. For example, NICHD-supported scientists compared two antiretroviral drug regimens in South African children with HIV. They found that one of the drugs (efavirenz) was associated with less risk to bone formation than the other (ritonavir-boosted lopinavir or LPV/r). Adults with HIV are known to be at elevated risk of osteoporosis and bone fractures, apparently due to the effects of HIV, inflammatory proteins (cytokines), and antiretroviral therapy on bone cells and bone turnover. Any interference with bone formation in childhood and adolescence is of concern, because 85 to 90 percent of adult peak bone mass is achieved during this period, and shortfalls set the stage for osteoporosis and fractures in adulthood. The LPV/r regimen, recommended by the World Health Organization, is widely used for children with HIV. The results of this study suggest limiting LPV/r exposure in HIV positive children once viral suppression has been achieved, and using other medications to keep HIV in

For children affected by trauma or critical illness, evidence-based emergency and critical care can be lifesaving. NICHDs Collaborative Pediatric Critical Care Research Network (CPCCRN), including seven pediatric intensive care units across the United States, aims to improve care for critically ill and injured children. For example, one of CPCCRN's current studies is assessing the drug Granulocyte Macrophage Colony Stimulating factor (GM-CSF) for use in severely injured children. Already FDA-approved for use in children with blood disorders, GM-CSF helps to improve immune function. Because injured children in the pediatric intensive care unit are especially vulnerable to infection, the researchers aim to establish the optimal dose of this medication that will help improve immune function for children with severe traumatic injury. Ultimately, scientists hope GM-CSF can reduce the risk of serious infection in these children. Another research team seeks to learn more about developing new approaches to lessen the effects of severe burns over a large proportion of a child's body. In addition to the initial skin damage, serious burns can have long-term effects of multi-organ dysfunction, degradation of muscle protein, insulin resistance (pre-diabetes), and increased risk for infection. The scientists found that even two years after a burn, mitochondrial (energy-producing structures within the muscle cells) function was altered, compared with healthy mitochondria. The researchers hope that understanding the role of mitochondrial alterations could help pave the way for interventions to address long-term effects of severe burns.

Rehabilitation: Through the National Center for Medical Rehabilitation Research (NCMRR), NICHD fosters research and research training to enhance the health, productivity, independence, and quality of life of people with disabilities. With a dedicated budget, this program supports a broad range of research, including efforts to understand the underlying biology of injury and disability, and the body's mechanisms of recovery and adaptation.

Rehabilitation research investments are guided by the comprehensive five-year NIH Research Plan on Rehabilitation, developed in 2016. The plan was developed under the leadership of NCMRR in collaboration with stakeholders across the NIH and other Federal agencies, as well as researchers and representatives of individuals with disabilities and practitioners. The plan identifies six priority areas and details research plans and opportunities in each of them:

Rehabilitation across the lifespan: Models of rehabilitation may require different approaches or considerations at different stages in life. For example, play-based rehabilitation approaches can help young children build muscle strength and learn new skills, while adaptive physical exercise programs can assist seniors in maintaining their motor functions.

Family and community: Recovery may start in a hospital, but outpatient services like speech or physical therapy and mental health services are key to successful daily and long-term functioning. Caregivers play an essential but understudied role in rehabilitation management and improving quality of life for people with disabilities.

Technology use and development: Technology has played a significant role in research and clinical applications in rehabilitation science, including assistive technology, orthotics, prosthetics, and others. Computational science has also played a significant role, especially in providing advanced algorithms for device control and increased use of modeling and simulation. Interdisciplinary collaboration will continue to be essential to harnessing technology to improve rehabilitation services.

Research design and methodology: Improved research approaches are needed to address challenges in rehabilitation research, such as generating consistent clinical data from individuals with a variety of underlying conditions.

Translational science: Rehabilitation research is poised to capitalize on advances in fundamental science. Genomic and other cell-based, process-level contributors to plasticity and healing are now better understood, potentially allowing precision medicine approaches to be used in rehabilitation research.

Building research capacity and infrastructure: To expand the potential of rehabilitation research, NIH will continue its support for training the next generation of rehabilitation scientists, and supporting interdisciplinary collaboration through courses, consultation, and collaboration.

NCMRR places a special emphasis on translational research to apply gains in fundamental science to creating real-world interventions that can help people with disabilities where they live and work. In particular, NCMRR-supported researchers study the body's self-repair mechanisms so they can understand and potentially harness those mechanisms. In a recent study, scientists found that people with cerebral palsy have muscle weakness that is not related to the oxygen-fueled processes within mitochondria, the specialized structures within cells that produce the energy that cells and tissues need to function. This may open other avenues to understanding potential causes and treatments for cerebral palsy.

The rehabilitation programs activities include a special emphasis on research related to rehabilitation for stroke, spinal cord injury, and traumatic brain injury (TBI), frequently in collaboration with other NIH ICs and outside organizations. The long-term effects of TBIs are not well understood, since most studies are limited to irregular observations of TBI patients during a short period of time. Researchers analyzed years of annual cognitive testing on over 7,000 participants in three longitudinal studies, with a subset consenting to autopsy. The scientists found that people who had experienced TBI with loss of consciousness had a higher risk for symptoms of Parkinson's disease and related conditions.

NCMRR takes a collaborative approach to rehabilitation science, working with other NIH institutes, federal agencies, the business community, advocates, and other stakeholders. In a project supported by NCMRR and NINDS, scientists tested a new imaging technique that may one day permit diagnosis of the progressive brain disorder known as chronic traumatic encephalopathy (CTE) while a patient is still alive. CTE is most commonly associated with repetitive blows to the head (concussions, TBI), such as those that occur in football, boxing, and hockey. Currently, the only way to diagnose CTE definitively is examination of postmortem brain tissue, for distinctive deposits of the tau protein and other abnormalities that characterize the neurodegeneration of CTE. The new technique uses a type of imaging known as positron emission tomography (PET) with a novel ligand a radioactive substance that localizes to the proteins of interest, which enabled the PET scans to produce visual images of tau abnormalities in the brain. When the scientists tried the technique with a retired professional football player with early CTE symptoms and a history of 22 concussions, they found a ligand pattern that suggested extensive abnormal tau deposits. Though further development and testing of the technique is needed, it may one day inform decisions for patients still functioning at relatively high levels despite CTE symptoms about continuing or halting high risk activities. The technique could also help to evaluate therapies to interrupt CTE progression. Fiscal Year 2018: Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities: The program in intellectual and developmental disabilities (IDD) supports basic, translational, and clinical research and research training to advance knowledge of origins of common and rare disorders such as Down syndrome (DS), Fragile X syndrome, Rett syndrome, inborn errors of metabolism, and autism spectrum disorders (ASD). Evidence shows that early detection of conditions that impair a child's intellectual development, and beginning therapy as soon as possible may increase the likelihood of better outcomes. Accordingly, IDD research encompasses studies of newborn screening, as well as the earliest diagnosis, treatment, and management of IDDs and other conditions. The IDD program also supports research to understand the complex processes through which these disorders compromise cognitive, emotional, social, and physical development in infants and children and throughout the lifespan. In searching for the origins of ASD, for example, NICHD-supported researchers recently found that activation of maternal immune responses midway through a pregnancy may increase the risk of both ASD and intellectual disability (ID) in a child.

For years, many scientists believed that IDs were permanent and that it was not feasible to improve cognitive function. Recent animal research suggests otherwise, showing that it may be possible to develop medications to improve brain function and learning in people with some types of ID. With NICHD support, scientists are taking a critical step to develop ways to measure cognitive changes in people with ID over time. Using NIH-developed cognitive tests originally tested in the general population, researchers conducted a pilot study with people of varying ages with Fragile X syndrome, DS, autism, and other causes of ID. They discovered that the tests could be used to measure important functions like working memory, processing speed, and vocabulary in individuals with IDs, and to track these changes over time. With these tools, researchers will be better able to assess both clinical and behavioral interventions to improve or maintain cognitive function in individuals with IDs.

Another core component of the IDD program focuses on understanding, describing, and managing comorbid conditions in individuals with ID. For example, now that people with DS are living far longer than they were 50 years ago, it has become apparent that middle-aged adults with DS have a much higher risk than the general population of developing Alzheimer's disease. Both conditions are characterized by neurodegeneration, the breakdown of proteins and other structures of the brain. In a recent comparison of postmortem brain tissues from individuals with DS, DS and Alzheimers, and those with healthy brains, researchers focused on a specific process (ubiquitinylation) in the protein breakdown. They found patterns in this process that varied in the atypical tissue by diagnosis and by age. The patterns suggested inefficiencies in the process that can result in a buildup of damaged proteins, which may contribute to Alzheimers symptoms. Further study of the process could lead to insights on how to track or treat neurodegenerative disorders, which in turn may also have relevance for the general population of aging adults.

Research that can assist clinicians and others in helping families keep children with ID healthy and safe is an important area of IDD research. Results from a recent analysis of national emergency department data on pediatric injury-related visits found significantly higher rates of injuries in youth with ID, especially those with ASD. The investigators stressed the need for developing prevention and monitoring programs to keep youth with ASD or ID safe in their communities. Additionally, individuals with DS are known to experience sleep problems, including obstructive sleep apnea and/or behavioral sleep problems, such as waking up for long periods at night and needing parental attention. Testing for sleep problems and follow-up treatment if needed is recommended for all young children with DS. However, NICHD-supported researchers analyzed electronic health records at a large specialized children's hospital, and found that fewer than half of young patients with DS had undergone the recommended diagnostic testing. These findings emphasize the importance of screening for sleep problems in children with DS, referring children with sleep problems to appropriate specialists, and educating families about the importance of diagnosing and treating any sleep problems.

Demography and Behavior: The program in demography and behavior supports research and research training in the characteristics and dynamics of populations and subpopulations, to increase understanding of the causes and consequences of population structure and change in such areas as fertility, family demography and functioning, urbanization, migration, and subsequent implications for behavioral and social influences on health. Researchers supported by this program analyze how demographic factors relate to health and health behavior. One team of researchers used data from a nationally representative survey of over 30,000 adolescents to assess prescription opioid misuse in adolescents aged 12-17 years. An estimated 6.8 percent of rural teens and 5.3 percent of teens in large urban areas reported misusing opioids in the previous year. Rural adolescents perceived substance use to be less risky, and were more likely to smoke and engage in binge drinking but were less likely to use marijuana. Regardless of whether they lived in a rural or urban area, teens that misused opioids most commonly reported friends or family as the source of the drug. Rural teens were more likely than urban teens to report having received opioids from a physician or dealer. These results may help public health officials improve programs to decrease opioid misuse, particularly in rural areas.

The demography and behavior program encompasses research in a wide range of developmental science areas, from trajectories of typical cognitive, affective, and social development to studies of language, attention, reasoning, problem-solving and multiple mechanisms underlying typical learning and learning disabilities. The NICHD's Learning Disabilities Research Centers support research to identify genetic and neurobiological characteristics of children, adolescents, and adults with learning disabilities; develop and validate classification systems for learning disabilities; expand knowledge about ways to improve comprehension for individuals who struggle with reading; assess the impact of ADHD on reading; and investigate the relationship between executive function skills and learning. Complementing the Centers, the NICHD's Learning Disabilities Innovation Hubs focus on understudied research topics that address the causes, symptoms, and treatments of learning disabilities that impact reading, writing, and mathematics.

Recently, NICHD researchers showed that children who do not know how to read can still recognize that written words symbolize meanings differently than pictures do. This is an important developmental aspect in learning how to read; though this concept can appear fundamental to literate adults, it shows that children at a very early age already know more than previously thought. Researchers presented more than 100 preschool children (aged three- to five-years-old) with a drawing or a written word, said what the word or drawing portrayed, then had a puppet illustrate the same or a different word, and asked the children whether the puppet knew what the word or drawing was. For example, if the puppet indicated that the word dog was a baby or a puppy, then many children said that the puppet was wrong. However, many children were more likely to accept synonyms for the pictures, showing that the written words had more specific meanings than pictures. By using a novel, straightforward task that did not require the children to write, the researchers demonstrated that children possess some of the most basic conceptual knowledge of the symbolic nature of printed words before they can actually read.

Finally, the research interests of the demography and behavior program also include studies that identify the relationships among behavior, prevention, and risks to health. For example, NICHD supported a study to obtain objective data on the frequency of risk factors in the infant night-time sleep environment associated with Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) and sleep-related infant deaths, such as accidental suffocation, entrapment, and strangulation in bed. The researchers recruited healthy newborns and their parents, and then videotaped the infants sleeping in their homes for one night at one month, three months, and six months of age. The researchers analyzed the videos, finding that even when parents are aware they are being recorded, they often place their infants in unsafe sleep environments, including non-recommended sleep surfaces, placing infants on their sides or stomachs to sleep, or allowing loose items on the sleep surface such as bedding, bumper pads, pillows, and stuffed animals. The results indicate that still more parent education is needed, particularly regarding safe sleep environments.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:PROJECT GRANTS*USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Research grants are intended to support the direct costs of a project in accordance with an approved budget, plus an appropriate amount for facilities and administrative costs. Grantees must agree to administer the grant in accordance with the regulations and policies governing the research grants program of the Public Health Service. National Research Service Awards (NRSA) (Individual) are made directly to approved applicants for research training in specified biomedical shortage areas. In addition, National Research Service Awards (Institutional) may be made to institutions to enable them to make NRSA to individuals selected by them. Each individual who receives a postdoctoral NRSA is obligated, upon termination of the award, to comply with certain service and payback provisions. Regulations are published in the Code of Federal Regulations and 42 CFR, Part 66. SBIR Phase I grants (of approximately 6 months' duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. SBIR Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I and that are likely to result in commercial products or processes. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to apply for Phase II support. STTR Phase I grants (normally of 1- year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential on Phase II application.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of 2 CFR 200, Subpart F - Audit Requirements, non-Federal entities that expend financial assistance of $750,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Non-Federal entities that expend less than $750,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in 2 CFR 200.503. Records must be available for review or audit by appropriate officials of the Federal agency, pass-through entity, and Government Accountability Office (GAO). In accordance with 45 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 74.26, for-profit (commercial) organizations are subject to audit requirements for a non-Federal audit if, during its fiscal year, it expended $500,000 or more under HHS awards and at least one award is a HHS grant or subgrant. The regulation incorporates the thresholds and deadlines of OMB Circular No. A-133, but provides for profit organizations with two options for the type of audit that will satisfy the audit requirement: 1. a financial related audit of the HHS awards in accordance with Government Auditing Standards, or 2. an audit that meets the requirements of OMB Circular No. A-133. In accordance with NIH grants policy, Foreign grantees are subject to the same audit requirements as for-profit (commercial) organizations.

Records:

Grantees generally must retain financial and programmatic records, supporting documents, statistical records, and all other records that are required by the terms of a grant, or may reasonably be considered pertinent to a grant, for a period of 3 years from the date the annual FSR is submitted. For awards under SNAP (other than those to foreign organizations and Federal institutions), the 3-year retention period will be calculated from the date the FSR for the entire competitive segment is submitted. Those grantees must retain the records pertinent to the entire competitive segment for 3 years from the date the FSR is submitted to NIH. Foreign organizations and Federal institutions must retain records for 3 years from the date of submission of the annual FSR to NIH. See 45 CFR 74.53 and 92.42 for exceptions and qualifications to the 3-year retention requirement (e.g., if any litigation, claim, financial management review, or audit is started before the expiration of the 3-year period, the records must be retained until all litigation, claims, or audit findings involving the records have been resolved and final action taken). Those sections also specify the retention period for other types of grant-related records, including F&A cost proposals and property records. See 45 CFR 74.48 and 92.36 for record retention and access requirements for contracts under grants. In accordance with 45 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 74.53(e), the HHS Inspector General, the U.S. Comptroller General, or any of their duly authorized representatives have the right of timely and unrestricted access to any books, documents, papers, or other records of recipients that are pertinent to awards in order to make audits, examinations, excerpts, transcripts, and copies of such documents. This right also includes timely and reasonable access to a recipients personnel records for the purpose of interview and discussion related to such documents. The rights of access are not limited to the required retention period, but shall last as long as records are retained.

93.870 MATERNAL, INFANT AND EARLY CHILDHOOD HOME VISITING GRANT PROGRAM

MIECHV Program

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Health Resources and Services Administration, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Social Security Act, Title V, Section 511 (42 U.S.C. 711).

OBJECTIVES:

The goals of the Maternal, Infant, and Early Childhood Home Visiting Program (MIECHV Program) are to: (1) strengthen and improve the programs and activities carried out under Title V of the Social Security Act; (2) improve coordination of services for at-risk communities; and (3) identify and provide comprehensive services to improve outcomes for eligible families who reside in at-risk communities.

The MIECHV Program was created to support voluntary, evidence-based home visiting services for at-risk pregnant women and parents with young children up to kindergarten entry. The MIECHV Program builds upon decades of scientific research that shows home visits conducted by a nurse, social worker, early childhood educator, or other trained professional during pregnancy and in the first years of a child's life improves the lives of children and families. Home visiting helps prevent child abuse and neglect, supports positive parenting, improves maternal and child health, and promotes child development and school readiness.

The investment provides coordinated and comprehensive high-quality voluntary, evidence-based home visiting services with a national reach. The MIECHV Program plays a crucial role in building high-quality, comprehensive statewide early childhood systems to support pregnant women, parents and caregivers, and children from birth to kindergarten entry and ultimately, to improve health and development outcomes.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Formula Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Authorizing legislation reserves the majority of funding for the delivery of services through implementation of one or more evidence-based home visiting service delivery models that meet the HHS criteria of evidence of effectiveness with fidelity to the model selected. Per legislation, awardees (recipients) may expend no more than 25% of the grant awarded for a fiscal year for conducting and evaluating a program using a service delivery model that qualifies as a promising approach. Awardees must not submit an application with a budget request exceeding the awardee's specified total grant award ceiling. Awards to support projects will be contingent upon Congressional appropriation, satisfactory progress in meeting the projects objectives, and a determination that continued funding would be in the best interest of the Federal Government. No more than 10% of the award amount may be spent on expenditures related to administering the grant. Section 511(i)(2)(C) of the Social Security Act requires that section 504(d) (relating to a limitation on administrative expenditures) shall apply to a grant made under this section to the same extent and in the same manner as such provisions apply to allotments made under section 502(c). No more than 25% of the MIECHV grant award may be expended to support recipient-level infrastructure expenditures.

Funds made available to awardees under this guidance must be used by recipients to support the delivery of home visiting services under the MIECHV program. Recipients may coordinate with and refer to direct medical, dental, mental health or legal services and providers covered by other sources of funding, for which non-MIECHV sources of funding may provide reimbursement. The MIECHV program generally does not fund the delivery or costs of direct medical, dental, mental health, or legal services; however, some limited direct services may be provided (typically by the home visitor) to the extent required in fidelity to an evidence-based model approved for use under the MIECHV Program.

Section 511(j)(2)(B) also provides a 3 percent set-aside in funding for research and evaluation activities to be conducted under Section 511 (h)(3). In FY 2016, two cooperative agreement programs are funded under this authority, including the Home Visiting Research and Development Platform (HV R&D Platform) and the Home Visiting Collaborative Improvement and Innovation Network (HV CoIIN). The HV R&D Platform supports a transdisciplinary research network for scientific collaboration and infrastructure building for innovative home visiting research. The HV CoIIN facilitates the delivery and accelerates the improvement of home visiting and early childhood services provided by MIECHV the Federal Home Visiting Program recipients.

Additionally, cooperative agreements are funded for innovation through the MIECHV Program. The purpose of this limited competition is to fund the development, implementation, and evaluation of innovations by awardees that strengthen and improve the delivery of MIECHV-funded coordinated and comprehensive high-quality voluntary early childhood home visiting services to eligible families.

Applicant Eligibility:

Eligible awardees include the following entities currently funded under the MIECHV Program: 47 states, 3 nonprofit organizations serving Florida, North Dakota, and Wyoming, and 6 territories and jurisdictions serving District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, the U.S. Virgin Islands, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, and American Samoa.

For those states that have elected not to participate in MIECHV, nonprofit organizations with an established record of providing early childhood home visiting programs or initiatives in a state or several states are eligible to apply to carry out programs in those states.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

As directed in statute, awardees must give priority in providing services under the MIECHV program to the following:

- Eligible families who reside in communities in need of such services, as identified in the statewide needs assessment required under subsection 511(b)(1)(A);
- Low-income eligible families;
- Eligible families with pregnant women who have not attained age 21;
- Eligible families that have a history of child abuse or neglect or have had interactions with child welfare services;
- Eligible families that have a history of substance abuse or need substance abuse treatment;
- Eligible families that have users of tobacco products in the home;
- Eligible families that are or have children with low student achievement;
- Eligible families with children with developmental delays or disabilities; and
- Eligible families that include individuals who are serving or formerly served in the Armed Forces, including such families that have members of the Armed Forces who have had multiple deployments outside of the United States.

Credentials/Documentation:

Applicants should review the individual HRSA funding opportunity guidance issued under this CFDA program for any required proof or certifications of education and/or training which must be submitted prior to or simultaneous with submission of an application package. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program. 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program. 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is required. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is eligible for coverage under E.O. 12372, "Intergovernmental Review of Federal Programs." An applicant should consult the office or official designated as the single point of contact in his or her State for more information on the process the State requires to be followed in applying for assistance, if the State has selected the program for review.

Application Procedures:

2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards applies to this program. HRSA requires all applicants to apply electronically through Grants.gov

Award Procedure:

All applications for this funding will be reviewed internally by grants management officials (business and financial review) and program staff (technical review) for eligibility, completeness, accuracy, and compliance with the requirements outlined in the funding opportunity guidance.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application

deadlines.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

From 60 to 90 days. Contact the Headquarters or Regional Office as appropriate for application deadlines or view the specific notice of funding opportunity.

Appeals:

Not Applicable.

Renewals:

Formula funds are awarded on an annual basis.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: In FY 2017, approximately $343 million was available to support the 56 eligible recipients that currently receive MIECHV funding. Eligible entities may apply for up to their FY 2016 formula grant award ceiling amount minus 0.8 percent.

This program has no matching requirements.

This program has MOE requirements, see funding agency for further details.

This program has maintenance of effort (MOE) requirements. Per Social Security Act, Title V, 511(f), awardees must supplement, and not supplant, funds from other sources for early childhood home visitation programs or initiatives. Awardees may demonstrate compliance by maintaining non-federal funding (state general funds) for evidence-based home visiting and home visiting initiatives, expended for activities proposed in application submissions, at a level which is not less than expenditures for such activities as of the most recently completed state fiscal year. Nonprofit awardees must agree to take all steps reasonably available for this purpose and should provide appropriate documentation from the state supporting its accomplishment of the maintenance of effort/non-supplantation requirement. The baseline for maintenance of effort is the state fiscal year prior to the fiscal year during which an application is submitted. For purposes of maintenance of effort/non-supplantation in the MIECHV Program, home visiting is defined as an evidence-based program implemented in response to findings from the most current statewide needs assessment that includes home visiting as a primary service delivery strategy, and is offered on a voluntary basis to pregnant women or caregivers of children birth to kindergarten entry. Awardees may NOT consider any Title V funding used for evidence-based home visiting as part of the maintenance of effort demonstration.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Funds awarded to a recipient for a federal fiscal year shall remain available for expenditure by the recipient through the end of the second succeeding federal fiscal year after award. Grant funds that have not been obligated for expenditure by the recipient during the period of availability for use by the recipient will be de-obligated. FY 2017 funds must be obligated prior to September 30, 2019, and liquidated by December 31, 2019. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: Applicant organizations must obtain a valid DUNS number and provide that number in their application. Each applicant must also register with the System for Award Management (SAM) and continue to maintain active SAM registration with current information at all times during which it has an active federal award or an application or plan under consideration by an agency (unless the applicant is an individual or federal agency that is exempted from those requirements under 2 CFR 25.110(b) or (c), or has an exception approved by the agency under 2 CFR 25.110(d)).

HRSA may not make an award to an applicant until the applicant has complied with all applicable DUNS and SAM requirements and, if an applicant has not fully complied with the requirements by the time HRSA is ready to make an award, HRSA may determine that the applicant is not qualified to receive an award and use that determination as the basis for making an award to another applicant.

The Grants.gov registration process requires information in three separate systems:

Dun and Bradstreet (<http://fedgov.dnb.com/webform/pages/CCRSearch.jsp>)

System for Award Management (SAM) (<https://www.sam.gov>)

Grants.gov (<http://www.grants.gov/>).

Reports:

HRSA MCHB Discretionary Grant Information System (DGIS) Forms 1, 2, 4, 6, 7, and Products and Publications reports are due within 120 days of the Notice of Award issue date.

The MIECHV Program recipients must also provide demographic, service utilization, and select clinical indicators, and performance indicators and systems outcomes measures into the Home Visiting Information System (HVIS) accessed through the Electronic Handbooks (EHBs). 93.872 TRIBAL MATERNAL, INFANT, AND EARLY CHILDHOOD HOME VISITING

Tribal MIECHV, Tribal Home Visiting
Tribal Research Center for Early Childhood (TRCEC)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Administration for Children and Families, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Section 511(h)(2)(A) of Title V of the Social Security Act, as added by Section 2951 of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (Affordable Care Act) (Pub. L. No. 111-148), and extended by the Protecting Access to Medicare Act of 2014 (Pub. L. No. 113-93), as amended by the Medicare Access and CHIP Reauthorization Act of 2015 (Pub.L. 114-10).

The authorities for the Tribal Research Center for Early Childhood (TRCEC) are: (1) Maternal, Infant, and Early Childhood Home Visiting (MIECHV) as authorized by section 511(h)(3) of Title V of the Social Security Act, as amended by the Medicare Access and CHIP Reauthorization Act of 2015 (Pub. L. 114-10); (2) section 648 of the Head Start Act, as amended by the Improving Head Start for School Readiness Act of 2007 (42 U.S.C. 9843), and section 649 (42 U.S.C. 9844); and (3) Child Care and Development Block Grant (CCDBG) Implementation Research and Evaluation Planning Grant program as authorized by section 658O(a)(5) of the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act, as amended by Pub. L. No. 113-186, codified at 42 U.S.C. 9858m(a)(5).

OBJECTIVES:

The Tribal Maternal, Infant, and Early Childhood Home Visiting Program (Tribal MIECHV) is administered by The Administration for Children and Families (ACF) Office of Early Childhood Development (ECD) and Office of Child Care (OCC), in collaboration with the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA). Assistance is available to eligible Tribes (or consortia of Tribes), Tribal Organizations, and Urban Indian Organizations, to strengthen and improve maternal and child health programs, improve service coordination for at-risk communities, and identify and provide comprehensive evidence-based home visiting services to families who reside in at-risk communities.

The goals of the Tribal MIECHV program are to: support the development of happy, healthy, and successful American Indian and Alaska Native (AIAN) children and families through a coordinated home visiting strategy that addresses critical maternal and child health, development, early learning, family support, and child abuse and neglect prevention needs; implement high-quality, culturally-relevant, evidence-based home visiting programs in AIAN communities; expand the evidence base around home visiting interventions with Native populations; and support and strengthen cooperation and coordination and promote linkages among various early childhood programs, resulting in coordinated, comprehensive early childhood systems.

The ACF, Office of Planning, Research and Evaluation (OPRE), is administering the TRCEC, which will provide leadership and support to promote excellence in community-based participatory research and evaluation of ACF early childhood initiatives that serve Tribal communities. Settings to be considered include home visiting programs, early care and education center-based programs, home-based and family child care providers, and Head Start and Early Head Start programs. The TRCEC is expected to: (1) conduct research to identify needs and/or develop effective practices and integrated systems for ACF early childhood initiatives in tribal communities; (2) identify, validate, and/or develop measures of culturally meaningful inputs, implementation processes, and proximal and distal outcomes of those programs; (3) establish peer-learning communities for tribal research on areas of shared priority; (4) provide training and professional development to facilitate interest and competencies in research relevant to early childhood initiatives in tribal communities; and (5) provide forums to increase cultural competence and sensitivity to tribal voices in research and evaluation. It is expected that the TRCEC will coordinate with any other entities receiving Maternal, Infant and Early Childhood Home Visiting (MIECHV), Office of Head Start (OHS), and Office of Child Care (OCC) funding for related research and evaluation activities.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:Uses:

Assistance for the Tribal MIECHV Program will be used to: conduct a needs assessment that considers community characteristics and the quality and capacity of existing home visiting programs and other supportive services; is coordinated with other relevant needs assessments; and involves community stakeholders as appropriate; collaborative planning efforts to address identified needs by developing capacity and infrastructure; providing high-quality, evidence-based home visiting services to pregnant women and families with young children aged birth to kindergarten entry; establishing, measuring, and reporting on progress toward meeting performance measures in six legislatively-mandated benchmark areas; and conducting or participating in rigorous evaluation activities that may include examining effectiveness of home visiting models in serving Tribal populations, adaptations of home visiting models for Tribal communities, or questions regarding implementation of infrastructure necessary to support evidence-based home visitation models in Tribal communities.

Consistent with statutory authority, Home Visiting funds for the TRCEC will be used for: (a) Identify and consult with researchers and tribal community leaders, and consult with federal/national partners (including ACF and HRSA) who have been involved in conducting research and evaluation on home visiting in tribal communities; (b) Establish a national network of partnerships that provide a peer learning environment among tribes, researchers, and practitioners (e.g., program directors, teachers, home visiting staff) on issues related to the research and evaluation of MIECHV programs in tribal communities. A-87 applies to this program. 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program. 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is required. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is eligible for coverage under E.O. 12372, "Intergovernmental Review of Federal Programs." An applicant should consult the office or official designated as the single point of contact in his or her State for more information on the process the State requires to be followed in applying for assistance, if the State has selected the program for review.

Application Procedures:

2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards applies to this program. Each application will be screened to determine whether it was received by the closing date and time and whether the requested amount exceeds the award ceiling. Applications that are designated as late or those with requests that exceed the award ceiling will be returned to the applicant with a notation that they were deemed non-responsive and will not be reviewed.

Applications competing for financial assistance will be reviewed and evaluated by objective review panels using the criteria described in the funding opportunity announcement. Each panel is made up of experts with knowledge and experience in the area under review. Generally, review panels are composed of three reviewers and one chairperson.

Results of the competitive objective review are taken into consideration by ACF in the selection of projects for funding; however, objective review scores and rankings are not binding. They are one element in the decision-making process.

Applications recommended for approval that were not funded under the competition because of the lack of available funds, may be held over by ACF and re-considered in a subsequent review cycle if a future competition under the program area is planned. These applications will be held over for a period of up to one year and will be re-competed for funding with all other competing applications in the next available review cycle. For those applications that have been deemed as approved but unfunded, notice will be given of such determination by postal mail.

Announcement of awards and the disposition of applications will be provided to applicants at a later date.

Award Procedure:

Results of the competitive objective review are taken into consideration by ACF in the selection of projects for funding; however, objective review scores and rankings are not binding and are one element of the decision-making process.

ACF may elect to not fund applicants with management or financial problems that would indicate an inability to successfully complete the proposed project. Applications may be funded in whole or in part. Successful applicants may be funded at an amount lower than that requested. ACF reserves the right to consider a preference to fund organizations serving emerging, unserved, or under-served populations, including those located in pockets of poverty, and to consider the geographic distribution of Federal funds in its funding decisions.

ACF may refuse funding for projects with what it regards as unreasonably high start-up costs for facilities or equipment, or for projects with unreasonably high operating costs. In addition, federal staff will conduct an administrative review of the applications and the results of the competitive review and will make recommendations for funding to the Director, Office of Child Care (OCC) With the results of the competitive review and information from federal staff, the Director of OCC, in consultation with Deputy Assistant Secretary and Inter-Departmental Liaison for Early Childhood Development, will make the final funding decisions.

No grant award will be made under this announcement on the basis of an incomplete application. No grant award will be made to an applicant or sub-recipient that does not have active CCR registration (www.ccr.gov) or 1-866-606-8220).

The project period for the TRCEC will be 4 years. The initial award will be for the first 12-month budget period. Budget requests for a second through fourth year of funding within the project period should be identified in the current application (on SF-424A), and such requests will be considered in subsequent years on a noncompetitive basis. Noncompetitive continuation awards are subject to the applicant's eligibility status, the availability of funds, satisfactory progress of the grantee, and a determination that continued funding would be in the best interest of the Federal Government.

The Federal share of project costs shall not exceed $650,000 for any of the 12-month budget periods, inclusive of indirect costs. The successful grantee will be required to track the federal funds, and their associated activities, separately so that they can be accounted for, on an ongoing basis, and attributed to either the Tribal MIECHV, Head Start, and Child Care portions of the project.

Tribal MIECHV grants (cooperative agreements) are generally awarded for a 5-year project period. In the first year of the project, grants will be awarded on a competitive basis. Pending successful completion of Year 1 activities, submission of a plan that meets requirements, and approval of this plan, applications will be considered on a noncompetitive continuation basis for Years 2-5 subject to availability of funds, satisfactory progress of the grantee, and a determination that continued funding would be in the best interest of the Federal Government. Grants will be awarded for 12-month budget periods with a 5-year project period.

The project period for the TRCEC will be 4 years.

Funds awarded to grantees under this program will be made available for expenditure through the end of the second succeeding fiscal year after award. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: Tribal MIECHV grants (cooperative agreements) are generally awarded for a 5-year project period. Reports:

Grantees under this announcement will be required to submit performance progress and financial reports periodically throughout the project period.

The frequency of required reporting is described in each funding opportunity announcement. Final reports may be submitted in hard copy to the Grants Management Office Contact identifiable post-award. Instructions on submission of reports electronically will be provided with award documents. Federal Financial Report (FFR) - Federal Cash Transaction Report. Progress reports are not applicable. As of February 1, 2011, the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) began the transition from use of the SF-269, Financial Status Report (Short Form or Long Form) to the use of the SF-425 Federal Financial Report for expenditure reporting. SF-269s will no longer be accepted for expenditure reports due after that date. If an SF-269 is submitted, the ACF will return it and require the recipient to complete the SF-425.

The transition strategy is allowing individual HHS Operating Divisions to select—from a limited number of options—the approach that best fits their programs and business process. This transition does not affect completion or submission of the cash reporting to the HHS Division of Payment Management's Payment Management System (PMS). The primary features of this transition for recipients are that OPDIVs that previously required electronic submission of the SF-269 will receive the SF-425 expenditure reports electronically and, until further notice, OPDIVs that have been receiving expenditure reports in hard copy will continue to do so. ACF grantees are required to submit the SF-PPR Cover Page. ACF Programs that utilize reporting forms or formats in addition to, or instead of, the SF-PPR have listed the reporting requirements.

Grant award documents will inform grantees of the appropriate performance progress report form or format to use. Grantees should consult their award documents to determine the appropriate performance progress report format required under their award. Performance progress reports are due 30 days after the end of the reporting period.

Final program performance reports are due 90 days after the close of the project period. The SF-PPR may be found at http://www.acf.hhs.gov/grants/grants_resources.html.

Further instructions will be provided, as necessary, with award terms and conditions that will address specific reporting periods and due dates on an award-by-award basis. Additional information on frequency of reporting is available on the ACF Funding Opportunities web site at http://www.acf.hhs.gov/grants/msg_sf425.html. All expenditure reports will be due on one of the standard due dates by which cash reporting is required to be submitted to PMS OR at the end of a calendar quarter as determined by the Operating Division. As a result, a recipient that receives awards from more than one OPDIV may be subject to more than one approach, but will not be required to change its current means of submission or be subjected to more than eight standard due dates.

Beginning with budget periods which end from January 1 - March 31, 2011, and for all budget periods thereafter, all affected ACF grantees will be required to submit an SF-425 report as frequently as is required in the terms and conditions of their award using due dates for reports to PMS.

Fillable versions of the SF-425 form in Adobe PDF and MS-Excel formats, along with instructions, are available at http://www.whitehouse.gov/omb/grants_forms, www.forms.gov, and on the ACF Funding Opportunity website Forms page.

Further instructions will be provided, as necessary, with award terms and conditions that will address specific reporting periods and due dates on an award-by-award basis. Additional information on frequency of reporting is available on the ACF Funding Opportunities web site at http://www.acf.hhs.gov/grants/msg_sf425.html. Grantees under the Tribal MIECHV program must collect, analyze, use, and report data on program implementation and improvements for eligible families participating in the program in the legislatively-mandated benchmark areas of: I) improved maternal, newborn, and child health; II) prevention of child injuries, child abuse, neglect, or maltreatment, and reduction of emergency room visits; III) improvements in school readiness and child academic achievement; IV) reductions in crime or domestic violence; V) improvements in family economic self-sufficiency; and VI) improvements in the coordination and referrals for other community resources and supports. Grantees will also collect and report on demographic and service utilization and service capacity, place-based services, family engagement, and staffing data.

OBJECTIVES:

The National Antimicrobial Resistance Monitoring System (NARMS) is a U.S. public health surveillance system that tracks antibiotic resistance in enteric bacteria from humans, retail meats, and food animals. When antimicrobial drugs are used in food-producing animals, they can enrich for populations of resistant strains that reach humans via the food supply. The chief goal of the NARMS retail food surveillance program is to improve the detection of and surveillance for antimicrobial resistance among enteric bacteria in raw retail food commodities, particularly fresh retail meat.

The NARMS program is looking to collaborate with institutions or organizations to enhance and strengthen antibiotic resistance surveillance in retail food specimens. Partnering with the NARMS retail food surveillance program will enable the collection of critical data for FDA policy and regulatory actions including but not limited to pre-approval safety evaluation of new animal antibiotics, determining parameters for the antimicrobial use in veterinary medicine, and the ability to provide information to promote interventions to reduce resistance among foodborne bacteria. This collaboration will address NARMS programmatic needs to implement effective surveillance and response for antibiotic resistance as recommended in the National Strategy for Combating Antibiotic-Resistant Bacteria (CARB).

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The assistance can be applied to supplies, equipment, personnel, job training, and/or travel needed to conduct retail food surveillance activities as defined in the cooperative agreement and referenced in the NARMS retail food surveillance protocol. 93.879 MEDICAL LIBRARY ASSISTANCEFEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institutes of Health, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Title IV, Part D, Subpart 2, Section 472-476; Public Health Service Act, Title III, Part A, Section 301.

OBJECTIVES:

To meet a growing need for investigators trained in biomedical informatics research and data science by training qualified pre- and post-doctoral candidates; to conduct research in biomedical informatics, bioinformatics and related computer, information and data sciences; to facilitate management of electronic health records and clinical research data; to prepare scholarly works in biomedicine and health; to advance biocomputing and bioinformatics through participation in Federal initiatives relating to biomedical informatics, bioinformatics and biomedical computing; and to stimulate and foster scientific and technological innovation through cooperative research development carried out between small business concerns and research institutions, through Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) and Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) grants.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

RESEARCH GRANT PROGRAMS: Research Grants are available for fundamental and applied research in biomedical informatics and bioinformatics. Areas of research interest include: representation, organization and retrieval of biomedical and biological knowledge, data and images; enhancement of human intellectual capacities through virtual reality, dynamic modeling, artificial intelligence, and machine learning; medical decision-making; linguistic analyses for natural language processing and understanding; informatics topics relevant to public health, consumer information and disaster information management. Research Project Grants (R01) are available for rigorous scientific research studies and experiments. From time to time, NLM issues Requests for Applications for innovative informatics research in special priority areas. Exploratory/Developmental Grants (R21) support early, conceptual work and feasibility tests. Other research grants include Informatics Conference Grants (R13) and several NIH-wide grant programs on high priority topics such as health literacy, behavioral research, health disparity, climate change, and detection of gene environment interactions for complex human diseases. Further information on research grants is available at <http://www.nlm.nih.gov/ep/Grants.html#research>.

TRAINING GRANT PROGRAMS: NLM's University-based Biomedical Informatics Research Training Programs (T15) promote the training of talented individuals who seek research careers in biomedical informatics, translational bioinformatics, clinical research informatics, public health informatics and data science. A competition for these institution-based training grants is announced every five years. The most recent competition was held in 2016. University-based training support may be at the pre- or post-doctoral level. Training sites recruit and choose their trainees, and are expected to have well-established computing resources, strong informatics research and education programs, experienced faculty and staff committed to research in the field of biomedical informatics and/or biomedical computing, and available courses or experience in biomedical informatics, information science, and cognitive sciences. Institutional training grants provide trainee stipends, tuition and fees, travel, and certain institutional support costs. Further information on training grants is available at <http://www.nlm.nih.gov/ep/Grants.html#training>.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT GRANT PROGRAMS: NLM offers a Career Development award (K01) to help promising junior investigators launch their research careers in biomedical informatics and data science research. NIH Pathway to Independence awards (K99/R00) are reserved for investigators who are making the transition to their first research positions. These grants can last up to five years. They include a mentored period, followed by an unmentored period, and provide both salary and a research support. Research supplement awards are also offered to promote diversity in health-related informatics and data science research, and to promote re-entry into informatics and data science careers. Diversity and re-entry awards are issued as supplements to existing research grants funded by NLM. Further information on career development grants is available at <http://www.nlm.nih.gov/ep/Grants.html#career>.

RESOURCE GRANT PROGRAMS: NLM funds cooperative agreements (UG4) to support Regional Medical Libraries (RMLs) as an integral component of the National Network of Libraries of Medicine (NN/LM). The goal of the NN/LM is to advance the progress of medicine and improve public health by providing U.S. health professionals with equal access to biomedical information, and to improve individuals access to information to enable them to make informed decisions about their health. The RMLs coordinate the operation of the network of libraries and other organizations that make up the NN/LM. NLM Information Resource Grants to Reduce Health Disparities (G08) support implementation projects that bring useful, usable health information to health disparity populations and their health care providers. NLM offers Grants for Scholarly Works (G13) to support preparation of books in the history and philosophy of biomedicine, bioethics, and public policy areas of importance to health professionals and biomedical scientists. The purpose, restrictions, funding periods and award limits vary for these grant programs and are described in the funding opportunity announcements (FOAs). Further information on resource grants is available at <http://www.nlm.nih.gov/ep/Grants.html#resource>.

SMALL BUSINESS RESEARCH & DEVELOPMENT GRANT PROGRAMS: Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) and Small Business Technology Transfer Research (STTR) grants are made to U.S. small businesses that seek to undertake informatics and data science research and development leading to commercialization. The STTR program requires a small business applicant organization to formally collaborate with a research institution in Phase I and Phase II. SBIR Phase I grants are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I and that are likely to result in commercial products or processes. STTR Phase I grants are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I, and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the proposed project in Phase II application. Further information on SBIR/STTR grants is available at <http://www.nlm.nih.gov/ep/Grants.html#small>.

Applicant Eligibility:

Any individual(s) with the skills, knowledge, and resources necessary to carry out the proposed research as the project director/principal investigator (PD/PI) is invited to work with his/her organization to develop an application for support. Individuals from underrepresented racial and ethnic groups as well as individuals with disabilities are always encouraged to apply for NIH support. See Beneficiary Eligibility below for further details.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Research Grants are available to public or private, domestic or foreign, for profit or not-for-profit institutions or organizations with research capabilities in biomedical informatics, bioinformatics, computer sciences, information sciences, data sciences and related disciplines. Training Grants may be made to nonfederal public and nonprofit private institutions. With the exception of NIH Pathway to Independence awards, trainees must be citizens or non-citizen nationals of the United States or have been lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence. Resource grants (Information Resource, Scholarly Works) are open to any U.S. public or private nonprofit institution or organization. SBIR and STTR grants can be awarded only to domestic small businesses (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed, and have no more than 500 employees). To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council.

Credentials/Documentation:

This program is subject to the Uniform Guidelines (2 CFR 200), Subpart E - Cost Principles. These guidelines consolidate all cost principles, audit and administrative requirements for Federal grants and cooperative agreements. 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program. 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards applies to this program. 2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards applies to this program. Generally, electronic applications are accepted for Research & Training Grants, SBIR and STTR grants, Resource Grants as well as Fellowship awards. Electronic grant submission of the SF424 (R&R) form is via <http://www.grants.gov>. For instructions on submitting grants electronically, see <http://era.nih.gov/ElectronicReceipt/>. These programs are subject to the provisions of 45 CFR Part 75 as applicable.

Updates on NLM application deadlines and links to available forms can also be found at <http://www.nlm.nih.gov/ep/>.

Award Procedure:

Research, training, career development and resource applications are evaluated for merit by a committee of scientific experts and for program relevance by the Board of Regents (BOR) of the National Library of Medicine (NLM). If favorably recommended, the applications are considered for funding. An award notice is prepared when it is determined that a grant is to be paid. All accepted SBIR/STTR applications are evaluated for scientific and technical merit by an appropriate scientific peer review panel and by a national advisory council or board. All applications receiving a priority score compete for available SBIR/STTR set-aside funds based on scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the proposed research, program relevance, and portfolio balance among the areas of research.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

> 180 Days. From 9-10 months after the application deadline.

Appeals:

NIH policy allows a principal investigator (PI) to appeal the outcome of a review if procedural errors or factual errors entered into the review of the application. A description of the NIH Peer Review Appeal procedures is available at <http://grants.nih.gov/grants/guide/notice-files/NOT-OD-11-064.html>. However, differences of scientific opinion that often occur between investigators and reviewers may not be contested through these procedures. In addition, communications from investigators consisting of additional information that was not available to the reviewers are not considered to be appeals. The updated NIH policy on submission of grant applications, including resubmissions, can be found at: <http://grants.nih.gov/grants/guide/notice-files/NOT-OD-14-074.html>.

Renewals:

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

The standard NIH review criteria, significance, investigator, innovation, approach, environment are used as the basis of merit review. Considerations for final award decisions include level of innovation, program priority, portfolio balance, and availability of funds. For NLM resource grants, review criteria include considerations as to relevance to program objectives; impact on the management and transmission of biomedical knowledge; institutional readiness and resources available to project; expertise of project director and key personnel; scientific or technical merit of project; sustainability of what is deployed, and appropriateness of budget. For Career awards, review criteria include issues pertaining to the suitability of the candidates and their career development plan, research plan, mentors/consultants/collaborators, as well as the environment and institutional commitment to the candidates. For Training awards, review criteria include evidence of soundness in the areas of: Training Program and Environment, Training Program Principal Investigator(s), Preceptors and Mentors, Trainees, and Training Record. Comparative priorities on the above criteria are based on collective judgment of peer reviewers. The following criteria are used in considering the scientific and technical merit of SBIR/STTR Phase I grant applications: (1) The soundness and technical merit of the proposed approach; (2) the qualifications of the proposed principal investigator, supporting staff, and consultants; (3) the scientific, technical, or technological innovation of the proposed research; (4) the potential of the proposed research for commercial application; (5) the appropriateness of the budget requested; (6) the adequacy and suitability of the facilities and research environment; and (7) where applicable, the adequacy of assurances detailing the proposed means for (a) safeguarding human or animal subjects, and/or (b) protecting against or minimizing any adverse effect on the environment. Phase II grant applications are reviewed based upon similar criteria, and on the degree to which the Phase I objectives were met and feasibility demonstrated.

OBJECTIVES:

To provide direct financial assistance to Eligible Metropolitan Areas (EMAs) and Transitional Grant Areas (TGAs) that have been the most severely affected by the Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV) epidemic to enhance access to a comprehensive, effective and cost efficient continuum of high quality, community-based care for low-income individuals and families with HIV and to strengthen strategies to reach minority populations. A comprehensive continuum of care includes the 13 core medical services specified in legislation and appropriate support services that assist people living with HIV (PLWH) in accessing treatment for HIV/AIDS that is consistent with the Department of Health and Human Service (HHS) Treatment Guidelines. Comprehensive HIV/AIDS care beyond these core medical services may include supportive services that meet the criteria of enabling individuals and families living with HIV to access and remain in primary medical care to improve their medical outcomes.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Not less than 75 percent of grant funds remaining after reserving funds for administration and clinical quality management must be used to provide core medical services, unless a waiver request related to this requirement is submitted and approved. Core medical services include: outpatient and ambulatory health services, AIDS Drug Assistance Program, AIDS pharmaceutical assistance, oral health care, early intervention services, health insurance premium and cost-sharing for low-income individuals, home health care, medical nutritional therapy, hospice services, home and community-based health services as defined under Section 2614 (c), mental health services, substance abuse outpatient care, and medical case management, including treatment adherence services. No more than 10 percent of amounts received under a grant may be used to fund the recipients grant administration and monitoring activities, program support activities and all activities associated with recipient contract award procedures. In addition, the aggregate total of administrative expenditures for subrecipients, including all indirect costs, may not exceed ten (10) percent of the aggregate amount of all subawards. Recipients may use up to five percent of funds or $3 million, whichever is less, for clinical quality management activities to assess the extent to which HIV health services provided to patients under the grant are consistent with the most recent Department of Health and Human Services guidelines for the treatment of HIV/AIDS. Funds may not be used to make payments for any item or service to the extent that payment has been made, or can reasonably be expected to be made, with respect to that item or service under any State compensation program, insurance policy, Federal or State health benefits program or by any entity that provides health services on a prepaid basis (except for a program administered by or providing the services to the Indian Health Service). Funds may not be used for cash payments to intended recipients of Ryan White HIV/AIDS Program (RWHAP) services, purchasing or construction of real property, or pre-exposure prophylaxis (PrEP) or non-occupational post-exposure prophylaxis (nPEP) medications or the related medical services. PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2016: Nearly 68 percent of all clients served by the RWHAP in 2014 were served in one of the 52 metropolitan areas funded under the RWHAP Part A. Approximately 73 percent of all people living with diagnosed HIV reside in a RWHAP Part A EMA or TGA. Part A funded sites provided 3.7 million core medical service visits for health-related care utilizing a combination of Parts A, B, C, and D funding. The number of visits for health-related services demonstrates the scope of Part A in delivering primary care and related services for PLWH by increasing the availability and accessibility of care. From 2010 to 2015, HIV viral suppression among RWHAP patients has increased from 70 percent to 83 percent, and racial/ethnic, age-based, and regional disparities have decreased. These improved outcomes mean more PLWH in the U.S. will live near normal lifespans and have a reduced risk of transmitting HIV to others.

RWHAP Part A jurisdictions are experienced in data-driven, community-based needs assessment, responsive procurement of a variety of direct medical and supportive services, working with a set of providers to weave together a constellation of services, serving diverse populations and continuing to make improvements that positively affect the HIV care continuum. Thus, the RWHAP Part A has a significant public health impact on HIV incidence. Fiscal Year 2017: No Current Data Available Fiscal Year 2018: No Current Data Available

93.918 GRANTS TO PROVIDE OUTPATIENT EARLY INTERVENTION SERVICES WITH RESPECT TO HIV DISEASE

Ryan White HIV/AIDS Program (RWHAP) Part C Early Intervention Services (EIS)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Health Resources and Services Administration, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Sections 2651-2667 and 2693 of the Public Health Service Act, (42 USC 300ff-51-67 and 300ff-121) as amended by the Ryan White HIV/AIDS Treatment Extension Act of 2009 (Public Law 111-87).

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of the RWHAP Part C Early Intervention Services Program funding is to provide comprehensive HIV primary care and support services in an outpatient setting for low income, uninsured, and underinsured people living with HIV (PLWH). This includes: 1) targeted HIV counseling and testing; 2) medical evaluation and clinical and diagnostic services; 3) therapeutic measures for preventing and treating the deterioration of the immune system, and for preventing and treating conditions arising from HIV/AIDS; and 4) referrals to appropriate providers of health care and support services.

The purpose of the RWHAP Part C Capacity Development Program is to strengthen organizational infrastructure to respond to the changing health care landscape and to increase capacity to develop, enhance, or expand access to high quality HIV primary health care services for low income PLWH.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Part C recipients are expected to develop comprehensive and coordinated systems of HIV services which are available to PLWH in the local service area, especially those populations who are the hardest to reach, have the greatest unmet need, and/or the greatest gaps in HIV primary care services. These HIV service systems should ensure the progress of the target populations along the HIV care continuum with the goal of optimizing health outcomes demonstrated by retention in medical care, viral load reduction, and decreases in new HIV infections in the community.

No more than 10 percent of total grant funds may be expended for administrative expenses, including planning and evaluation. At least 50 percent of total grant funds must be expended for Early Intervention Services (except counseling). At least 75 percent of total grant funds, after reserving funds for clinical quality management, planning/evaluation, and administration must be expended for core medical services. Funds may not be used for purchase, construction, or major alterations or renovations on any building or other facility; purchase or improvement of land; payments for clinical research; payments for nursing home care; cash payments to intended recipients of RWHAP services; research; foreign travel; or for any item or service to the extent that payment has been made, or reasonably can be expected to be made, with respect to that item or service under any State compensation program, insurance policy, Federal or State health benefits program or by an entity that provides health services on a prepaid basis (except for a program administered by or providing the services of the Indian Health Services). Funds may also not be used towards pre-exposure prophylaxis (PrEP) or non-occupational post-exposure prophylaxis (nPEP) medications or medical services. As outlined in the June 22, 2016 RWHAP and PrEP program letter, the RWHAP legislation provides grant funds to be used for the care and treatment of PLWH, thus prohibiting the use of RWHAP funds for PrEP medications or related medical services, such as physician visits and laboratory costs. However, RWHAP Parts C recipients and subrecipients may provide prevention counseling and information, which should be part of a comprehensive PrEP program. Additionally, the purchase of sterile needles or syringes for the purposes of hypodermic injection of any illegal drug is not allowable. Some aspects of Syringe Services Programs are allowable with HRSA's prior approval and in compliance with HHS and HRSA policy (see: <https://www.hiv.gov/federal-response/policies-issues/syringe-services-programs>).

Applicant Eligibility:

Public and private nonprofit entities that are: federally qualified health centers under Section 1905(1)(2)(B) of the Social Security Act; recipients under Section 1001 of the PHS Act (regarding family planning) other than States; comprehensive hemophilia diagnostic and treatment centers; rural health clinics; health facilities operated by or pursuant to a contract with the Indian Health Service; community-based organizations, clinics, hospitals and other health facilities that provide early intervention services to those persons infected with HIV/AIDS through intravenous drug use; or nonprofit private entities that provide comprehensive primary care services to populations at-risk of HIV/AIDS, including faith-based and community-based organizations.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

Procedures for assessing the technical merit of grant applications have been instituted to provide an objective review of applications and to assist the applicant in understanding the standards against which each application will be judged. Critical indicators have been developed for each review criterion to assist the applicant in presenting pertinent information related to that criterion and to provide the reviewer with a standard for evaluation. Competing applications are reviewed by nonfederal reviewers for technical merit recommendations. Applications will be reviewed and evaluated against the following criteria: (1) Purpose and Need; (2) Response to Program Purpose; (3) Impact; (4) Organizational Information, Resources and Capabilities; and (5) Support Requested. See most recent Notice of Funding Opportunity for detailed review criteria.

93.926 HEALTHY START INITIATIVE

Healthy Start

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Health Resources and Services Administration, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Title III, Part D, Section 330H of the Public Health Service Act, (42 U.S.C.254c-8).

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of this grant program is to improve perinatal health outcomes and reduce racial and ethnic disparities in perinatal health outcomes by using community-based approaches to service delivery, and to facilitate access to comprehensive health and social services for women, infants, and their families. HS grants are provided to communities with rates of infant mortality at least 1 times the U.S. national average and high rates for other adverse perinatal outcomes (e.g., low birthweight, preterm birth, maternal morbidity and mortality) in order to address the needs of high-risk women and their families before, during, and after pregnancy.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The Healthy Start (HS) program aims to reduce disparities in infant mortality and adverse perinatal outcomes by: 1) improving womens health, 2) promoting quality services, 3) strengthening family resilience, 4) achieving collective impact, and 5) increasing accountability through quality improvement, performance monitoring, and evaluation. Healthy Start grantees continue to reduce high infant mortality rates (IMR) by assuring access to culturally competent, family-centered, and comprehensive health and social services to women, infants, and their families through a community-based participatory approach. Additionally, HS grantees foster systems integration, coordination, and collaboration to advance community change and increase collective impact. HS grantees also coordinate and align with State Title V Maternal and Child Health Block Grant programs to promote cooperation, integration, and dissemination of information with statewide systems and with other community services funded under Title V. Funds may not be used to supplant currently funded activities/services.

Applicant Eligibility:

Eligible Project Area

All applicants applying for funding under this grant notice must identify themselves as serving an urban, rural, or border community project area. A project area is defined as a geographic community in which the proposed services are to be implemented. A project area must represent a reasonable and logical catchment area, but the defined areas do not have to be contiguous. A map of the proposed project area must be included in the application.

Urban Territory, population, and housing units located within an urbanized area (UA) or an urban cluster (UC), which has:

- o a population density of at least 1,000 people per square mile; and
- o surrounding census blocks with an overall density of at least 500 people per square mile.

Rural To determine whether the Census tract or County for your proposed project area is defined as a rural area (RA), visit the webpage Rural Health Grants Eligibility Analyzer(<http://datawarehouse.hrsa.gov/RuralAdvisor/ruralhealthadvisor.aspx?ruralByAddr=1>) and enter the project area address.

US/Mexico Border - Border communities are those communities located within 62 miles/100 kilometers of the U.S./Mexico border. In order to be considered for Border Community funding, the project area and the target population to be served both have to reside within 62 miles/100 kilometers of the U.S./Mexico border.

Eligible Target Population

The target population is the population that the applicant will serve within their geographic project area and will determine their eligibility. The target population may range from a single racial/ethnic group to the entire project area population. The project area for which the applicant is applying and the proposed target population within that project area must be clearly identified to confirm eligibility.

Eligibility Factors Demonstrating Need

HRSA/MCHB must be able to verify submitted data with the appropriate state/local government agency responsible for vital statistics. Border community applicants that cannot provide this verifiable data may use the other indicators specified in the second section below. Project data for the eligibility factors for all applicants must be included in the applications transmittal letter and in the needs assessment section of the submitted application. The existing racial/ethnic disparities in these or other perinatal indicators should also be described in the needs assessment section of the application.

Applications that do not provide this information, in the manner described within this notice of funding opportunity (NOFO), will be considered ineligible and the application will be returned without review.

An applicant's target population within their proposed project area must meet the following verifiable criteria using the smallest statistical level of verifiable data available -- not to be any larger than a combination of counties (e.g. a city project should not report county-level data). HRSA-14-020, Urban and Rural Communities

Using verifiable three-year average data for calendar years 2007 through 2009, the proposed project area for communities which meet the urban or rural community definition must meet the following indicators from the list below.

The 2007-2009 combined three-year infant mortality rate (IMR, infant deaths per 1,000 live births over three years) must be equal to or more than 9.9 deaths per 1,000 live births (1.5 times the national average) AND there must be 20 or more infant deaths over the three years for the targeted population.

If the combined 2007-2009 number of infant deaths are less than (<)20, then to be eligible the following must be met: o The 2007-2009 three-year average low birthweight (LBW) is equal to or more than 12.3% (1.5 times the national average) AND there must be 100 or more LBW births in the targeted population for the three-year period, 2007 to 2009

OR

The 2007-2009 preterm births (PTB) is equal to or more than 18.6% (1.5 times the national average) AND there must be 100 or more PTB births in the targeted population for the period, 2007 to 2009

For Levels 2 and 3, if the combined 2007-2009 IMR is less than 9.9 deaths per 1,000 live births, then to be eligible the following must be met: o The applicant must demonstrate a 20% decrease in IMR in their target population for 2005-2009 (five-year combined average) and discuss how they were a significant contributor to this reduction

AND meet at least one of the following criteria:

The 2007-2009 three-year average low birthweight (LBW) is equal to or more than 12.3% (1.5 times the national average) AND there must be 100 or more LBW births in the targeted population for the three-year period, 2007 to 2009

OR

The 2007-2009 preterm births (PTB) is equal to or more than 18.6% (1.5 times the national average) AND there must be 100 or more PTB births in the targeted population for the period, 2007 to 2009

US/Mexico Border Communities

Using verifiable three-year average data for 2007 through 2009, the proposed target population for project areas which meet the border community definition

(i.e., within 62 miles of the U.S./Mexico border) must have at least 1,000 births for the three year period and meet at least three (3) indicators from the list below. If vital statistics are not available from state/local government agencies, border community applicants can use other verifiable data.

Percentage of women of childbearing age with diabetes is 3.1% or more;

Percentage of women of childbearing age who are obese is 31.8% or more;

Percentage of pregnant women entering prenatal care in the first trimester is less than 80%;

Percentage of births to women who had no prenatal care is greater than 2%;

Percentage of births to women who smoke is greater than 20%;

Percentage of children 0-2 years old with a completed schedule of immunization is less than 60%;

Percentage of children under 18 years of age with family incomes below the Federal Poverty Level exceeded 25% for 2010. If more recent verifiable poverty data is available, please provide this data and identify year and source; Percent of infants born large for gestational age (LGA) is 9.4 or greater.

The Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) has modified its reporting requirements for SPRANS projects, CISS projects, and other grant programs administered by the Maternal and Child Health Bureau (MCHB) to include national performance measures that were developed in accordance with the requirements of the Government Performance and Results Act (GPRA) of 1993 (Public Law 103-62). This Act requires the establishment of measurable goals for Federal programs that can be reported as part of the budgetary process, thus linking funding decisions with performance. Performance measures for States have also been established under the Block Grant provisions of Title V of the Social Security Act, the MCHBs authorizing legislation. Performance measures for other MCHB-funded grant programs have been approved by the Office of Management and Budget and are primarily based on existing or administrative data that projects should easily be able to access or collect.

93.917 HIV Care Formula Grants; 93.918 Grants to Provide Outpatient Early Intervention Services with Respect to HIV Disease

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2016: Fiscal Year 2016: Cooperative Agreements: Dissemination of Evidence-Informed Interventions to Improve Health Outcomes along the HIV Care Continuum Initiative - This initiative adapted four linkage and retention interventions from prior SPNS and the Secretary's Minority AIDS Initiative Fund (SMAIF) initiatives to improve health outcomes along the HIV care continuum. The initiative is funding two cooperative agreements, a Dissemination and Evaluation Center (DEC) for five years, and an Implementation Technical Assistance Center (ITAC) for four years. The end goal of the initiative is to produce four evidence-informed Care And Treatment Interventions (CATIs) that are replicable, cost-effective, capable of producing optimal HIV care continuum outcomes, and easily adaptable to the changing health care environment. The multi-site evaluation of this initiative will take a rigorous Implementation Science (IS) approach, which places greater emphasis on evaluation of the implementation process and cost analyses of the interventions, while seeking to improve the HIV care continuum outcomes of linkage, retention, re-engagement and viral suppression among client participants.

Grants: Use of Social Media to Improve Engagement, Retention, and Health Outcomes along the HIV Care Continuum Demonstration Sites - This initiative is a multi-site demonstration and evaluation of innovative social media methods designed to identify, link, and retain HIV positive underserved, underinsured, hard-to-reach youth and young adults (ages 13-34) in HIV primary care and supportive services. These methods include system approaches utilizing a variety of social media, Internet, and mobile-based technologies to improve engagement and retention in care and viral suppression. Demonstration projects are expected to implement these models, evaluate their effectiveness and to disseminate findings, best practices, and lessons learned. These social media interventions focus on youth and young adults living with HIV who are aware of their HIV infection status but have never been engaged in care; are aware but have refused referral to care; have dropped out of care; are infected with HIV but are unaware of their HIV status; or have not achieved viral suppression. Fiscal Year 2017: Fiscal Year 17: Improving Health Outcomes through the Coordination of Supportive Employment and Housing Services Demonstration Sites; Improving Health Outcomes through the Coordination of Supportive Employment and Housing Services Evaluation and Technical Assistance Provider; and Curing Hepatitis C among People of Color Living with HIV (SMAIF initiatives). Matching Requirements: This program has no statutory formula.

Matching Requirements: Grants may not be awarded to a Native Hawaiian Health Care System unless the entity agrees that it will make available, directly or through donations to the entity, nonfederal matching funds in an amount not less than $1 for every $5 of Federal funds provided. Nonfederal contributions may be in cash or in kind, fairly evaluated, including plant, equipment, or services. Amounts provided by Federal government or services assisted or subsidized to any significant extent by the Federal Government may not be included in determining the amount of such nonfederal contributions. Federal sources may be used as matching funds if received as fees, payments, or reimbursements for the provision of specific services, such as patient care reimbursements received under Medicare or Medicaid. The match requirements may be waived if the Secretary determines, in consultation with Papa Ola Lokahi, that it is not feasible for the entity to comply with the requirement. Grant funds may not be used to pay for (1) inpatient services; (2) cash payments to intended recipients of health services; or (3) purchasing or improving real property (other than minor remodeling of existing improvements to real property) or major medical equipment. The entity may not expend more than 10 percent of amounts received under the grant for administering the grant. Other requirements and limitations are set forth in the Native Hawaiian Health Care Improvement Act (42 USC 11701 - 11714)

There is no matching requirement for Papa Ola Lokahi.

MOE requirements are not applicable to this program.

The regulation incorporates the thresholds and deadlines of OMB Circular No. A-133, but provides for profit organizations with two options for the type of audit that will satisfy the audit requirement: 1. a financial related audit of the HHS awards in accordance with Government Auditing Standards, or 2. an audit that meets the requirements of OMB Circular No. A-133. Those grantees must retain the records pertinent to the entire competitive segment for 3 years from the date the FSR is submitted to NIH. Foreign organizations and Federal institutions must retain records for 3 years from the date of submission of the annual FSR to NIH. Those sections also specify the retention period for other types of grant-related records, including F&A cost proposals and property records. See 45 CFR 74.48 and 92.36 for record retention and access requirements for contracts under grants. In accordance with 45 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 74.53(e), the HHS Inspector General, the U.S. Comptroller General, or any of their duly authorized representatives have the right of timely and unrestricted access to any books, documents, papers, or other records of recipients that are pertinent to awards in order to make audits, examinations, excerpts, transcripts, and copies of such documents. This right also includes timely and reasonable access to a recipients personnel record for the purpose of interview and discussion related to such documents. 93.938 COOPERATIVE AGREEMENTS TO SUPPORT COMPREHENSIVE SCHOOL HEALTH PROGRAMS TO PREVENT THE SPREAD OF HIV AND OTHER IMPORTANT HEALTH PROBLEMS

(SHEPSA)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, 42 U.S.C 241(a) & 243(b).

OBJECTIVES:

To improve the health and well-being of youth and prepare them to be healthy adults.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Cooperative Agreement funds may be used to support personnel, purchase equipment, supplies, services, and travel directly related to the program activities and consistent with the scope of this program. Cooperative agreement funds are used to help schools prevent sexual risk behaviors that result in HIV infection, especially among youth who are at highest risk. For example, cooperative agreement recipients implement and integrate effective policies and educational strategies to reduce risk behaviors that lead to HIV infection among youth; implement strategies to reduce disparities among sub-populations of youth disproportionately affected by HIV infection and other health problems related to sexual risk behaviors; evaluate the implementation and effectiveness of strategies to reduce risks for HIV infection among youth in schools for the purposes of programmatic improvement and long-range planning. CDC believes that the specific scope and content of HIV education programs in schools should be locally determined and should be consistent with parental and community values. CDC supports local decision-making by providing sound scientific information to grantees who work directly with schools, communities, and parents. Funds may be expended for written materials, pictorials, audiovisuals, questionnaires or survey instruments, and educational group sessions related to HIV education for youth, school, and college populations if approved in accordance with the document "Content of AIDS-Related Written Materials, Pictorials, Audiovisuals, Questionnaires, Survey Instruments, and Educational Sessions in Centers for Disease Control Assistance Programs." Cooperative agreement funds are also used to build state education and state health agency partnership and capacity to implement and coordinate school health programs across agencies and within schools. The expected outcome of this effort is to help schools reduce chronic disease risk factors, including tobacco use, poor nutrition, and physical inactivity. For example, cooperative agreement recipients implement and integrate effective policies, environmental changes, and educational strategies to reduce unhealthy behaviors; leverage resources to avoid duplication at the state and local levels; evaluate school health capacity-building efforts while implementing effective strategies to reduce priority health risks. Funds may not be used to conduct research projects, provide direct delivery of patient care or treatment services, and purchase or disseminate condoms. Although public health may have an assurance role in clinical testing and screening, funds are not to be used to provide clinical testing or screening services. Funds may not be used for purchasing computer equipment, office equipment or furnishing, renting or leasing office space, or to support construction or renovation unless specifically approved.

93.945 ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS FOR CHRONIC DISEASE PREVENTION AND CONTROL

(State Cardiovascular Health Programs (CVH); and Racial and Ethnic Approaches to Community Health (REACH)); State Public Health Approaches to Improving Arthritis Outcomes, State Nutrition, Physical Activity and Obesity Programs.

State Public Health Actions to Prevent and Control Diabetes, Heart Disease Obesity and Associated Risk Factors and Promote School Health.

Using Traditional Foods and Sustainable Ecological Approaches for Health Promotion and Diabetes Prevention in American Indian/Alaska Native Communities.

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act., Title 42, Section 301(a) and 317.

OBJECTIVES:

To work with State health agencies and other public and private nonprofit organizations in planning, developing, integrating, coordinating, or evaluating programs to prevent and control chronic diseases; assist in monitoring the major behavioral risks associated with the 10 leading causes of premature death and disability in the United States including cardiovascular diseases; and, establish new chronic disease prevention programs like Racial and Ethnic Approaches to Community Health (REACH), State Nutrition, Physical Activity and Obesity Programs (NPAO)

DP08-819/DP13-1317: Purpose - The purpose of the program is to 1) support community use of traditional foods and sustainable ecological approaches for diabetes prevention and health promotion in American Indian and Alaska Native communities; and 2) engage communities in identifying and sharing the stories of healthy traditional ways of eating, being active, and communicating health information and support for diabetes prevention and wellness.

CDC-RFA-DP13-1305, State Public Health Actions to Prevent and Control Diabetes, Heart Disease, Obesity and Associated Risk Factors and Promote School Health, supports statewide implementation of cross-cutting approaches to promote health and prevent and control chronic diseases and their risk factors. Four chronic disease prevention programs (Diabetes; Heart Disease and Stroke Prevention; Nutrition, Physical Activity, and Obesity; and School Health) are included in this FOA. State Health Departments are funded under this FOA to address the following goals:

Short/Intermediate Term Goals:

Improve state, community, worksite, school, and early childhood environments to promote and reinforce healthful behaviors across the lifespan related to diabetes, cardiovascular health, physical activity, healthful foods and beverages, obesity, and breastfeeding;

Improve effective delivery and use of quality clinical and other preventive services aimed at preventing and managing diabetes and hypertension; and Increase community-clinical linkages to support prevention, self-management, and control of diabetes, hypertension, and obesity.

Long Term Goals:

Improved prevention and control of hypertension

Improved prevention and control of diabetes

Improved prevention and control of overweight and obesity

The FOA has two components: 1) A basic non-competitive component to support health promotion, epidemiology, and surveillance activities and targeted strategies that will result in measurable impacts to address school health, nutrition and physical activity risk factors, obesity, diabetes, and heart disease and stroke prevention in all 50 states and the District of Columbia. These efforts will be supported by core public health activities such as partnership engagement, workforce development, guidance and support for programmatic efforts, strategic communication, surveillance and epidemiology, and evaluation; and 2) A competitive enhanced component to build on and extend the activities supported with basic funding to achieve even greater reach and impact. Thirty-two states were funded under the enhanced Component to implement evidence and practice-based interventions to improve physical activity and nutrition, reduce obesity, and prevent and control diabetes, heart disease, and stroke with a focus on high blood pressure. The enhanced component includes implementation of evidence-based strategies that are more extensive and wider-reaching than those implemented in the basic component. States funded for this enhanced component must implement interventions at scale in order to reach large segments of the population in the state (e.g., through school districts, early care and education (ECEs), worksites, and state and local governmental agencies) and in partnership with organizations that may or may not have worked with state departments of health in the past (e.g., large employers, public housing, the education sector, health insurers, and large health systems).

93.946 COOPERATIVE AGREEMENTS TO SUPPORT STATE-BASED SAFE MOTHERHOOD AND INFANT HEALTH INITIATIVE PROGRAMS

Safe Motherhood and Infant Health (Reproductive Health)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act; Safe Motherhood, Section 317K; Prenatal and Postnatal Health, Section 317L, 42 U.S.C 247b-12 and 13.

OBJECTIVES:

To promote optimal and equitable health in women and infants through public health surveillance, research, leadership, and partnership to move science to practice. In carrying out this mission, the Division of Reproductive Health: 1) Enhances the ability of others to identify and address male and female reproductive issues and infant health issues by providing technical assistance, consultation, and training worldwide; 2) supports national and state-based surveillance systems to monitor trends and investigate health issues; 3) conducts epidemiologic, behavioral, demographic and health services research; and 4) works with partners to translate research findings into health care practice, public health policy, and health promotion strategies.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

PRAMS:

The Pregnancy Risk Assessment Monitoring System, is a surveillance project of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and state health departments. PRAMS collects state-specific, population-based data on maternal attitudes and experiences before, during, and shortly after pregnancy.

PRAMS provides data for state health officials to use to improve the health of mothers and infants; allows CDC and the states to monitor changes in maternal and child health indicators (e.g., unintended pregnancy, prenatal care, breastfeeding, smoking, drinking, infant health); and enhances information from birth certificates used to plan and review state maternal and infant health programs. The PRAMS sample is chosen from all women who had a live birth recently, so findings can be applied to the state's entire population of women who have recently delivered a live-born infant. PRAMS not only provides state-specific data but also allows comparisons among participating states because the same data collection methods are used in all states.

SID/SUID (Sudden infant Death/Sudden Unexplained Infant Death):

The SUID Case Registry aims to generate public health surveillance information about SUID at the national, state, and local levels that is more detailed than what is currently available. Instead of creating an entirely new system, the SUID Case Registry enhances the National Center for Child Death Review program and their Case Reporting System.

The SUID Case Registry generates public health surveillance information that can comprehensively describe the circumstances and events surrounding SUID cases. This will allow researchers, medicolegal investigators, and program prevention planners to better understand characteristics associated with SUID, evaluate case investigation practices, and ultimately prevent infant deaths.

Validation of Prenatal Substance Use Screening Tools:

The purpose of this research is to validate and compare the performance of the most promising substance abuse screening tools that are already available in the literature (for example, the 4Ps-plus, the 5Ps, the Substance Use Risk Profile Pregnancy Scale (SURP-P), the CRAFFT, the NIDA Quick Screen) and can be used among pregnant women seeking medical services (e.g. antenatal or delivery care) in clinical settings in the United States.

Medicaid Expansion and Reproductive Health Care for Women: The intent of this FOA is to study the use of medical services and health outcomes among low-income women of reproductive age (15-44 years), before and after expansion of Medicaid eligibility. This research will require linkage of state Medicaid data with other key maternal and child health datasets including, but not limited to, birth certificates, death certificates, and hospital discharge data.

Perinatal Quality Collaboratives:

This FOA will support states to enhance the capabilities of state-based perinatal quality collaboratives to improve the quality of perinatal care in their states, including but not limited to: reducing early elective deliveries, increasing use and documentation of use of antenatal steroids, increasing breastfeeding rates, and reducing central line-associated blood stream infections in neonates. Module B will continue to support the work of the 3 states that have successfully expanded their Perinatal Quality Collaborative through an existing FOA, CDC-RFA- DP11-1110, that ends September 29, 2014, and will support expansion of PQC projects and formal mentoring and capacity building for Module A awardees.

Maternal and Child Health Capacity Building:

The program promotes and improves the health and well-being of women, children, and families by building capacity at state, local, and tribal levels and to use and apply sound epidemiologic research and scientific information to maternal and child health programs and policies through collaborations with partners.

Special Interest Project (SIP)/Progestin contraception and HIV risk: Clinical and laboratory follow-up of a cohort of HIV-infected and uninfected women: The purpose of this SIP is to establish a cohort of HIV-infected and HIV-uninfected women on different types of progestin-containing contraception to assess differences in women's continuation with a given method and the effects of long-term progestin use on markers of HIV risk and efficacy of ART. Also the project will support laboratory studies to analyze the effects of progestin on HIV shedding, inflammatory/immune markers in the genital tract, and the interaction of progestin with antiretroviral therapy on contraceptive and ART efficacy. Objectives in the topic area of Family Planning and HIV Prevention intend to increase the proportion of pregnancies that are intended; increase the proportion of sexually experienced persons who received reproductive health services; reduce pregnancy rates among adolescent females; and reduce the rate of HIV transmission among adolescents and adults.

Teen Pregnancy Prevention:

The program is supporting public and private entities to fund medically accurate and age appropriate evidence-based or innovative program models to reduce teen pregnancy. The purpose of the program is to reduce teen pregnancy by working directly with publicly funded clinics to increase access to and use of reproductive health services among vulnerable youth. Activities include building the capacity of staff and clinical providers, establishing partnerships with youth-serving systems, and developing communication efforts. The primary target population is 15- to 19-year-olds, the age group among whom the majority of teen births occur; however, since the Society of Adolescent Health and Medicine and the United Nations Family Planning Association define adolescents as 15-24, the target age group may be expanded.

Development and Testing of a Clinic-Based Intervention to Increase Dual Protection against Unintended Pregnancy and STDs among High Risk Female Teens: The purpose of this funding opportunity is to develop and evaluate a clinic-based intervention addressing access to, motivation for, and adherence to dual protection strategies that concurrently protect against unintended pregnancies and sexually transmitted diseases (STDs), including human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) among high risk 15-19 year old females.

A single-source award to the Agency for Human Services will enable CMS to expeditiously provide assistance to Vermont for the following specific activities: connect Medicare Fee-for-Service beneficiaries with community-based resources, coordinate transitions across care settings with appropriate involvement of the Medicare Fee-for-Service beneficiaries primary care provider, coordinate care across providers, support health promotion and self-management by Medicare Fee-for-Service beneficiaries, and support practice improvement and transformation. These activities are necessary for Vermont to achieve the goals of the Model. We note that the other components of the Model (e.g., Vermont-specific Medicare ACO initiative and statewide health outcomes, financial, and ACO scale targets) are governed by a separate State Agreement into which Vermont and CMS have entered.

Applicant Eligibility:

This single source funding opportunity provides Vermont with the necessary start-costs of the Model and is open to Vermonts Agency for Human Services (Agency). The Agency is uniquely positioned to meet the objectives of this funding opportunity based on its existing knowledge of the Model, its regulatory authority over healthcare in Vermont and its role in administering the Vermont All-payer ACO Model, its existing partnerships and collaborations with Vermont providers, and its resources and ability to deploy the funding immediately.

Knowledge of the Model: the Agency is intimately familiar with the objectives of the Model. The Agency was a key member of the discussions between Vermont and CMS during the development of the Model; the Agency's Secretary and staff dedicated significant time, energy, and resources over the past year in partnering with CMS to establish the Models financial, health outcomes, and ACO scale targets. This existing familiarity and knowledge of the Model will help the Agency to expediently deploy the upfront investment in the Model offered under this funding opportunity announcement.

Authority and role in administering the Model: The Agency is responsible for ensuring that changes in Vermonts health system improve the conditions and well-being of Vermonters. The Agency has broad Vermont healthcare authority to improve the health of Vermonters and control the rate of growth in healthcare costs. Additionally, the Agency is a signatory to the Vermont All-payer ACO Models State Agreement and will be supporting the State in achieving its obligations under the State Agreement. The Agency can effectively complement this funding opportunity with its existing authority and role in administering the Model to ensure the funding is effectively used in achieving the Models goals.

Existing partnership and collaboration: The Agency is located in Vermont and has existing relationships and a history of collaboration with Vermont providers and community-based resources that would benefit from this funding opportunity. The Agency has also been working with these stakeholders for their input through the development of the Model.

Resources and ability to implement immediately: The Agency has the staff to implement this award immediately to support providers engaging in care coordination and linking beneficiaries to community-based resources.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

CMS is committed to achieving better care for individuals, better health for populations, and reduced expenditures for Medicare, Medicaid, and CHIP. Through the Innovation Center, CMS strives towards these goals by testing innovative payment and service delivery models. CMS believes that states can be critical partners of the federal government and other health care payers to facilitate the design, implementation, and evaluation of community-centered health systems that can deliver significantly improved cost, quality, and population health performance results for all state residents, including Medicare, Medicaid, and CHIP beneficiaries. States have policy and regulatory authorities, as well as ongoing relationships with commercial healthcare payers, health plans, and providers that can accelerate delivery system reform.

CMS has previously partnered with states to accelerate delivery system reform through initiatives such as the State Innovations Model (SIM). SIM provides state-based healthcare transformation efforts with funding to test the ability of states to utilize policy and regulatory levers to accelerate multi-payer health care transformation. Selected states have been working with state-based payers, including Medicaid and commercial payers, and providers to design and implement care delivery and payment reform. States participating in SIM were selected through two rounds of public Funding Opportunity Announcements released on August 23, 2012 (Round 1) and May 22, 2014 (Round 2).

Additionally, CMS has released guidance to SIM state participants in which CMS indicated that in certain instances it will consider state proposals for Medicare alignment with state multi-payer payment and care delivery models. According to that guidance, CMS indicated that CMS would assess such proposals with consideration of the following principles: 1) patient-centered, 2) accountable for total cost of care, 3) transformative, 4) broad-based, 5) feasible to implement, and 6) feasible to evaluate. Vermont was one state that approached CMS with a desire for Medicare alignment with the states payment and care delivery model, and Vermont publicly released its proposal on January 25, 2016. CMS reviewed Vermonts proposal and determined that it met the requirements necessary to explore in detail a potential Vermont-specific model.

In October 2016, CMS and the State of Vermont entered into a State Agreement on the Vermont All-payer ACO Model. Under the Model, CMS will test whether health and care delivery for Vermont residents improve and healthcare expenditures for beneficiaries across payers (including Medicare fee-for-service, Vermont Medicaid, Vermont Commercial Plans, and Vermont Self-insured Plans) decrease if a) the aforementioned payers offer Vermont ACOs risk-based arrangements tied to health outcomes and healthcare expenditures; b) the majority of Vermont providers and/or suppliers enter into such risk-based arrangements; and c) the majority of Vermont residents across payers are aligned to an ACO bound by such arrangements. Start-up funding through a Cooperative Agreement will assist Vermont in achieving the above goals of the Model.

As part of the Model, Vermont providers will participate in a Vermont-specific Medicare ACO initiative (the Vermont Medicare ACO Initiative), and CMS will provide $9.5M in start-up costs to assist Vermont providers with care coordination and bolster their collaboration with community-based resources. In return, Vermont commits to achieving statewide health outcomes, financial, and ACO scale (percentage of Vermont residents aligned to an ACO) targets both for Medicare and across all significant healthcare payers.

CMS believes that care coordination and collaboration with community-based resources will be necessary in order to achieve the financial, health outcomes, and ACO scale targets required under the Model. The start-up costs of the Model that CMS is providing to Vermont through a Cooperative Agreement will support such care coordination and collaboration with community-based resources, and will better enable Vermont to achieve the Models financial, health outcomes, and ACO scale targets.

Credentials/Documentation:

Employer Identification Number: All applicants must have a valid Employer

Identification Number (EIN) assigned by the Internal Revenue Service.

Dun and Bradstreet (D&B) Data Universal Numbering System (DUNS number): All applicants must have a Dun and Bradstreet (D&B) Data Universal Numbering System (DUNS) number in order to apply. The DUNS number is a nine-digit identification number that uniquely identifies business entities. Obtaining a DUNS number is free. To obtain a DUNS number, access the following website: www.dunandbradstreet.com or call 1-866-705-5711. See Section IV, Application and Submission Information, for more information on obtaining a DUNS number.

System for Award Management (SAM)

All applicants must register in the System for Award Management (SAM)* database (<https://www.sam.gov/portal/public/SAM/>) in order to be able to submit an application at <http://www.grants.gov>. In order to register, applicants must provide their DUNS and EIN numbers. Each year, organizations and entities, registered to apply for Federal grants through Grants.gov must renew their registration with SAM. Each year organizations and entities must renew their registration with SAM. Failure to renew SAM registration prior to application submission will prevent an applicant from successfully applying via Grants.gov. Similarly, failure to maintain an active SAM registration during the application review process can prevent CMS from issuing your agency an award under this program. Applicants should begin the SAM registration process as soon as possible after the announcement is posted to ensure that it does not impair your ability to meet required submission deadlines. Applicants must successfully register with SAM prior to submitting an application or registering in the Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act Sub-award Reporting System (FSRS) as a prime awardee user; awardees may make sub-awards only to entities that have DUNS numbers.

Organizations must report executive compensation as part of the registration profile at <https://www.sam.gov/portal/public/SAM/> by the end of the month following the month in which this award is made, and annually thereafter (based on the reporting requirements of the Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act (FFATA) of 2006 (Pub. L. 109-282), as amended by Section 6202 of Public Law 110-252 and implemented by 2 CFR Part 170). 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards applies to this program. Application Materials;

Application materials will be available for download at <http://www.grants.gov>. Please note that HHS requires applications for all announcements to be submitted electronically through <http://www.grants.gov>. For assistance with <http://www.grants.gov>, contact support@grants.gov or 1-800-518-4726. At Grants.gov, applicants will be able to download a copy of the application packet, complete it off-line, and then upload and submit the application via the Grants.gov website.

Specific instructions for applications submitted via <http://www.grants.gov>:

* You may access the electronic application for this project at <http://www.grants.gov>. You must search the downloadable application page by the CFDA number.

* At the <http://www.grants.gov> website, you will find information about submitting an application electronically through the site, including the hours of operation. HHS strongly recommends that you do not wait until the application due date to begin the application process through <http://www.grants.gov> because of the time needed to complete the required registration steps.

* The applicant must be registered in the System for Award Management (SAM) database in order to be able to submit the application. Applicants are encouraged to register early, and must have their DUNS and EIN/TIN numbers in order to do so.

* Authorized Organizational Representative: The Authorized Organizational Representative (AOR) who will officially submit an application on behalf of the organization must register with grants.gov for a username and password. AORs must complete a profile with Grants.gov using their organizations DUNS Number to obtain their username and password at http://grants.gov/applicants/get_registered.jsp. AORs must wait one business day after successful registration in SAM before entering their profiles in Grants.gov. Applicants should complete this process as soon as possible after successful registration in SAM to ensure this step is completed in time to apply before application deadlines.

* When an AOR registers with Grants.gov to submit applications on behalf of an organization, that organizations E-Biz POC will receive an email notification. The email address provided in the profile will be the email used to send the notification from Grants.gov to the E-Biz POC with the AOR copied on the correspondence.

* The E-Biz POC must then login to Grants.gov (using the organizations DUNS number for the username and the special password called M-PIN) and approve the AOR, thereby providing permission to submit applications.

* Any files uploaded or attached to the Grants.gov application must be PDF file format and must contain a valid file format extension in the filename. Even though Grants.gov allows applicants to attach any file formats as part of their application, CMS restricts this practice and only accepts PDF file formats. Any file submitted as part of the Grants.gov application that is not in a PDF file format, or contains password protection, will not be accepted for processing and will be excluded from the application during the review process. In addition, the use of compressed file formats such as ZIP, RAR, or Adobe Portfolio will not be accepted. The application must be submitted in a file format that can easily be copied and read by reviewers. It is recommended that scanned copies not be submitted through Grants.gov unless the applicant confirms the clarity of the documents. Pages cannot be reduced in size, resulting in multiple pages on a single sheet, to avoid exceeding the page limitation. All documents that do not conform to the above specifications will be excluded from the application materials during the review process.

* After you electronically submit your application, you will receive an acknowledgment from Grants.gov that contains a Grants.gov tracking number. CMS will retrieve your application package from Grants.gov. Please note that applicants may incur a time delay before they receive acknowledgment that the application has been accepted by the Grants.gov system. Applicants should not wait until the application deadline to apply because notification by Grants.gov that the application is incomplete may not be received until close to or after the application deadline, eliminating the opportunity to correct errors and resubmit the application. Applications submitted after the deadline, as a result of errors on the part of the applicant, will not be accepted.

* After CMS retrieves your application package from Grants.gov, a return receipt will be emailed to the applicant contact. This will be in addition to the validation number provided by Grants.gov.

Applications cannot be accepted through any email address. Full applications can only be accepted through <http://www.grants.gov>. Full applications cannot be received via paper mail, courier, or delivery service.

All grant applications must be submitted electronically and be received through <http://www.grants.gov> by 3:00 pm Eastern Daylight Time on the applicable due date. Applications not successfully submitted to Grants.gov by the due date and time will not be eligible for review. All applications will receive an automatic time stamp upon submission and applicants will receive an email reply acknowledging the applications receipt.

Please be aware of the following:

1) Search for the application package in Grants.gov by entering the CFDA number. This number is shown on the cover page of this announcement.

2) If you experience technical challenges while submitting your application electronically, please contact Grants.gov Support directly at: www.grants.gov/customersupport or (800) 518-4726. Customer Support is available to address questions 24 hours a day, 7 days a week (except on Federal holidays).

3) Upon contacting Grants.gov, obtain a tracking number as proof of contact. The tracking number is helpful if there are technical issues that cannot be resolved.

To be considered timely, applications must be received by the published deadline date. However, a general extension of a published application deadline that affects all State applicants or only those in a defined geographical area may be authorized by circumstances that affect the public at large, such as natural disasters (e.g., floods or hurricanes) or disruptions of electronic (e.g., application receipt services) or other services, such as a prolonged blackout. This statement does not apply to an individual entity having Internet service problems. In order for there to be any consideration there must be an effect on the public at large.

Grants.gov complies with Section 508 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973. If an individual uses assistive technology and is unable to access any material on the site including forms contained with an application package, they can email the Grants.gov contact center at support@grants.gov or call 1-800-518-4726.

Applicant Eligibility:

This single source funding opportunity provides Pennsylvania with the necessary start-up funding for the Model and is open to Pennsylvanias Department of Health and later the Rural Health Redesign Center.

First, the Pennsylvania Department of Health is uniquely positioned as the initial applicant under this funding opportunity to meet the objectives of this funding opportunity based on its existing knowledge of the Model, its regulatory authority over healthcare in Pennsylvania, and its capacity to administer the Pennsylvania Rural Health Model including operationalizing the Rural Health Redesign Center, and its existing partnerships and collaborations with Pennsylvania providers.

Knowledge of the Model: The Pennsylvania Department of Health is intimately familiar with the objectives of the Model. Pennsylvanias Department of Health was a key member of the discussions between Pennsylvania and CMS during the development of the Model; the Pennsylvania's Secretary of Health and staff dedicated significant time, energy, and resources over the past year in partnering with CMS to establish the Model's financial, health outcomes, and rural hospital scale targets. This existing familiarity and knowledge of the Model will help the Pennsylvania Department of Health to expediently deploy the start-up funding offered under this funding opportunity announcement and successfully operationalize the Rural Health Redesign Center.

Authority and role in administering the Model: The Pennsylvania Department of Health is responsible for ensuring that changes in Pennsylvania's health system improve the conditions and well-being of Pennsylvanians. The Pennsylvania Department of Health has broad healthcare authority to administer the payments under the model and to improve the health of Pennsylvanians and control the rate of growth in healthcare costs. Additionally, the Pennsylvania Department of Health is a signatory to the Pennsylvania Rural Health Models State Agreement and will be supporting the State in achieving its obligations under the State Agreement.

Existing partnership and collaboration: The Pennsylvania Department of Health is located in Pennsylvania and has existing relationships and a history of collaboration with Pennsylvania providers, payers, and community-based resources that would benefit from this funding opportunity. Pennsylvania's Department of Health has also been working with these stakeholders for their input and participation throughout the development of the Model.

Second, the Rural Health Redesign Center as the second applicant, will also be uniquely positioned to meet the objectives of this funding opportunity. Pennsylvania's Department of Health will legislatively create the Rural Health Redesign Center as an independent entity with authority over the implementation of the Pennsylvania Rural Health Model. The RHRC will approve hospital transformation plans, global budgets, exception adjustments and changes to operational and payment mechanisms associated with the Model as defined under the State Agreement. The RHRC will also establish and build strong relationships with Pennsylvania rural hospitals as the rural hospitals implement the Model. The RHRC will continue to strengthen these relationships as it implements the activities required under the Model. Similar to Pennsylvania's Department of Health, the RHRC will be uniquely positioned to support this Model as it will be legislatively created solely to provide implementation support for the Model.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

CMS is committed to achieving better care for individuals, better health for populations, and reduced expenditures for Medicare, Medicaid, and CHIP. Through the Innovation Center, CMS strives towards these goals by testing innovative payment and service delivery models. CMS believes that states can be critical partners of the federal government and other health care payers to facilitate the design, implementation, and evaluation of community-centered health systems that can deliver significantly improved cost, quality, and population health performance results for all state residents, including Medicare, Medicaid, and CHIP beneficiaries. States have policy and regulatory authorities, as well as ongoing relationships with commercial healthcare payers, health plans, and providers that can accelerate delivery system reform.

CMS has previously partnered with states to accelerate delivery system reform through initiatives such as the State Innovations Model (SIM) program. SIM provides state-based healthcare transformation efforts with funding to test the ability of states to utilize policy and regulatory levers to accelerate multi-payer health care transformation. Selected states have been working with state-based payers, including Medicaid and commercial payers, and providers to design and implement care delivery and payment reform. States participating in SIM were selected through two rounds of public Funding Opportunity Announcements released on August 23, 2012 (Round 1) and May 22, 2014 (Round 2).

Additionally, CMS has released guidance to SIM state participants in which CMS indicated that in certain instances it will consider state proposals for Medicare alignment with state multi-payer payment and care delivery models. According to that guidance, CMS would assess such proposals with consideration of the following principles: 1) patient-centered, 2) accountable for total cost of care, 3) transformative, 4) broad-based, 5) feasible to implement, and 6) feasible to evaluate. Pennsylvania was one state that approached CMS with a desire for Medicare alignment with the states payment and care delivery model, and Pennsylvania submitted its proposal to CMS on May 23, 2016. CMS reviewed Pennsylvania's proposal and determined that it met the requirements necessary to explore in detail a potential Pennsylvania-specific model.

CMS, the Governor of Pennsylvania and Pennsylvania's Department of Health, will enter into a State Agreement on the Pennsylvania Rural Health Model. Under the Model, CMS will test the effect of deliberate care delivery transformation of rural acute care hospitals and critical access hospitals (CAHs) on quality and costs of care. The Model places these hospitals on all-payer, prospective global budgets for inpatient and outpatient services. As part of the State Agreement, Pennsylvania committed to legislatively creating the Rural Health Redesign Center (the RHRC) to operate the Model. This funding opportunity offers $5M in start-up funding to the Pennsylvania Department of Health to operationalize the RHRC. The RHRC will be the central independent entity operating the Model and supporting hospitals through technical assistance, data analytics, monitoring, and evaluation. This funding opportunity also offers the RHRC (once operationalized by the Pennsylvania Department of Health) to apply for an additional $10 million to begin implementing activities under the Model. In return, Pennsylvania commits to achieving health outcomes, financial, and Rural Hospital scale (number of Rural Hospitals participating in the Model) targets both for Medicare and across all significant healthcare payers as defined in the State Agreement.

CMS believes that model oversight, global budget administration, data analytics, technical assistance, and quality assurance will be necessary in order to implement the Model and achieve the financial, health outcomes, and rural hospital scale targets required under the Model. First, CMS will provide start-up funding to the Pennsylvania Department of Health for 12 months from the date of award. Then, CMS will provide the Rural Health Redesign Center, through a separate cooperative agreement award, with initial implementation funding for 36 months from the date of award. These cooperative agreement awards will support operationalizing the Rural Health Redesign Center and initial Model implementation efforts, and will better enable Pennsylvania to achieve the Model's financial, health outcomes, and rural hospital scale targets as defined under the State Agreement.

System for Award Management (SAM)

All applicants must register in the System for Award Management (SAM)* database (<https://www.sam.gov/portal/public/SAM/>) in order to be able to submit an application at <http://www.grants.gov>. In order to register, applicants must provide their DUNS and EIN numbers. Each year, organizations and entities, registered to apply for Federal grants through Grants.gov must renew their registration with SAM. Each year organizations and entities must renew their registration with SAM. Failure to renew SAM registration prior to application submission will prevent an applicant from successfully applying via Grants.gov. Similarly, failure to maintain an active SAM registration during the application review process can prevent CMS from issuing your agency an award under this program. Applicants should begin the SAM registration process as soon as possible after the announcement is posted to ensure that it does not impair your ability to meet required submission deadlines. Applicants must successfully register with SAM prior to submitting an application or registering in the Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act Sub-award Reporting System (FSRS) as a prime awardee user; awardees may make sub-awards only to entities that have DUNS numbers. Organizations must report executive compensation as part of the registration profile at <https://www.sam.gov/portal/public/SAM/> by the end of the month following the month in which this award is made, and annually thereafter (based on the reporting requirements of the Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act (FFATA) of 2006 (Pub. L. 109-282), as amended by Section 6202 of Public Law 110-252 and implemented by 2 CFR Part 170). 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

2 CFR 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards applies to this program. Applications will be submitted electronically through GrantSolutions in response to the Funding Opportunity Announcement (FOA).

Application Materials:

Application materials will be available for download at <http://www.grants.gov>. Please note that HHS requires applications for all announcements to be submitted electronically through <http://www.grants.gov>. For assistance with <http://www.grants.gov>, contact support@grants.gov or 1-800-518-4726. At Grants.gov, applicants will be able to download a copy of the application packet, complete it off-line, and then upload and submit the application via the Grants.gov website.

Specific instructions for applications submitted via <http://www.grants.gov>:

You may access the electronic application for this project at <http://www.grants.gov>. You must search the downloadable application page by the CFDA number.

At the <http://www.grants.gov> website, you will find information about submitting an application electronically through the site, including the hours of operation. HHS strongly recommends that you do not wait until the application due date to begin the application process through <http://www.grants.gov> because of the time needed to complete the required registration steps.

The applicant must be registered in the System for Award Management (SAM) database in order to be able to submit the application. Applicants are encouraged to register early, and must have their DUNS and EIN/TIN numbers in order to do so.

Authorized Organizational Representative: The Authorized Organizational Representative (AOR) who will officially submit an application on behalf of the organization must register with grants.gov for a username and password. AORs must complete a profile with Grants.gov using their organizations DUNS Number to obtain their username and password at http://grants.gov/applicants/get_registered.jsp. AORs must wait one business day after successful registration in SAM before entering their profiles in Grants.gov. Applicants should complete this process as soon as possible after successful registration in SAM to ensure this step is completed in time to apply before application deadlines.

When an AOR registers with Grants.gov to submit applications on behalf of an organization, that organizations E-Biz POC will receive an email notification. The email address provided in the profile will be the email used to send the notification from Grants.gov to the E-Biz POC with the AOR copied on the correspondence.

The E-Biz POC must then login to Grants.gov (using the organizations DUNS number for the username and the special password called M-PIN) and approve the AOR, thereby providing permission to submit applications.

Any files uploaded or attached to the Grants.Gov application must be PDF file format and must contain a valid file format extension in the filename. Even though Grants.gov allows applicants to attach any file formats as part of their application, CMS restricts this practice and only accepts PDF file formats. Any file submitted as part of the Grants.gov application that is not in a PDF file format, or contains password protection, will not be accepted for processing and will be excluded from the application during the review process. In addition, the use of compressed file formats such as ZIP, RAR, or Adobe Portfolio will not be accepted. The application must be submitted in a file format that can easily be copied and read by reviewers. It is recommended that scanned copies not be submitted through Grants.gov unless the applicant confirms the clarity of the documents. Pages cannot be reduced in size, resulting in multiple pages on a single sheet, to avoid exceeding the page limitation. All documents that do not conform to the above specifications will be excluded from the application materials during the review process.

After you electronically submit your application, you will receive an acknowledgement from Grants.gov that contains a Grants.gov tracking number. CMS will retrieve your application package from Grants.gov. Please note that applicants may incur a time delay before they receive acknowledgement that the application has been accepted by the Grants.gov system. Applicants should not wait until the application deadline to apply because notification by Grants.gov that the application is incomplete may not be received until close to or after the application deadline, eliminating the opportunity to correct errors and resubmit the application. Applications submitted after the deadline, as a result of errors on the part of the applicant, will not be accepted.

After CMS retrieves your application package from Grants.gov, a return receipt will be emailed to the applicant contact. This will be in addition to the validation number provided by Grants.gov.

Applications cannot be accepted through any email address. Full applications can only be accepted through <http://www.grants.gov>. Full applications cannot be received via paper mail, courier, or delivery service.

All grant applications must be submitted electronically and be received through <http://www.grants.gov> by 3:00 pm Eastern Daylight Time on the applicable due date. Applications not successfully submitted to Grants.gov by the due date and time will not be eligible for review. All applications will receive an automatic time stamp upon submission and applicants will receive an email reply acknowledging the applications receipt.

Please be aware of the following:

- 1) Search for the application package in Grants.gov by entering the CFDA number. This number is shown on the cover page of this announcement.
- 2) If you experience technical challenges while submitting your application electronically, please contact Grants.gov Support directly at: www.grants.gov/customer-support or (800) 518-4726. Customer Support is available to address questions 24 hours a day, 7 days a week (except on Federal holidays).
- 3) Upon contacting Grants.gov, obtain a tracking number as proof of contact. The tracking number is helpful if there are technical issues that cannot be resolved.

To be considered timely, applications must be received by the published deadline date. However, a general extension of a published application deadline that affects all State applicants or only those in a defined geographical area may be authorized by circumstances that affect the public at large, such as natural disasters (e.g., floods or hurricanes) or disruptions of electronic (e.g., application receipt services) or other services, such as a prolonged blackout. This statement does not apply to an individual entity having internet service problems. In order for there to be any consideration there must be an effect on the public at large.

Grants.gov complies with Section 508 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973. If an individual uses assistive technology and is unable to access any material on the site including forms contained with an application package, they can email the Grants.gov contact center at support@grants.gov or call 1-800-518-4726.

The quality measures in MIPS and APMs serve as the mechanism of measuring the improved care delivery. With this funding opportunity, CMS is engaging eligible entities to develop the quality measures as a way of enhancing the measure portfolio with additional measures for specialties. An enhanced measure portfolio helps to ensure that a higher percentage of providers can use quality measurement to improve their practice. This results in consumers making more informed decisions regarding their healthcare and overall health care quality improvements. The ultimate beneficiaries from this work are providers, consumers, healthcare stakeholders, and anyone interested in quality as the quality measures developed better reflect the complexity and diversity of our healthcare system and improve the quality of healthcare for everyone.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Approval of a project includes determination of support for the authorized project period (not to exceed five years). Awards to support the project are usually made on an annual basis. At the time of initial award, the grant provides funds for the conduct of the project during the first budget period (usually 12 months) and the Notice of Award (Form PHS-1533) indicates the support recommended and expected to be made available for the remainder of the project beyond the approved initial project period. Funds are disbursed via the Payment Management System Electronic Transfer System for domestic and foreign grantees. Loan Repayment Program Awards are for two years with the opportunity for renewal. For most projects, Federal Financial Reports (FFR), Form SF425, must be filed 90 days after each competitive segment is completed. Reports must be provided to FIC staff in accordance with the CFR Title 42 Part 52 - Grants for Research Projects and the CFR Title 45 Part 75 - Uniform Administrative Requirements for grants and cooperative agreements. Cash reports are not applicable. The grantee is responsible for annual progress reports. These reports are required for program analysis as part of all continuation applications. In addition, a final report must be filed within 120 days of the termination of the grant. The final report includes an account of progress made toward achievement of the originally stated aims; a list of the significant results; and a list of publications and inventions resulting from the projects. All grantees should use the Research Performance Progress Reporting (RPPR) forms to submit the annual progress report. For the final projects report and the final FFR at the end of the project period, the RPPR format is highly recommended, but the older 2590 form may be used for all grants and cooperative agreements. Performance is monitored annually by the NIH/Fogarty Center program staff.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of 2 CFR 200, Subpart F - Audit Requirements, non-Federal entities that expend financial assistance of $750,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Grantees generally must retain financial and programmatic records, supporting documents, statistical records, and all other records that are required by the terms of a grant, or may reasonably be considered pertinent to a grant, for a period of 3 years from the date the annual FSR is submitted. For awards under SNAP (other than those to foreign organizations and Federal institutions), the 3-year retention period will be calculated from the date the FFR for the entire competitive segment is submitted. Those grantees must retain the records pertinent to the entire competitive segment for 3 years from the date the FFR is submitted to NIH. Foreign organizations and Federal institutions must retain records for 3 years from the date of submission of the annual FFR to NIH. (e.g., if any litigation, claim, financial management review, or audit is started before the expiration of the 3-year period, the records must be retained until all litigation, claims, or audit findings involving the records have been resolved and final action taken). Those sections also specify the retention period for other types of grant-related records, including F&A cost proposals and property records. See 45 CFR 75 for record retention and access requirements for contracts under grants.

In accordance with 45 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 75, the HHS Inspector General, the U.S. Comptroller General, or any of their duly authorized representatives have the right of timely and unrestricted access to any books, documents, papers, or other records of recipients that are pertinent to awards in order to make audits, examinations, excerpts, transcripts, and copies of such documents. The FY17 class has 86 trainees with expertise covering a range of medical, nursing, and veterinary disciplines.

Fogarty, with partners in the National Cancer Institute (NCI) and the Office of Behavioral Social Science Research (OBSSR), also made new awards in its International Tobacco: Health Research and Capacity Building program (R01). This program supports trans-disciplinary research on the international tobacco epidemic, and focuses on reducing the burden of morbidity and mortality caused by tobacco use in LMICs. Fiscal Year 2018: FIC has published three concepts on their website of potential new programs for FY18. These include the Role of Stigma in HIV/AIDS Prevention, Treatment and Care in Low and Middle-Income Countries; The Partnership Initiative for Health Professional Education and Research in Selected PEPFAR Countries; and the African Association for Health Professional Education and Research. The latter two concepts follow from the very successful Medical Educational Partnership Initiative (MEPI) program supported by PEPFAR and administered through FIC at NIH and HRSA from 2012-2016, which supported leading African Medical Universities to improve the quality, quantity and retention of medical personnel to address the ongoing HIV epidemic in Africa.

Fogarty anticipates that it will continue to make new awards in its ongoing programs in International Research Ethics Education and Curriculum Development, Global Infectious Diseases Research Training, mHealth Research Exploratory Awards, HIV/AIDS Research Training, US and LMIC individual career development awards, Brain Disorders across the Lifespan Research, and others. Information on all our programs is available on our website: www.fic.hih.gov.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2016: Most AmeriCorps grants are operational grants made on a standard cost reimbursement basis. Some of the CNCS grants or state subgrants are awarded for a fixed amount per full-time AmeriCorps member (with the amount of funds being contingent on how many members are enrolled and complete their terms of service). In addition, some AmeriCorps grantees or subgrantees receive Education Award Program (EAP) grants of a small fixed-amount for each member enrolled or no operational funding (CNCN provides only the Segal AmeriCorps Education Awards to AmeriCorps members who successfully complete their terms of service). Under each form of grant, organizations receive only a portion or none of the total funding needed to operate the program (which may include the members living allowance and other program costs). The organization must use other resources to cover the costs for operating the AmeriCorps program. A copy of submitted applications can be found on the website

OBJECTIVES:

AmeriCorps VISTA is the national service program of the Corporation for National and Community Service (CNCSS) designed specifically to fight poverty. bring individuals and communities out of poverty.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Provision of Specialized Services

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

See program's Notice of Funding Opportunity. This is not a grant-based program. Restrictions on use of funds are described in the programs Notice of Federal Funding. All appropriated funds awarded under this program are discretionary.

Applicant Eligibility:

The activities of the VISTA members may not supplant staff or current volunteers. See program's Notice of Federal Funding for more information.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

VISTA activities must benefit low-income persons and communities by building the capacity of the sponsoring organization to find permanent solutions to poverty.

VISTAs live and serve in some of our nations poorest areas. They receive a modest living allowance and other benefits during their service. After successfully completing a term of service, VISTAs and Summer Associates may receive a Segal AmeriCorps Education Award, which can be used to pay for college or student loans, or an end-of-service cash stipend. Sponsors may contribute to the cost of a VISTA through "cost share," but are under no obligation to do so.

Credentials/Documentation:

Various records and forms required for first time applicants, as well as a copy of the applicant's last audit, may be requested. First time applicants must certify financial systems. In the case of those projects that receive small grants to offset member support costs, there are no matching requirements. VISTA does operate a voluntary cost share program where sponsoring organizations can pay living allowance costs for one or more VISTA members, allowing the program to maximize its reach. Sponsors also provide equipment, work space and other in-kind support of the VISTA members assigned to ensure overall project success.

This program does not have MOE requirements.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Assistance is awarded for approximately one year at a time, up to an average of 3-4 years total. Note that, with certain small exceptions, the VISTA program does not grant financial resources to organizations, but rather provides the resource through the placement of a VISTA member. Method of awarding/releasing assistance: lump sum.

Reports:

No program reports are required. In the case of VISTA projects that receive cash grants, cash management reports are required. CNCSS uses the US HHS Payment Management System for payments and cash management reporting. Progress reporting requirements are described in the Memorandum of Agreement and reporting forms. In the case of VISTA projects that receive small cash grants, Federal Financial Reports are required as specified in the grant award provisions. CNCSS and its VISTA sponsors are required to practice risk-based monitoring and routine field and desk-based oversight of all project/grant awards and expenditures.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of 2 CFR 200, Subpart F - Audit Requirements, non-Federal entities that expend financial assistance of $750,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Non-Federal entities that expend less than $750,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in 2 CFR 200.503. Audits are required only for those projects receiving cash grants. CNCSS grants are subject to audit by CNCSS employees, the CNCSS Inspector General, the Government Accountability Office, and auditors contracted by CNCSS.

Records:

Sponsors are expected to maintain records pertaining to volunteer assignments and training activities for 3 years after the end of the project year. Grant recipients must maintain all grant financial and program records for a period of three years from the date of submission of the final Federal Financial Report for the award. This includes but is not limited to all financial records including receipts, disbursements, and vouchers for federal and non-federal costs; time cards, copies of all contracts, personnel records, and job descriptions; program execution and performance records, criminal history checks, and similar records to reflect all activities and spending performed under the award.

Note that all individuals receiving a salary, living allowance, stipend, National Trust Education Award or similar compensation through a national service program funded by CNCSS must first clear a National Service Criminal History Check and those check records must be maintained within grant records.

94.019 SOCIAL INNOVATION FUND

Social Innovation Fund (SIF)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Corporation for National and Community Service

AUTHORIZATION:

National and Community Service Act of 1990, as amended, Public Law 101-610, 42 U.S.C 12653k; Federal Grant and Cooperative Agreement Act, 31 U.S.C 6301-6308.

OBJECTIVES:

To grow the impact of innovative community-based solutions that have compelling evidence of improving the lives of people in low-income communities throughout the United States. Direct resources toward increasing the evidence-base-capacity and scale of the organizations SIF funds in order to improve the lives of people served by those organizations.

The Corporation for National and Community Service (CNCS) defines social innovation as the development of a potentially transformative practice or approach to meeting critical social needs. By investing in social innovation as a driver of results and accountability, the federal government will play a central role in accelerating the spread of promising solutions to address our most pressing national and local challenges.

SIF awards are focused on improving measurable outcomes in the following priority areas:

Economic Opportunity Increasing the economic opportunities and financial stability for economically disadvantaged individuals and families

Youth Development Preparing Americas children and youth for success in school, active citizenship, productive work, and healthy and safe lives, including crime reduction initiatives focused on juvenile delinquency and victimization prevention and response

Healthy Futures Improving health outcomes, promoting healthy lifestyles and decreasing health disparities that disproportionately affect low-income communities.

SIF competitively selects experienced grant-making institutions (recipients) to do the critical work of identifying promising solutions to community problems and selecting high-performing nonprofit community organizations (subrecipients) on a competitive basis. To be awarded funding, intermediaries must demonstrate: they have advanced beyond the beginning stages, are showing signs of effectiveness and have the potential for greater scale (larger programmatic and scaling dollars are awarded to programs that show higher levels of evidence and have the potential for greater impact); also must have at least preliminary evidence of effectiveness and then undergo rigorous, independent, formal evaluations a track record of using rigorous evidence to select, invest in, and monitor the growth and progression of their grantees expertise and demonstrated impact in the proposed issue area(s) of focus depth and breadth of relationships with stakeholders in the issue area or region of focus.

The SIF will also attract and leverage private donors to match federal dollars, bringing new resources to support promising organizations. The statute requires both the SIF intermediaries and their subgrantees to match their grants dollar-for-dollar, in cash, with non-federal funding.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

SIF funds are competitively awarded to existing intermediary organizations, grant-making institutions, or grant-making partnerships (recipients) to do the critical work of identifying promising solutions to community problems. Recipients will competitively select high-performing nonprofit community organizations (subrecipients) working to address priority issues in low-income communities across the nation. Applicant Eligibility:

See program's Notice of Funding Opportunity.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

See program's Notice of Funding Opportunity.

Credentials/Documentation:

SIF recipients are required to raise match funds equal to the grant they receive. The match must be in cash from non-federal sources. At the time of application, the SIF applicants must demonstrate the ability to meet 50 percent of their first year cash match requirement. Subrecipients also will be required to match 100 percent of the grant they receive from the recipient in cash from non-federal sources. A signed match documentation letter, either in digital or physical form, to be sent to the program on or before the application deadline. Please see the Notice of Funding Opportunity for more detailed information. 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles applies to this program.

If a grantee is awarded $5 million in an upcoming competition, then that amount will be awarded for the first year of the overall grant period. Grantees will be eligible for further annual funding contingent on the availability of appropriations, compliance with grant conditions (including having secured cash matching funds), and satisfactory performance. The National Drug Control Strategy recognizes that for individuals who come into contact with the justice system, substance use disorders must be identified and treated as early in the justice process as possible, and incarceration cannot be the only (or even the primary) response to people with substance use disorders. Drug courts and other evidence-based diversion programs are key to the success of this approach. 96.001 SOCIAL SECURITY DISABILITY INSURANCE

Social Security Disability Insurance

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Social Security Administration

AUTHORIZATION:

Social Security Act of 1935, Title II, as amended; Public Laws 96-265; 97-123, and 97-35, 42 U.S.C. 401; 42 U.S.C. 402; 42 U.S.C. 416; 42 U.S.C. 420-425, Public Law 96-265, II U.S.C.

OBJECTIVES:

To replace part of the earnings lost because of a physical or mental impairment, or a combination of impairments, severe enough to prevent a person from working.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

DIRECT PAYMENTS FOR A SPECIFIED USE; DIRECT PAYMENTS WITH UNRESTRICTED USE

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Monthly cash benefits are paid to entitled disabled persons and to entitled auxiliary beneficiaries throughout the period of disability generally after a 5-month waiting period. Costs of vocational rehabilitation also are paid for certain beneficiaries. There are no restrictions on the use of benefits received by beneficiaries, although the right to future benefits is not transferable or assignable. In general, State agencies make initial disability determinations for the Federal Government. The Federal Government gives the States funds, in advance or by way of reimbursement, for necessary costs in making disability determinations under 20 CFR 404.1503.

Applicant Eligibility:

A disabled worker is entitled to Social Security disability benefits if he or she has worked for a sufficient period of time under Social Security to be insured, has not attained "full-benefit retirement age" (66 years old for workers age 62 in 2005), has filed an application, and is under a disability as defined in the Social Security law. The law defines disability as the inability to do any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months. The insured status requirements depend upon the age of the applicant and the date he or she became disabled. Coverage credits under the social security systems of certain foreign countries with which the U.S. has reciprocal agreements may be taken into account to meet the requirements. Certain family members of disabled workers are also entitled to benefits: (1) Unmarried children under age 18, or under age 19 for full-time students in elementary or secondary school; (2) unmarried adult offspring at any age if continuously disabled since before age 22; (3) wife or husband at any age if child in his or her care is receiving benefits on worker's Social Security record and is under age 16 or disabled; (4) spouse age 62 or over; and (5) divorced wives or husbands age 62 or over who were married to the worker for at least 10 years. (Benefits are also payable to auxiliaries, including certain disabled widow(er)s, disabled surviving divorced spouses, children under age 19 who are full-time students in an elementary or secondary school, and disabled children of the worker, after the worker dies. See 96.004 "Social Security-Survivors' Insurance".) For workers who are first entitled after 1985 for both (a) a pension based on non-covered employment; and (b) Social Security disability (or retirement) benefits, a less generous benefit formula applies. In addition, Social Security disability benefits are reduced (offset) by the amount that the sum of all disability benefits payable under Social Security and certain Federal, State, or local public disability and workers' compensation laws or plans exceeds the higher of 80 percent of the worker's average current earnings or the total Social Security benefit that would otherwise be payable on the disabled worker's record. The Social Security benefit for a spouse of a disabled worker is subject to a pension offset if the spouse receives a governmental pension based on his or her own work in non-covered employment. However, the offset does not apply if: (i) the person received or became eligible to receive the pension before December 1, 1982, and can meet requirements for Social Security auxiliaries' benefit as they existed in January 1977; or (ii) if the person received, or was eligible to receive, the pension before July 1, 1983, and the person was dependent on his or her spouse for at least one-half support at the time the spouse died, became disabled or became entitled to Social Security benefits. The amount of the public pension used for purposes of the offset against Social Security spouse's benefits is equal to two-thirds of the public pension. The Social Security benefit for the spouse of a disabled worker is also offset dollar for dollar by the amount of any Social Security benefit the spouse receives based on his or her own work. All benefits to spouses and children of disabled workers are subject to an earnings test unless those beneficiaries are full-benefit retirement age or older. Beginning with the year 2000, the retirement earnings test was eliminated beginning with the month in which the beneficiary reaches full-benefit retirement age (FRA). A person at and above FRA will not have Social Security benefits reduced because of earnings. In the calendar year in which a beneficiary reaches FRA, benefits are reduced $1 for every $3 of earnings above the limit allowed by law, $31,800 in 2005, but this reduction is applied only to months prior to attainment of FRA. For years before the year the beneficiary attains FRA, the reduction in benefits is $1 for every $2 of earnings over the annual exempt amount. Further, no benefit can be paid to an alien in the United States unless he or she is lawfully present in the United States. In addition, an alien cannot qualify for benefits if he or she never had a work-authorized Social Security Number (SSN) (effective for benefit applications based on SSNs issued after 2003).

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Qualified disabled workers under full retirement age (FRA). Under the definition of disability in the Social Security Law, disability benefits are provided to a person who is unable to engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of a medically determinable physical or mental impairment that has lasted or is expected to last at least 12 months, or to result in death. Disabled widow(er)s' benefits are covered under survivors insurance. Felony-related impairments and confinement-related impairments cannot be considered in determining whether an individual is under a disability if the individual has been convicted of a felony which was committed after October 19, 1980. Effective for claims finally adjudicated on or after March 29, 1996, (or for claims approved before then, with benefits payable beginning January 1, 1997) eligibility can no longer be based on drug addiction or alcoholism.

Credentials/Documentation:

Proof of disability and possibly proof of age. If applying for benefits for family members, additional proofs of age, relationship to disabled worker, or full-time school attendance may be required. This program is excluded from coverage under 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles.

Range and Average of Financial Assistance:

Monthly cash benefits for a worker disabled in 2005 range up to a maximum of $2,099 based on the level of the worker's earnings and the age at which a worker becomes disabled. The corresponding maximum for such a worker with a family is $3,148.60. As of December 31, 2004, the average benefit paid to a disabled worker alone was $880 and the average amount payable to a disabled worker with eligible dependents was $1,496. This takes into account stipulations set forth in Public Law 96-265 and Public Law 97-35. Under Public Law 97-123, the minimum amount is no longer applicable for workers who either become disabled or first met the insured status requirements after December 1981, and a lesser amount can be paid, depending on the worker's average earnings.

96.002 SOCIAL SECURITY RETIREMENT INSURANCEFEDERAL AGENCY:

Social Security Administration

AUTHORIZATION:

Social Security Act of 1935, Executive Order as amended, Title II, Public Law 401-208, 42 U.S.C 401-433.

OBJECTIVES:

To replace part of the earnings lost due to retirement.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Direct Payments with Unrestricted Use

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Monthly cash benefits are paid to eligible retired workers and their eligible auxiliaries. There are no restrictions on use of benefits by a beneficiary, although the right to future benefits is not transferable or assignable.

Applicant Eligibility:

Retired workers age 62 and over who have worked the required number of years under Social Security are eligible for monthly benefits. Coverage credits under the social security systems of certain foreign countries with which the U.S. has reciprocal agreements may be taken into account to meet the requirements. If an eligible worker age 62 or over receives benefits before full-benefit retirement age (FRA)(age 66 for workers age 62 in 2005), the individual's retirement benefit will be permanently reduced. Also, certain family members can receive benefits including: (1) A wife or husband age 62 or over; (2) a spouse at any age, if a child who is under age 16 or is disabled is in his or her care and is entitled to benefits based on the worker's record; (3) unmarried children under age 18 (or under age 19 for students in elementary or secondary school); (4) unmarried adult offspring at any age if disabled before age 22; and (5) divorced wives or husbands age 62 or over who were married to the worker for at least 10 years. Beginning January 1985, spouses ages 62 or over who have been divorced for at least 2 years (and married to the worker for at least 10 years) may become entitled to benefits regardless of whether the former spouse who is at least age 62 and fully insured has applied for benefits. Effective January 1991, the 2-year waiting period for payment of divorced spouse's benefits without regard to the former spouse's earnings was waived if the former spouse was entitled to benefits prior to the divorce. All benefits, other than benefits to disabled beneficiaries, and beneficiaries FRA and older, are subject to an earnings test. Beginning with the year 2000, the retirement earnings test was eliminated beginning with the month in which the beneficiary reaches FRA. A person at and above FRA will not have Social Security benefits reduced because of earnings. In the calendar year in which a beneficiary reaches FRA, benefits are reduced $1 for every $3 of earnings above the limit allowed by law, $31,800 in 2005, but this reduction is applied only to months prior to attainment of FRA. For years before the year the beneficiary attains FRA, the reduction in benefits is $1 for every $2 of earnings over the annual exempt amount, $16,920 in 2017. For workers who are first eligible after 1985 for both (a) a pension based on non-covered employment; and (b) Social Security retirement (or disability) benefits, a different benefit formula applies which provides somewhat lower benefits. The Social Security benefit for a spouse of a retired worker is subject to a pension offset if the spouse receives a governmental pension based on his or her own work in non-covered employment. However, the offset does not apply if: (i) the person has received or became eligible to receive the pension before December 1, 1982, and met eligibility requirements for Social Security auxiliaries' benefits as they existed in January 1977; or (ii) if the person receives, or is eligible to receive, the pension before July 1, 1983, and the person was dependent on his or her spouse for at least one-half support at the time the spouse died, became disabled or became entitled to Social Security benefits. The amount of the public pension used for purposes of the offset against Social Security spouse's benefits is equal to two-thirds of the public pension. The benefit for the spouse of a retired worker is also offset dollar for dollar by the amount of any Social Security benefit the spouse receives based on his or her own work. Effective for those who have reached age 62 since August 1981, a retired worker or spouse can receive benefits only for months in which he or she has attained at least age 62 for the entire month. No benefit can be paid to an alien in the United States unless he or she is lawfully present in the United States. In addition, an alien cannot qualify for benefits if he or she never had a work-authorized Social Security Number (SSN) effective for benefit applications based on SSNs issued after 2003).

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Benefits are paid to retired workers age 62 and over who have worked the required number of years under Social Security, and to certain family members.

Credentials/Documentation:

Proof of age is required. If applying for benefits for auxiliaries, additional proofs of age, dependency, and relationship to the retired worker may be required. To receive benefits, auxiliaries must have a SSN. This program is excluded from coverage under 2 CFR 200, Subpart E - Cost Principles.

96.004 SOCIAL SECURITY SURVIVORS INSURANCE

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Social Security Administration

AUTHORIZATION:

Social Security Act of 1935, Executive Order as amended, Title II, 42 U.S.C 401-433.

OBJECTIVES:

To replace part of the earnings lost to dependents because of the worker's death.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

DIRECT PAYMENTS FOR A SPECIFIED USE; DIRECT PAYMENTS WITH UNRESTRICTED USE

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Monthly cash benefits are paid to eligible family members of deceased workers. There are no restrictions on the use of benefits, although the right to future benefits is not transferable or assignable. The Federal government gives the States funds, in advance or by way of reimbursement, for necessary costs in making disability determinations under 20 CFR part 404 subparts P and Q. Necessary costs are direct as well as indirect costs as defined in 41 CFR Part 1-15, Subpart 1-15.7 of the Federal Procurement Regulations System for costs incurred before April 1, 1984; and 48 CFR 31, Subpart 31.6 of the Federal Acquisition Regulations System and Federal Management Circular A-74-4 as amended or superseded for costs incurred after March 31, 1984.

Applicant Eligibility:

Benefits are payable only if the deceased was insured for survivors insurance protection. Coverage credits under the social security systems of certain foreign countries with which the U.S. has reciprocal agreements may be taken into account to meet the requirements. Survivors eligible for monthly cash benefits are the following: widows or widowers age 60 or over; surviving divorced spouses age 60 or over (married to the deceased worker for at least 10 years); disabled widows, widowers or surviving divorced spouses ages 50- 59; widows, widowers, or surviving divorced spouses at any age who have in their care a child under age 16 or disabled and entitled to benefits on the deceased worker's Social Security record; unmarried children under age 18, under age 19 and a full time student in elementary or secondary school; or age 18 or older and under a disability which began before age 22; and dependent parents age 62 and over. All survivors benefits, other than for beneficiaries at full retirement age (FRA) or older, are subject to an earnings test. Beginning with the year 2000, the retirement earnings test was eliminated beginning with the month in which the beneficiary reaches FRA. A person at and above FRA will not have Social Security benefits reduced because of earnings. In the calendar year in which a beneficiary reaches FRA, benefits are reduced $1 for every $3 of earnings above the limit allowed by law, $44,880 in 2017, but this reduction is applied only to months prior to attainment of FRA. For years before the year the beneficiary attains FRA, the reduction in benefits is $1 for every $2 of earnings over the annual exempt amount, $16,920 in 2017. Except for benefits to children and dependent parents, all survivors benefits are subject to a pension offset if the person is also receiving a governmental pension based on his or her own work in non-covered employment. However, the offset does not apply: (1) If the person receives, or is eligible to receive, the pension before December 1, 1982, and can meet the requirements for the Social Security auxiliary's benefit as they existed in January 1977; or (2) if the person receives, or is eligible to receive, the pension before July 1, 1983, and the person was dependent on his or her spouse for at least one-half support at the time the spouse died, became disabled or became entitled to Social Security benefits; or (3) if the last 60 months of a persons government service before retirement was covered by both Social Security and the pension plan that provides the government pension. The amount of the public pension used for purposes of the offset against Social Security survivor's benefits is equal to two-thirds of the public pension. Benefits for widows/widowers and surviving divorced spouses are also offset dollar for dollar by any Social Security benefit the surviving spouse receives based on his or her own work. Under certain conditions, a lump-sum death payment of $255 is payable to the widow or children of the deceased worker. Further, no benefit can be paid to an alien in the United States unless he is lawfully present in the United States. Also, an alien cannot qualify for benefits if he or she never had a work-authorized Social Security Number (SSN) (effective for benefit applications based on SSNs issued after 2003).

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Widows, widowers, and surviving divorced spouses age 60 or over are entitled as long as the worker met the insurance requirements. Widows, widowers, and surviving divorced spouses also qualify at any age if they have entitled children of the worker under age 16 or disabled children in their care; unmarried children: under age 18, under age 19 and a full-time student in elementary or secondary school or age 18 or older and under a disability which began before age 22; and dependent parents age 62 and over. To claim benefits as disabled widows, widowers, or surviving divorced spouses, individuals ages 50-59 must show that they have a disability that started no later than 7 years after the insured died or 7 years after certain other events. "Disability" currently has the same meaning for these entitlements as it does for workers who claim disability insurance (see 96.001). As in worker disability claims, there is also a 5-month waiting period after the disability began before benefits begin and entitlement to Medicare after 24 months of entitlement to benefits. Children of the worker claiming benefits because of disability are also subject to the definition of disability used for workers and must show that they have been disabled since before they reached age 22. There is no waiting period for these benefits.

Supplemental Security Income

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Social Security Administration

AUTHORIZATION:

OBJECTIVES:

To ensure a minimum level of income to persons who have attained age 65 or are blind or disabled, and whose income and resources are below specified levels.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

DIRECT PAYMENTS FOR A SPECIFIED USE; DIRECT PAYMENTS WITH UNRESTRICTED USE

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments are made to persons who have attained age 65 or who are blind or disabled and meet the means-tested and other requirements of the program. Generally, there are no restrictions on the use of benefits received by beneficiaries, although the right to future benefits is not transferable or assignable. The Federal government gives the States funds, in advance or by way of reimbursement, for necessary costs in making disability determinations under 20 CFR 404 subparts P and Q and part 416 subparts I and J. Necessary costs are direct as well as indirect costs as defined in 41 CFR 1-15, subpart 1-15.7 of the Federal Procurement Regulations System for costs incurred before April 1, 1984; and 48 CFR 31, Subpart 31.6 of the Federal Acquisition Regulations System and Federal Management Circular No. A-74-4 as amended or superseded for costs incurred after March 31, 1984.

Applicant Eligibility:

To be found disabled for SSI purposes: an individual age 18 or older must be unable to perform any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of at least 12 months; an individual under age 18 must have a medically determinable physical or mental impairment or combination of impairments that causes marked and severe functional limitations, and that can be expected to cause death or that has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of at least 12 months. An individual under age 18 who files a new application for benefits and is engaging in substantial gainful activity will not be considered disabled. To be found blind for SSI purposes, an individual of any age must be "statutorily blind." This means central visual acuity of 20/200 or less in the better eye with use of a correcting lens. The eligibility of an individual who has attained age 65 or who is blind or disabled is determined on the basis of an assessment of the individual's monthly income and resources, citizenship or alien status, U.S. residency, and certain other eligibility requirements. In determining a month's income, the first $20 of Social Security or other unearned income is not counted. An additional $65 of earned income ($85 if the person had no unearned income) received in a month plus one-half of the remainder above $65 (or $85) also is not counted. If, after these (and other) exclusions, an individual's countable income, effective January 2017, is less than $735 per month ($1,103 for a couple, both of whom are aged, blind or disabled) and countable resources are less than $2,000 ($3,000 for a couple), the individual may be eligible for payments. The values of household goods, personal effects, an automobile, life insurance, and property needed for self support are, if within limits set out in regulations, excluded in determining value of resources. Burial spaces for an individual and immediate family and burial funds, up to $1,500 each for an individual and spouse, are excluded from resources. The value of a home which serves as the principal place of residence is also excluded in resource valuation.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Individuals who have attained age 65 or are blind or disabled, who continue to meet the income and resources tests, citizenship/qualified alien status, U.S. residence, and certain other requirements. Eligibility may continue for beneficiaries who engage in substantial gainful activity despite disabling physical or mental impairments.
